Nixon lawyers say President not liable to criminal process

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers told the Supreme Court today a U.S. President "is not subject to the criminal process whether that process is invoked directly or indirectly."

But special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski responded that the framers of the Constitution "were very careful to provide for a presidency with defined and limited constitutional powers and not the prerogatives and immunities of a sovereign."

The statements were in briefs filed with the court in connection with arguments scheduled for July 8 on the President's claim of executive privilege to withhold White House tapes and documents which are wanted for the Watergate coverup trial.

In a 149-page legal brief, the White House argued that the high court should overturn a U.S. district court ruling which would require the President to turn over tape recordings of 64 conversations.

The Watergate special prosecutor says this material is essential for the trial in the Watergate cover-up case.

Oral arguments in the evidence dispute are scheduled in the Supreme Court for July 8 in a rare and historic summer session.

White House Watergate lawyer James D. St. Clair said that few cases in the nation's history "have cut so close to the heart of the basic constitutional system in which our liberties are rooted ... at its core, this is a case that turns on the separation of powers."

"All other considerations are secondary, because preserving the integrity of the separation of powers is vital to the preservation of our Constitution as a living body of fundamental law," St. Clair contended.

Jaworski argued that "under our Constitution the people are sovereign and the President, though chief executive and chief of state, remains subject to the law."

"Although there have been a few notorious instances in our history in which presidents have refused to give appropriate force to judicial decrees, or are reported to have made disdainful statements about the decisions, none involved directly disobedience of a court order," Jaworski wrote. "More importantly, it is the judgment of history that those were essentially lawless departures from the constitutional norm."

The Supreme Court will review an order by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica directing Nixon to turn over tapes and documents concerning 64 White House conversations to the judge for his examination.

Sirica will preside over the trial scheduled to begin Sept. 9 of six men, including former close associates of the President, who are charged with attempting to cover up White House involvement in the 1972 burglary of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate building in Washington.

"President Nixon cannot be a proper judge of whether the greater public interest lies in disclosing the subpoenaed evidence for use at trial or in withholding it," said Jaworski.

"He is now the subject of an impeachment inquiry ... and the subpoenaed evidence may have a material bearing on whether he is impeached

Bernie man bound over in felonious assault case

BLOOMFIELD — Don "Mudcat" Lindsey of Bernie was bound over to Circuit Court for trial following a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday before Judge Koss W. Blomeyer.

Lindsey is accused of felonious assault on Leonard Stanfield of Bernie on May 4, which resulted in Stanfield's death.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Morris James, owner of the Weiner's Department Store in Bernie.

James testified that Stanfield came into the store around 3:30 p.m. on May 4 and bought a pair of shoes. He said Stanfield was attempting to pay for the shoes when Lindsey entered the store.

He said Lindsey asked him what type of bill Stanfield used to pay for the shoes. He answered, a $20 bill. Lindsey then asked James to take back the shoes and give him the $20, stating that the money belonged to him.

James said he asked Lindsey what the trouble was, and he answered, "It's something we can work out."

He said the two men then left the store with Lindsey holding on to Stanfield's arm. He said he then turned to assist other customers in the store until he heard a noise outside.

James stated he then ran outside and discovered Stanfield lying in the street, apparently unconscious. He said he then asked Lindsey to assist him in getting Stanfield out of the street. As they prepared to do so, he said a Bernie police car drove up, and police took over from there.

When asked if Stanfield was intoxicated, he replied that he had been drinking but felt that he was not qualified to say if he was intoxicated.

Rickey Lee, 16, of Bernie was the second witness and testified that he witnessed the fight from a parked car in a parking lot directly across the street from the site of the fight. He said Lindsey hit Stanfield one time with his right hand, causing Stanfield to fall and strike his upper body on the curb and hit his head on the street.

Darrell Grubbs, Bernie police officer, then testified he was driving past the scene when he saw Stanfield on the street. He said his first impression was that Stanfield was intoxicated. He said he stopped his car and Lindsey asked him if he wanted this man. He replied that he did and proceeded to load Stanfield into the back seat of the police car. He said Lindsey then told him he had hit Stanfield and he was injured. He told Grubbs if he would take Stanfield to a doctor he would pay the fee.

Grubbs said he then took Stanfield to a local doctor who examined him and ordered him sent to Dexter Memorial Hospital. Grubbs testified that it was

Fire destroys farm house near Sikeston

A small frame farm house four miles south of Sikeston was destroyed by fire about 8 p.m. Thursday.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Darnall.

Firemen from Sikeston and Matthews fought the blaze, but Sikeston Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the house was already beyond saving by the time the first fire truck arrived.

The fire started from an electrical short circuit on the back porch and spread into the house.

The Darnalls lost all of their belongings except a sewing machine.

Anyone who would like to donate clothing to the Darnalls is asked to contact the Sikeston police department, the city manager's office or, after 2 p.m., Francis Liggons, at 471-1540.

Darnall wears 31-32 pants, a medium shirt and size 9½ shoes. Mrs. Darnall wears an odd size and makes her own clothes.

Sikeston firemen were called away from the house at 8:54 p.m. by an apparent false alarm at Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic on Plaza Drive.

Linnemeyer said someone may have seen smoke from a burning trash barrel and thought it was coming from the diagnostic center. He said no fire was found at the center.

At 4:05 p.m. Thursday, firemen were called to the 600 block of William Street when a transformer caught fire in an alley. The damage was confined to the transformer.

Roadblock set by Democrats

Roadblocks will be set up in Sikeston from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday to collect money for the national Democratic fund raising telethon, according to Dick Flotron of Festus, Southeast Missouri coordinator for the June 29-30 telethon.

Flotron said the roadblocks will be located along Main Street, Malone Avenue and South Kingshighway.

Porter gives $1,524 check to County Court

BENTON — Scott County Treasurer Hess Porter and County Collector Tom Marshall attended Thursday's Scott County Court meeting to discuss shortages in their offices disclosed in a Scott County audit report issued this week by the office of State Treasurer John Ashcroft for the four-year period ending Dec. 31, 1973.

Porter presented a $1,524 check to the court for the full amount of the reported shortage.

The audit report stated that the treasurer had a net cash shortage of $1,524 in his bank accounts. According to the report, the treasurer did not deposit all monies received and certain monies received were not deposited in the proper bank accounts.

Marshall said the excess commissions the report said was retained by the collector's office of $2,698 came about as a result of an attorney general's opinion on collector's commissions on delinquient tax.

Marshall said this opinion is being challenged in court by the collector's association. According to Marshall, he hopes to recover the commissions if the court reverses the attorney general's opinion.

Marshall said collectors in other counties have put the excess commission in an escrow account pending the decision of the court. However, Marshall said he chose to repay his to the political subdivisions.

Presiding Judge Les D.Lankford announced that he had received a letter from Bert Shulimson, director of the Missouri Division of Welfare, concerning an increase in the state's appropriation for homeless, dependent and neglected children funds. Beginning in 1975, Lankford said the foster care boarding rates will be increased.

Effective with care provided on and after July 1, an increase in foster care payments will be as dollows:

In the age group of 0-5, the present payment is $68 per month, which will be increased to $100 per month. In the 6-12 age group now receiving $83 per month, the new payment will be $125. The 13-17 age group will be raised form $96 to $140.

The court approved the transfer of $4,413 in county funds, as follows:

County revenue fund to school fund, $3,790; health center fund to school fund, $507; fees due other funds to school fund, $116; treasurer to school fund, $637; treasurer to special road and bridge fund, $782; criminal cost fund, $66; and Johnson grass fund, $39.

Storage space available; most farmers are selling

By JEANNE MAYNARD

The number of storage bins collected by farmers in Scott County over the past five years could hold as much as 2.8 million bushels of wheat, according to a survey made by Kenneth Vowels, executive director of the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office at Benton. If growers used that space, Vowels said they could definitely affect the wheat market this year.

However, Bill Volner, a clerk at Scott County Milling Co. in Sikeston, says "the big majority of farmers are selling."

According to Volner, the current price of $3.67 a bushel while farmers are averaging 30 to 45 bushels an acre is not bad, even though this is a $2.33 drop from January's high of $6 a bushel and yields are down slightly from last year due to unfavorable weather and plant diseases.

Richard McIntosh, area farm management specialist at the University of Missouri Extension Center at Benton, said the spring freeze set wheat growth back two weeks. Due to the growth delay, aphids — a plant lice — spread a virus through much of the local wheat. It infected leaves, causing them to turn yellow and red, then die.

McIntosh said septoria leaf blight killed other leaves and affected plant stems later in the growing season.

Just prior to the spring harvest, local farmers may have noticed a dirty look in their wheat fields. McIntosh said the dark brown color was caused by septoria glume blotch which infested the heads of wheat and shriveled the grain.

"The combination of freeze damage and the diseases decreased wheat yields from 30 to 50 per cent," McIntosh said.

Seed treatments and leaf inspection can help prevent these yield-cutting diseases, according to Dr. Charles Baldwin, plant pathologist at the University of Missouri Delta Center in Portageville.

Dr. Baldwin said farmers who find aphids in their fields may curtail their effect by spraying the wheat crop during the fall when aphid population builds.

Leaf blight and glume blotch are carried into wheat fields from crop residue, Dr. Baldwin said. He says seed treatments may help control the disease although this has not been recommended in the past.

The reason, he said, was "it was not economically wise to treat seeds at costs of $3.25 to $3.50 an acre when wheat brought only $1.35 a bushel."

As wheat prices rise, plant specialists may change their ideas about fungicide treatments. Certified seed producers should particularly consider treatments, according to Dr. Baldwin.

With modern technology, the lifting of wheat acreage allotments by the government and ample storage space, Southeast Missourians will surely be seeing more amber waves of grain in the future.

City clerk seeking voters who moved

In compliance with Missouri's new voter registration law, City Clerk John Vaughn has placed a legal advertisement in today's edition of The Daily Standard in an attempt to locate registered voters who have moved without leaving a forwarding address

The city clerk's office is being helped by the local post office in making a canvass of the addresses of the city's registered voters.

Vaughn said that when a forwarding address was available from the post office, he mailed a letter to the voter informing him their registration will be canceled if they have moved outside the city.

When it is determined through the canvass that the voter has moved to another location in the city, the city clerk's office will move the voter's registration automatically and inform the voter of the change in voting precinct. This will be done by mailing the information to the new address furnished by the post office.

Voters who still live at the same address as when they registered and voters who have kept the clerk informed when their address changed will not be affected by the canvass.

The advertisement, which appears on pages 6 and 7, lists the names of voters for whom the post office has no forwarding address.

The persons listed must contact the city clerk's office before June 28 if they still live in the city and wish to remain a registered voter.

Vaughn said women who have changed their names because of marriage are required to reregister and may do so at the City Administrative Building.

He said he hopes to have the canvass completed in the city within the next two weeks.

Rodeo queen entries sought

Entries for Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Queen are now being accepted by the club, according to queen committee chairman John David.

Any girl between 18 and 21 years old is eligible to enter the contest. Following the entry deadline on July 6, the Jaycee Wives will interview the contestents for personality evaluation.

After the personality interviews, five finalists will be selected. From this group, the queen and two alternates will be selected.

The queen's duties will include riding a horse in the grand entry parade during each rodeo performance, personal appearances throughout the Sikeston trade area, riding in the rodeo parade and generally promoting the interests of the rodeo.

David said entries will be accepted from interested girls, members of civic groups or individuals who know a girl who would be qualified.

Names of contestents should be mailed to Jaycee Rodeo Queen, Box 907, Sikeston, or by phoning David at 471-1520. Girls will be given entry forms to complete and return to the Jaycees.

Names will not be released

The names of accident patients admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital after treatment in the emergency room will no longer be released with the daily list of accident patients treated in the emergency room. Only the names of patients released after emergency treatment will be released, according to Pat Jones, assistant hospital administrator.

CONGRESS ON BUDGET CONTROL

The House and Senate are now working on a bill to give Congress more power over the Federal budget.

Proponents of the measures claim the White House now controls the budget and such control rightfully belongs in Congress.

The bill would set up budget committees in the House and the Senate which would consider the annual budget as a whole. An overall spending program would be drawn up and the total would be divided among 14 categories such as defense, agriculture, and welfare. Each of the budget committees would report a concurrent resolution April 15 containing the targets for the next fiscal year. They would have to be passed by May 15 and would be used as guidelines for the appropriations bills.

On September 15, another resolution would be acted upon to adjust the initial overall figures to any changes in the economy. If the appropriations passed exceeded the ceilings set for the 14 categories, another resolution would be proposed for action by September 25 to make cutbacks.

The measure under consideration also provides curbs on the presidential power to impound funds authorized by Congress. To carry out this program the legislation provides a budget office for Congress.

The question arises as to whether this gigantic turnabout in the handling of the budget by Congress will reduce the public debt, stop "pork barrel" appropriation bills or save the taxpayer a single penny.

We do not believe it will.

The White House usually has a lot to say about the budget, so has Congress. It is part of the balance of power provided in our Constitution.

We can't see where adding two new committees in Congress and setting up a second Budget Bureau is going to help matters at all.

We suggest, rather, that Congress stop playing politics with the taxpayer's money and cooperate with the Executive Branch of the government to bring the cost of the Federal government to a sensible figure.

GOLD IN YOUR
CRANKCASE

Every little bit helps in the fight against inflation, which is why more and more Americans are changing their own automobile engine oil. Some 35 to 40 per cent of all auto oil is now sold over the counter.

But every little bit hurts, too, in the fight against pollution and waste of natural resources. An estimated 400 to 450 million gallons of crankcase oil is simply being dumped every year.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, would require that all oil sold over the counter be packaged in reasealable, returnable containers carrying a 10-cent deposit. Dealers would also have to maintain used- oil collection points.

The idea is only to protect the environment but to invigorate the oil- refining industry, which in the 1960s had about 150 companies reclaiming nearly 300 million gallons a year. Today, less than 40 companies are processing about 100 million gallons of used oil a year.

Not only does oil never wear out, thus constituting a recyclable resource, but according to engineers at Calspan Corp., the sludge left over after re-refining contains as much lead as low- grade ores now being mined commercially. (By a process not completely undersood, lubricating oil extracts some of the lead from additives in gasoline.)

By using a method it has developed, the company says that six to nine million pounds of lead could be recovered annually from re-refined crankcase oil, with a market value of up to $1.7 million.

If all the oil that is currently being discarded were re-refined, an additional 27 million pounds of lead worth more than $4 million could be recovered.

RAMPANT
'MANSLAUGHTER'

The Communications Workers union is planning to run a full-page ad in a number of magazines calling the American system "the fairest ever devised by man."

Everywhere but in Ms. magazine, the voice of the modern feminist movement, reports the Wall Street Journal.

In Ms., the ad will read, "the fairest ever devised." Period.

Isn't it getting just a little bit silly, this business of attempting to root out all vestiges of alleged sexism in the language by, for instance, changing perfectly good words like "chairman" to atrocity like "chairperson" — and now, by expunging the term "man," which nobody ever thought meant anything but all human beings?

Or should we say, "hupersons"?

CAN'T RULE
LAWYERS OFF
BALLOT

Further examination of the proposed new campaign reform law that the Missourians for Honest Elections seek to place before the voters has revealed a provision that would make it impossible for lawyers and doctors to run for political office in Missouri.

The provision in question is one that would require candidates for political office to list "any direct fees, retainers and gratuities in excess of $500 received during the past year."

This section, if enacted into law, would put lawyers in the position of violating the disciplinary rules of the Supreme Court if they ran for office and revealed the names of all persons who had paid them "any direct fees, retainers and gratuities in excess of $500" during the past year.

Under the disciplinary rules this would constitute a breach of the confidential relationship between client and attorney that is recognized by law. An attomey who did this could be subject to disciplinary action by the Supreme Court and could receive any penalty up to and including disbarment.

This is a seriously crippling defect because a great many attorneys now serve in the Legislature. Lawyers, because of their background, are probably the best represented profession in political contests for legislative and judicial offices.

Doctors would have the same basic problem as lawyers in running for office because they, too, are not permitted to violate their confidential relationship with patients.

In addition to this basic objection, the provision also would impose a heavy financial penalty on lawyers and other professionals who ran for public office. If they revealed the names of all persons who paid them more than $500 in fees, retainers and gratuities in the previous year, they would stand to lose these clients.

As one attorney said, "who would go back to an attorney with another case after a lawyer published the client's name and the amount of the fee he paid?" The client would know that his name and the fee he paid probably would be made public again. His natural inclination would be to go to another attorney who would assure him that his right to confidentiality would be protected.

Campaign contributions should be disclosed completely. Professional income should remain private. Office holders who attempt to sell favors can be held accountable under conflict of interest laws.

Rather than put attorneys, doctors and other professionals in a position where they would choose not to run rather than be in jeopardy, the sponsors should remove this provision from their proposal.

Roll after roll was broughtout by the perspiring salesman, but still she seemed dissatisfied. Whereupon the young woman gathered her belongings together and rose from the chair.

AROUND THE WORLD ON 10 GALLONS

The automobile manufacturers are switching production from large cars to small ones in response to the energy crisis and in tune with the new mood of Americans to use fewer resources more wisely.

Things are not that simple, however, for a related industry, the manufacturers of recreational vehicles — the campers and trailers and self-propelled motor homes which proliferated in astonishing numbers during the past decade.

The "RV" industry was, at recent reckoning, a $5- billion business for some 650 companies around the nation. Many marginal manufacturers have fallen by the wayside in a shake-out occasioned by the gasoline shortage.

But if necessity is the mother of invention, adversity is close kin to innovation. The industry is currently waging a campaign to convince Americans that its products are not the gas- guzzling hogs they are reputed to be and that it is not unpatriotic to own one (or contemplate owning one).

The theme of the campaign, which originated in California, where there are more manufacturers and owners of recreational vehicles than anywhere else, is "The 10-Gallon RV Weekend."

Statistics show that 92 per cent of the trips taken in recreational vehicles average from 50 to 100 miles. The industry has come up with a list of more than 1000 vacation areas and points of interest within 10-gallon reach of Los Angeles alone, based on an average gasoline consumption of about 10 miles a gallon. Similar lists are being prepared for other population centers in other parts of the country.

The industry claims that recreational vehicles account for only about 2/10ths on one per cent of total gasoline consumption in America, and points out that people on the highway or parked in a camping area are not using energy for home heating or cooling and lighting that they would be using if they stayed at home.

The "10-gallon weekend" or something similar to it, could well become the only kind of vacation many Americans, not just recreational vehicle owners, will be taking in the future if the gasoline shortage continues.

If so, the slogan, "See America First," may have to be modified with the proviso: "In the vicinity of your own backyard, that is."

GREAT POLLUTION
MENACE

The old saying that people are funny was never more true than today. In the name of conservation, environment and ecology, they propose all kinds of restrictions on today's mass production and distribution of food, clothing and energy that would require a return to individual methods of subsistence practiced by our forefathers in nature's wilderness areas. But there wouldn't be enough wild resources to supply our population. They ran out for the Indians and the white man 100 years ago.

How many families today could give up their electric or gas stoves or gasoline and furnace oil and go back to cutting their own wood, making candles and keeping a horse for transportation? We all wish to preserve our mountains, rivers and wildlife but that will have to be done in conjunction with plans and answers on how to provide the necessities of life as we devise methods to eliminate pollution caused by compounding population. It doesn't take a very smart person to see that population is the great pollution menace.

According to a news report the federal government is taking note of this fact. The Administration is organizing an office of population education to inform children in school and adults about national population growth and its adverse effects. A population affairs official in the Health, Education and Welfare Department says, "The unit will influence the spending of millions of federal dollars that now provide family planning information and environmental education." A little advice is okay, but most people aren't ready to put up with a federal agent poking his nose too far into such matters either.

FREE BERLIN'S WITNESS
LIVES ON

The official policy in West Germany now, as in the United States, is one of "detente" with communist powers. Officially, no one wants to recall the evils of communism or the fundamental contrast between their slave world and the free society of the West. At least in Berlin, still divided by the infamous Wall, the scene of so much heroism by men and women struggling to reach freedom, these truths have not been forgotten.

In West Berlin, just a few yards away from the Wall, is a museum called the House at Checkpoint Charlie. Since opening in 1961, it has been visited by more than four million travelers from all over the world. It displays photographs, diagrams and escape tools which dramatize the risks taken and the triumphs achieved by those determined to escape from communist tyranny.

Though largely self-supporting, the museum had always received a small annual appropriation from the West German government in Bonn. But since 1972, this appropriation has no longer been made. At the end of last year, this memorial to freedom was closed.

Now, however, it has reopened, thanks to the generosity of private donors from all over Germany and, most significant of all, from the captives of East Berlin. Unable themselves to escape, at least as yet, risking severe penalties if they were caught, many East Berlin citizens sent donations through the mail to reopen the place where their plight was most effectively dramatized. Washington-Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

A Tale of Two Old Pols

WASHINGTON — Chicago's embattled Mayor Richard Daley, his bossdom shaken, his power slipping, his health failing, summoned enough political strength last week for a "Last Hurrah."

From his cigar- polluted lair in city hall, he reached all the way to Washington and killed the land- use bill which would have brought order to the chaotic, wasteful development of the nation's dwindling land resources.

Daley sabotaged the bill for reasons that, quite naturally, riled the last of the big- city bosses.The bill left him no power to hand out lucrative land development contracts to his favorite contractors. Instead, most land decisions would have devolved upon the governor.

In Illinois, the governor happens to be an ambitious, anti- machine Democrat, Daniel Walker, who has dared to defy Daley.

Any legislation that would allow Walker to call the shots on land development was more than Daley could abide. So the old political war lord cracked the whip on Chicago's Democratic congressmen, all liberals, who normally would have voted with their fellow liberals for national standards to assure orderly land development.

Instead, they took their orders from Daley whose political machine turns out the voters for them on election day. The four Chicago votes against the land-use bill provided the margin which defeated the measure, 211-204.

We have spoken to the congressmen from Chicago who solemnly deny that Daley influenced their votes. As Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., explained it, the Chicago delegation felt their city was "so far ahead" of the rest of the nation in land- use planning that the bill would have had a harmful effect.

But sources close to the delegation say that Daley sent them their voting instructions. One messenger, apparently, was his own land development expert, Lou Hill, who pointedly reminded some members of the delegation of the contractors' political clout.

The Chicago mayor joined forces with President Nixon to defeat land- use standards. Both men are fighting for political survival, with aides under indictment and prosecutores pressing them at every turn.

The President withdrew his earlier support for the land-use bill under pressure from conservatives whose votes he is counting upon to save himself from impeachment. The conservatives fear the bill might trespass upon the rights of private property owners.

ERVIN'S GHOST WRITER: Senator Ervin, D-N.C., the hero of Watergate, has permitted a business lobbyist to help draft his views against the proposed Consumer Protection Agency.

Richard Leighton, a lobbyist for the Grocery Manufacturers of America, wrote part of the minority report on the legislation. In Ervin's name, Leighton warned that the bill would "create a Caesar within the federal bureaucracy."

The lobbyist embarrassingly misspelled Ervin's name which was listed as "Erwin" in the signature at the bottom of the minority report.

The proposed consumer agency would represent consumers inside the federal policy councils -- at rate hearings, for example, before the Federal Power Commission or drug hearings before the FoodandDrug Administration.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., has already passed the House, but faces a filibuster in the Senate. Two of the Senate's most long- winded orators, the avuncular Ervin and Sen. James Allen, D- Ala., are expected to try to talk the bill to death.

The bill came out of the Senate Government Operations Committee, whose chief counsel, Bob Smith, admitted that lobbyist Leighton wrote part of the minority report. Speaking for Ervin, Smith claimed that the senator opposed the legislation not because he is anti- consumer but because he is against government intervention.

Smith suggested that we ask consumer crusader Ralph Nader whether he wrote part of the majority report in favor of the Consumer Protection Agency. Speaking for Nader, Joan Claybrook said she has reviewed the majority report before it went to press but that the Nader people wrote no part of it.

NUCLEAR THREAT: A grim, secret intelligence analysis warns that India's nuclear explosion and the American- Egyptian nuclear agreement will lead to uncontrolled nuclear arms development.

The report claims that several small nations have already taken the first, secret steps toward developing nuclear arms. The analysis predicts that Egypt, Iran, Israel, Japan, Rumania, Sweden and West Germany will wind up eventually with their own nuclerar arsenals.

Only a severe United Nations crackdown, the report suggests, might halt the proliferation of nuclear weapons. The time to act was after India exploded its atomic bomb. Instead the United States followed up by offering nuclear aid to Egypt.

Although the aid is supposed to be restricted to peaceful purposes, plutonium for bombs can be obtained by reprocessing used uranium from peaceful nuclear reactors.

The spread of nuclear power increases the possibility that an irresponsible leader may get his hands on nuclear weapons. Libya's strongman, Muammar el-Qadaffi, for example, has supplied Soviet-made, shoulder- fired missiles to terrorists. A future Qadaffi might be able to furnish terrorists with nuclear bombs.

Dangerous Dominos, High Federal Men Fear Strike Wave Will Black Out U.S.

WASHINGTON — It's doubtful, with all the leakage bogging down communications in this one- story town, that anyone told energy czar John Sawhill of the recent American visit of the government-toppling British mine union chief, Joe Gormley.

But "Joe" was here and did get off quite a bit of English working- class advice during a speech to American coal diggers. Said he::

"In Britain, there is a saying there are three things you don't trifle with: the treasury, the Pope and the miners."

He was cheered as he stood with American mine union leaders. The sound has re-echoed into the government's innermost circles.

Reliable information from the coal fields, reflecting the American diggers' new adulation for their British comrades, discloses there will be a series of coal strikes shortly after the miners return from their two- week summer vacation. So Sawhill has set up a coal industry advisory committee to develop contingency plans for what may be one of the most dangerous black fuel shortages since World War II.

So intricately interwoven is American industry that clogged bottlenecks in just a handful of mine areas and key plants in various sectors could throw a million people out of work this winter.

Few realize how critical to the nation and the working people themselves this dependence of whole industries on just a few pits or plants is.

It has been virtually overlooked, for example, that on June 18 there were nine big Ford auto company factories ordered shut in areas ranging from Ontario, Canada, to Atlanta to Kansas City and Los Angeles.

And all because of one strike directed by one angry man over a few grievances in one plant in Chicago Heights, Ill.

This is a most strategic feeder plant. It provides parts for assembly lines everywhere. In all, Ford has five such feeders. General Motors has four. Some of these feed other auto companies. There are, of course, some at Chrysler and American Motors.

So one must take an inside look at what happened at Ford's in Chicago Heights. The plant is the last of 97 installations with which the local union had to settle local issues with the company as a result of last year's bargaining. The other 96 have signed up.

But at Chicago Heights, the local is led by a chap who touched off a wildcat strike last winter despite a national agreement between the auto manufacturers and the United Auto Workers (UAW) international headquarters. The company went to court. The UAW ordered the men back to work.

The firm disciplined the leader. He was fired. He went to arbitration. He was reinstated without back pay. He was reelected local leader. He has little use for either Ford or the UAW chiefs. So the local bargaining has been tough. And parts did not feed out. Mine plants were closed. Thousands of workers in the U.S. and Canada were laid off.

Thus a long, serious strike at any two or three of the strategic plants could slow down, even shut down, the entire auto industry heaving some 750,000 workers onto the bricks.

There's a domino pattern here. And there needn't be any political motivation. Nothing subsurface. Just some angry men. That's what's worrying John Sawhill's energy office. Fuel will be scarce this summer and winter. Utilities are short of coal. Steel mills are tight. Rail transportation is bogging down. And coal diggers' productivity isn't really up according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics -- the same BLS with much the same staffers as have been in it for many years. Some of them have been in since the late Roosevelt and Truman days.

So they're not anti- worker. Yet they report that coal digger productivity has gone up the least of all industries in which there has been an increase in the pace of production. The miners' 1973 increase is 0.3 per cent. So there isn't about to be any sudden flow of bituminous fuel.

There's strike fever in the air. It wafts over from Europe and Asia. It's coming through clearly to the nation's white and blue- collar workers. They've seen a British coal diggers strike create a crisis during which the conservative government fell. They read of the Ulster Workers Council toppling the government in Belfast with a general strike.

They've read of labor demonstrations straining the governments in Denmark, Italy, Portugal and India.

We're in an era of swift communications. And international fraternization. And fantastic inflation across the world -- far higher than in America, incidentally.

So it's time to cool it -- the strike fever, I mean. It's time for early and swift settlement before this nation rocks and rolls right into a depression. It's time for statesmanship, no shibboleths. That may be all right, Jack, for England. But here it would be wiser to call some labor- management government summit conferences.

Not all sides may have read V. I. Lenin, since it's more fashionable now to study Mao's little Red Book. But Lenin did say: "Political institutions are a superstructure resting on an economic foundation."

3 youths bound over for burglary, larceny

CHARLESTON — Three Charleston youths, Willie Dale McMillen, Ronnie McMillen and Lloyd Ray "Dean" Northern, were bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court before Judge T. J. Brown Jr. on burglary and larceny charges.

Charges against the three stem from an April 20 break-in at a barn approximately four and a half miles west of Charleston and the theft of a five-gallon can of farm chemical valued at $101 and belonging to W. S. Babb.

Testifying during the length hearing were Babb, Connie Wright and Judy Donaldson of Charleston, Milus G. Wallace of East Prairie Route Two and Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

According to Babb, the chemical was placed in the barn the afternoon of April 20 and he discovered that a heavy duty hasp-type lock had been pried off the barn door about 7 a.m. the following day. The chemical was the only item missing from the barn.

According to testimony from Miss Wright and Miss Donaldson, three boys got into Miss Wright's car about 7 p.m. April 20 near the Wright home. After going to the carnival in Sikeston, they were returning to Charleston on Highway 60 about 10 p.m. when the boys told them they wanted out of the car near the "Y" junction between Bertrand and Diehlstadt.

The girls quoted the boys as saying they "had something to see about" or "they might get something." The girls said they were told to go down the road a short distance, then return to pick them up. Miss Donaldson said she told Miss Wright to take her home after she found out what was going on.

According to Miss Wright, she returned for the boys about 30 minutes later, and at that time they had a can with them which they took out of the car at the home of Willie Pasley in Charleston.

Wallace testified the three boys brought the chemical to his farm and told him they had found it in a shack on a ditch bank west of Charleston. Wallace could not remember the date, but he said he told them even if they found it, the chemical did not belong to them. He said the youths came with him to bring the chemical to the office of Sheriff Simmons later the same day.

Ronnie McMillen remains free on $1,000 bond. Bonds of Willie Dale McMillen and Northern were revoked and they were returned to custody June 3 after additional charges of stealing were filed against them in connection with the theft of copper wiring from utility poles northeast of Bertrand. They remain in custody under bonds of $5,000 each.

A second preliminary hearing for Willie Dale McMillen and Northern on the stealing charges was continued to June 27 by Judge Brown after Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman was unavailable to testify. Testimony from Jerry Allen of Sikeston, an employe of the Scott- New Madrid - Mississippi Electric Co-operative, was taken and entered into the record.

According to Allen, he examined the utility poles northeast of Bertrand at the request of his supervisor. He said ground wires had been taken from about 10 poles in that vicinity. After examining the wire to be presented as evidence by the prosecuting attorney, Allen said it was the type of wire his company used on their poles for lightning protection.

A preliminary hearing for David Wayne Summers of Wyatt was taken off Thursday's docket after Summers' attorney filed an affidavit and application for disqualification of Judge Brown to hear the case, which charges Summers with possession and being under the control of a certain controlled substance.

Summers, who is free on $2,500 bond, was arrested May 10 with 450 tablets containing phendimetrazine in his possession.

George Rodney Drury of Charleston entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of possession and under control of a certain controll substance, a quantity of marijuana less than 35 grams, and trial was set for July 3.

Drury was arrested in Charleston by police on June 14 and is free on $1,000 bond.

Sylvester Dublin of East Prairie was assessed a $50 fine plus costs for driving without an operator's license. If Dublin fails to pay his fine, he will have to serve 10 days in the county jail.

Charges of underage possession of five per cent beer brought fines of $66 each to Joseph Franklin Chandler and John Wayne Tatum of Charleston. A $36 fine was levied against J. E. Matthews of East Prairie on a charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place.

Neil V. Acheson of Cape Girardeau paid a $31 fine on a speeding charge and Joseph Edgar Vaughn of Poplar Bluff entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of having defective brakes and paid a $26 fine.

A warrant was issued for Clifford Love Graham of Wyatt, who failed to appear on charges of speeding and driving without a license.

Charges of driving while intoxicated and driving while operator's license is revoked against Collis Ray Haddock of Bertrand were continued to June 27. Also continued to June 27 were charges of driving while intoxicated and driving without an operator's license against Marshall Powell of Wilson City.

The following cases were continued to July 3: James Randolph Baker of Poplar Bluff, careless and imprudent driving; David Leroy Morse of Alexandria, La., no special fuel permit in truck and no 96 NR permit; and speeding charges agains Fred Kirk Blaise of Vincennes, Ind., Randall Eugene Morse of Mesquite, Tex., James Phillip Bell Jr. of Adamsville, Ala., Perry Wallace Fowler of Uniontown Ky., and Dale Eugene Allen of Sesser, Ill.

A charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering against Arnold Lee Mims of Charleston was continued to July 25.

Other cases in Magistrate Court this week included: John Junior Young, wrong side of road, $26; Russell James Chanley, public intoxication and improper parking location, $41; and Willie B. Collins, careless and imprudent driving, $41;

Accident victims win damage suit

NEW MADRID — A judgment totaling $33,750 was awarded in a damage suit Thursday to Benson Ashcraft of Sikeston and Larry Wendell Garrison, Debra Jean Garrison, Terry Lynn Garrison and Tammy Renee Garrison by Circuit Judge William L. Ragland.

The suit, which was filed against Billy Mayberry and Robert, Charles and William LaValle, doing business as LaValle Farms, stems from an accident on Aug. 3, 1973 in which Mrs. Emma Jean Ashcraft was killed.

A car driven by her husband, Benson Ashcraft, collided with a farm tractor pulling a cultivator on Highway 61 in New Madrid County, which was operated by Mayberry, an employe of LaValle Farms.

The Garrisons are minor children of Mrs. Ashcraft by a previous marriage.

Ashcraft and the children will share equally $31,250, and he was awarded $2,500 for his personal injuries and property damage.

In a suit to declare the last will and testament of Sallie Wainman of Sikeston void, Judge Ragland ruled that the plaintiffs Jesse Grant, Jeffie Phillips, Ione Bell, Virginia Smith Graves, Juanita Cook and John F. Smith had no interest in the estate nor in the assets of the estate of Sallie Wainman.

Defendents named in the suits were Robert A. Dempster, executor of the estate of Sallie Wainman deceased; Jasper Grant, Randy Wayne Grant, Robert A. Dempster, trustee of the estate; and Jim Burris.

Plaintiffs charged the purported will was executed by Mrs. Wainman through coercion and undue influence while she was incapable of understanding her acts.

The case was transferred to New Madrid County on a change of venue from Scott County.

Ann Landers

Ethnic groups should not be generalized

Dear Ann Landers: I lead a busy, exciting, never- a- dull-moment kind of life, but I'm stopping everything to take a few minutes to reaffirm yourstatement that one should never generalize about ethnic groups. I refer to the letter (full of malarkey) about the Irish being the most sexless of all males.

Everyone has heard about "those sexy Swedes." Their porn, wild cinema, live- in relationships, highest rate of illegitimate babies, etc.

Well, I was married to a Swede for 20 years and he was as cold as a hunk of ice in the Arctic. I tried everything from black lace nighties to professional counseling. Nothing worked so I gave up and divorced him.

The following year I married an Irishman. He chases me morning, noon and night, and I love every minute of it.

Sexual appetite has absolutely nothing whatever to do with ethnic background and I wish you'd say it again. Just sign me -- Love My Hot Shamrock

Dear Love: O. K. I will say it again. Sexaul appetite has absolutely nothing to do with ethnic background. Remember that line, "Latins are lousy lovers"? That's not true either, according to my mail from Caracas.

Dear Ann Landers: While going through my Al-Anon book tonight, I ran across something I believe is worth sharing. In fact, I am going to have it printed and framed for my wall so I can see it every morning. Here it is:

Today is mine.

It is unique.

Nobody in the world has one exactly like it.

It holds the sum of all my past experiences and all my future potential.

I can fill it with joyous moments or ruin it with fruitless worry.

If painful recollections of the past come into my mind, or frightening thoughts of the future, I can put them away.

They cannot spoil today for me.

-- Positive Thinker

Dear Thinker: What an uplifting bit of philosophy! We can all use it. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your recent account of "A Happy Kid." He was lucky to have a dad like that.

I'd like to tell you about the thousands of kids who have no dads. They are the most underprivileged youngsters in the world. Who will help them find their places as adult men?

There IS help for them. It's an organization called "Big Brother." This group is composed of volunteers, men who offer friendship and guidance to one fatherless boy. No fee. No pay. Just friendship.

A Big Brother talks things over, answers questions. He takes "his little pal" with him for the day or the evening. Maybe on a hiking trip, to the circus, a baseball game or to a museum.

Please tell the world about "Big Brother." It is listed in the phone book. In Chicago the number to call is 427-0637. And please tell them to hurry. Some little kid is waiting. -- A B.B.

Dear B.B.: I know of the wonderful work of Big Brothers and I am happy to pass theword.

Eileen Scheu named city Breath of Life chairman

Mrs. Eileen Scheu of Sikeston, has been named chairman of the Breath of Life Campaign to fight children's lung- damaging diseases, according to Jack Buck of St. Louis, Chairman of the Gateway Chapter, Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Mrs. Scheu will lead local volunteers in raising funds to support research and care programs for children affected by lung- damaging diseases like cystic fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, and bronchiectasis.

The campaign begins with a door- to - door driver scheduled for September.

Approximately one of every 1,500 babies is born with cystic fibrosis, which is still incurable. C/F is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene for C/F. It is believed that one in 20 persons, or a total of 10 million Americans, is a symptomless carrier of this gene. Current research funded by the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation is seeking a practical test to identify these carriers, as well as a cure for C/F and better methods of treatment for all lung- damaging diseases.

Because of improved treatment developed through research, many C/F patients are now living into their teens and young adulthood. This same treatment is also benefitting and often curing children suffering from other lung- damaging diseases.

"Most people don't realize that there are millions of children in the U. S. affected by lung- damaging disease," said Mrs. Scheu. "For some of these children breathing is a struggle, rather than the natural function we, who are lucky, take for granted."

The Breath of Life Campaign supports not only research, but diagnosis and treatment of children with lung- damaging diseases in C/F Centers across the country. There are more than 110 of these Centers, which also provide for educational programs and research.

New book is about trials of woman in new country

PORTAGEVILLE — New books at New Madrid County Library in Portageville include "Luise", by Dawn Stewart Field.

This is a big, fascinating story that combines Gothic romance and historical fiction at its best. It opens as the high - spirited self-sufficient and beautiful heroine, the Baroness Luise Von Doring, arrives in America in search of a new life. Behind her are the ravages of the Napoleonic Wars and the death of her finance. Ahead of her is the dizzying whirl of the new Republican society.

Warmly welcomed into the bosom of the Morris family in Alexandria, Va., Luise quickly finds herself confused and delighted by the affections of two handsome rivals: the striving, patriotic young merchant Peter Tarlton and the aristocratic, impetuous Jeremy Morris.

The rivalry takes on an ominous tone when the two men begin to accuse each other of treachery. And worse ... Louise's world becomes a nightmare of threatening notes, midnight assignations and even attempted murder. Not only can she not trust the living, but her vivid imagination causes her to fear all kinds of Gothic horrors: vampires, headless horsemen and cloaked figures with no faces. Behind all this is the suspicion that someone is deliberately trying to drive her insane.

But "Luise" is more than a novel about the trials of a young woman alone in a strange country. Set against the tableau of the War of 1812, "Luise" paints a colorful portrait of an important historical period.

Missouri churches to make own choice on Seminex grads

ST. LOUIS (AP)--The Missouri District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod voted Wednesday to allow district congregations to make their own decisions whether to choose "Seminary in Exile" graduates as pastors.

The decision, made at the district's annual statewide convention, came despite a claim by the Rev. Dr. Herman C. Scherer, the district president, that he would not authorize ordinations of the graduates.

National synod officials have threatened expulsion of congregations ordaining the dissident graduates, who walked out of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis last winter in protest of the suspension of the school's president, the Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen.

But some observers saw the vote as a slight blessing for congregations which have called or want to call Seminex graduates.

"It leaves it up to the congregations' consciences. You can't legislate conscience," said the Rev. Daniel Jungkuntz.

Richardson appointed

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — New board members for eight national agencies of the Church of God were appointed by the group's general assembly at its 85th International Convention Wednesday. They included:

Gulf Coast Bible College, Houston, Tex.—Rev. Gerald Egelston, Tulsa, Okla.; Barry Richardson, Portageville, Mo.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

140. Jonathan Defends David

David left Samuel at Naioth and came to ask Saul's son Jonathan why Saul wished to slay him. Although Jonathan was David's truest friend, he could not believe that his father wished to kill David. To determine the king's thoughts of David, they devised the following plan: David was to hide in the fields during the festival of the new moon, and Jonathan was to tell Saul that David was attending a family celebration in Bethlehem.

Moreover, Jonathan agreed to return to the field and inform David of Saul's design. Jonathan promised to bring a youth to fetch three arrows he would shoot near David. If Saul did not intend to slay David, Jonathan would tell the youth "the arrows are on this side," but if Saul intended to slay David, he would shout that the "arrows are beyond thee."

On the second day of the feast, Jonathan told his father that David had journeyed to Bethlehem. Saul raged so violently that Jonathan left the celebration. On the next morning he went to the field where David hid, and shot three arrows over the boy he brought, saying, "Is not the arrow beyond thee?" (I Samuel 20:37)

AVOIDING THE WORLD'S WAY

This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Dr. William H. Taft

FOR JUNE 23, 1974

Scripture: 2 Thessalonians 2:1,2; 3:6-16

"Do not be weary in well-doing" is today's memory selection. It summarizes the message quite well. The youth topic, "Don't Just Sit There," also tells much about Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians.

Like any leader who leaves his associate for a period of time, Paul found it necessary to write the early Christians. He needed to revive their spirit and their hopes for the future.

This letter sought to clarify some misunderstanding about the coming of Christ. It also attempted to comfort those Christians who were being persecuted. Fearful for their future, these people needed reassuring words.

At the same time Paul turned his attention also to the ungodly. The Thessalonians were being exposed to false teachers who claimed the ability to speak with divine inspiration.

Even a forged letter, presumably from Paul, was circulated, adding another element to our comparison of the past with the present.

Paul explained that "the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ" referred to the second coming studied last week. On the other hand, "the day of the Lord" meant the time God passes His judgment on the earth.

Paul warned his people not to sit around doing nothing but wait for the second coming. He demanded hard work by all, even suggesting that those who refused to work should be denied food.

Work, as Paul explained, was a means by which God has provided for our well-being in physical material, and spiritual ways. Many centuries ago it was written that "Where our work is, there let our joy be."

John Calvin wrote in 1536 that, "We should accustom ourselves to think of our position and work as sacred and well-pleasing to God, not on account of the position and work, but on account of the word and faith from which the obedience and work flow."

Paul emphasized the divineness of work. He was fearful of those idle busybodies who spent their time on the wrong things. Many churches, especially in smaller communities, have been wrecked by those busybodies who look upon themselves as Christians. Paul would not have welcomed them into his congregation.

Everyone should work. Paul could have depended on his people for support yet he continued to work throughout his life. He did not view work as a penalty of man's sin.

Earning one's living is a Christian virtue. At the same time, Paul stressed the need for all persons to take their Christian beliefs along with them to work. Idle persons tended to stray from the Christian family. In another way, "Our work must be a sacrifice to the Divine."

Some say there is little religion involved in our work today. Some fear the fanatics, as some religious leaders appear to business leaders, are responsible for violence and rioting.

Paul's letter requires us to practice our doctrine in all phases of our lives. No Christian can become lazy; all Christians must work to make their beliefs help others to follow God.

A job can become a bore for anyone. In our modern technology many jobs are routine and monotonous. We need reassurance from time to time about the role our jobs play in the Christian world.

Paul found it necessary to give his people regular pep talks. He urged them to become a part of their community. He would not approve of monks who isolate themselves in mountain retreats to meditate.

A real Christian approaches his work with a sense of devotion. He realizes that here, as well as in church, he has the opportunity to practice his religious beliefs.

Paul called for peace "at all times" and "in all ways." Paul, in his letters to the Thessalonians, combined the practical with the religious approach.

Morley church VBS to begin

MORLEY — Vacation Bible School classes for all ages will be conducted next Monday through Friday evenings at the Morley Church of Christ. The classes will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. each day.

Malden minister to work in India

MALDEN — Chuck Huber, minister of the Malden Church of Christ, left Wednesday for a summer-long missionary trip to India, where he will survey the work of the Churches of Christ in Bombay, Delhi, Bangalore and Madras and serve as guest instructor in the Madras School of Preaching.

Working through interpreters and with his teammate, George Hall of Rockdale, Tex., evangelistic training schools will be conducted each evening in the cities and villages to complete a typical 18- hour workday.

The economic and political climate in India is quite harsh and very unstable. A country half the size of the United States with a population in excess of 510 million, India's problems have been building for years.

The country has officially entered the worst famine in its recorded history and food is extremely scarce. What food is available is sold at a premium and to the highest bidder. It is estimated that some 3½ million people will die of starvation before the year's end.

Inflation is soaring at a rampant rate of 32 per cent annually. Wages have not increased in over a decade, and the average family income is but $28 per month. These and other factors keep the government in a very vulnerable position. It is presently tottering on the verge of collapse from revolt among the Indian populus.

These conditions make the future for foreign missions very uncertain. Thus, this summer concerted efforts are being mounted to reach as many with the gospel of Christ as possible before expulsion occurs.

Missionaries of the Churches of Christ have been laboring extensively in India for the past twelve years. Their efforts have produced about 140,000 converts for the New Testament church. Today, more than 1,000 congregations flourish in 15 of the 20 states of that Hindu country. A school was begun in 1968 to train Indian converts in God's word to prepare them to carry the gospel of Christ to their own people. Since its inception, about 225 men have completed the intensive two-year training program. These graduates now serve as local and itinerant evangelists for their people, preaching in their native Tamil and Telegu languages.

Huber's trip fits well into the new emphasis the Malden church has placed on missions in the past two years.

In the past two years, the local church has experienced substantial growth. The attendance now averages over 230 each Sunday morning. and the budget will soon be increased to over $53,000 annually. The recent growth, resulting primarily from efforts in personal and bus evangelism, has prompted construction of a 10,000 square- foot educational facility. This facility is scheduled for occupation by Sept. 1. The church also has a program providing for those in need through the Christian Service Center.

Vernon Reaves and C. W. Watson, elders of the Malden church, have endorsed and encouraged Huber in his trip preparation. The Malden church and other area churches are making the trip possible through financial support. While Huber is gone, men of the congregation, along with some visiting speakers, will fill the pulpit.

Huber has considerable experience in mission work. He has worked with mission churches in England, Canada, South Dakota, Wyoming and Hawaii. Prior to moving to Malden, he worked with a congregation in Honolulu comprised largely of Filipinos, Japanese and Chinese.

Mr. Huber is a graduate of the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock, Tex., Oklahoma Christian College at Oklahoma City, in East Texas State University in Commerce, Tex., and is scheduled to graduate in May 1975 from Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. Huber's family will remain in Malden throughout the summer.

Upon his return, Mr. Huber will speak to numerous organizations and clubs on his findings and experiences. Any local or area civic, educational or other organization that would like to have Huber address their group and give a slide presentation may make such arrangements by phoning either his home (276-4177) or the church office (276-2488).

Missionary to be at First Assembly

Rev. Gunder Olsen

The Rev. Gunder A. Olsen, an Assemblies of God missionary, evangelist and church builder will be guest speaker Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor, has announced.

During their past four terms of missionary service, the Rev. Mr. Olsen and his wife Doris have pioneered and helped build 13 Assemblies of God churches in the Philippine Islands. The church they founded in Iloilo City was attended by 800 to 1,000 people each Sunday while they were there. That church mothered two more in that city.

The Olsens also supervised the construction of a church in Iligan City and Mindanao. The Rev. Mr. Olsen has reached primitive tribes where he is the only white man they had ever seen.

When they return to the Philippines, the Olsens will continue to hold evangelistic crusades and conduct seminars on personal witnessing in Bible schools.

The Rev. Mr. Olsen served as superintendent of the Western Visayan District Council of the Philippine Assemblies of God and was chairman of the executive board of Immanuel Bible Institute in Cebu City. In addition to working the Philippines, he has also ministered in countries throughout the Far East.

The Assemblies of God supports 47 missionaries who work with 621 Philippine ministers. More than 70,000 members and adherents attend the 1,228 Assemblies of God churches on these islands in Southeast Asia.

The Rev. Mr. Olsen will relate some of his missionary experiences in the Philippines during this special missions service.

State Board of Education aware of broadening scope

JEFFERSON CITY — Aware that education is becoming increasingly broader in scope, the State Board of Education continues to review its major instructional programs now being planned or offered Missourians at all age levels.

Programs reviewed at the state board's June meeting included: adult education, instructional television, a state plan for vocational education and beginning proposals for drug, economic and environmental education in the public schools.

Adult education (for Missourians 16 years and older) probably is one of the lesser known but fastest growing services offered by the State Department of Education.

These programs include:

Adult basic education, designed to teach adults to read and write or to substantially raise their educational level; high school equivalency, to help those unable to complete high school in the regular manner; manpower development and training, to help the unemployed and underemployed.

Adult distributive education, to train those wanting employment in the field of marketing and distribution of goods; veterans education, with the responsibility of approving and supervising the 477 schools and 2,172 business firms used for veterans' training; and general adult classes, usually offered at evening hours in the public schools.

During the last fiscal year, 127,370 Missourians received these services in program supervised by the Department of Education. It is estimated that 135,000 persons will be served during the present fiscal year.

These figures do not include approximately 37,000 adults now receiving training in adult vocational- technical courses.

A breakdown of last year's enrollment shows: Adult basic, 11,724; high school equivalency, 7,597 (calendar year); manpower development, 2,885; adult distributive, 6,330; veterans, 33,104; and general adult programs, 65,730.

Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory noted that all the programs except adult basic, which has fixed funding, are reporting continued growth during the current year.

"It is clearly evident," Mallory said, "that education no longer can be confined to prescribed formulas, grades and age groups. Rapidly, it is becoming a lifelong pattern of accomplishment and fulfillment, appreciated as part of eaily living.

"Adult Missourians have never faltered in their convictiCn about the value of educaion to their children. Now, they've discovered it can continue to serve them as well, both profitably and humanistically, and this is as it should be.

"Education no longer is a force- feeding process. Instead, it's becoming a desired, satisfying experience, and all of us -- every Missourian -- will be the better for it."

Other action by the board of education at its June meeting included:

Received the U. S. Supreme Court decision in the Missouri case, Barrera vs. Wheeler, in which the plaintiffs sought to require the board of education to approve progfams which send public school personnel, paid with federal Title I funds, into private schools during the regular school day.

The Supreme Court ruled that Title I requires "comparable" services but does not require the sending of public school teachers into private schools. The state board directed that its attorney in the case seek a conference with the judge of the U. S. District Court in Kansas City to discuss the administration of the Supreme Court decision.

Appointed Delmar A. Cobble of Jackson, a former teacher and school administrator, now retired, as a member to board of trustees, Public School Retirement System.

Approved guidelines for auditing student credit hours in Missouri's public junior colleges.

Designated the Pemiscot County Special School District at Braggadocio as an area vocational school.

Approved the accreditation of the Missouri public junior colleges on the basis of reports of visits made by the State Department of Education staff and reports submitted by the colleges and by visitation teams.

For certification purposes, approved acceptance of a maximum of eight semester hours of non- professional education course credit from any regionally- accredited junior community college in accordance with certain conditions.

Changed teacher certification standards to require one year instead of two years' experience for teachers of trainable mentally retarded.

Appointed Sister Mary Ann Eckhoff, assistant superintendent of schools for the archdiocese of St. Louis, as a member of the Missouri Instructional Television Council.

The next meeting of the State Board of Education is scheduled for July 22- 23 at Springfield.

Miss Farris is teaching in the department of music, but the majority of the visiting faculty members -- 13 -- are associated with the Division of Education and Psychology which offers a heavy schedule of graduate courses druring the summer session.

Of the remaining three, one is a visiting professor in the department of men's physical education and two are working in Kent library.

Schwartz, Dr. Eugene L. Shepard, Anna Frances Stricker, Peter L. Toohey, Dr. James Townsend, Dr. Adolph Unruh and Dr. John A. Wimpey.

SEARCY, Ark. — Miss Sharon Lane Wylie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Wylie of Sikeston, Mo., Route One, was listed among 496 students named to the Harding College dean's list for the spring semester, according to Virgil Beckett, registrar.

To achieve the honor, a student must carry a course load of at least 12 hours, have no grade below "C" and have no incomplete hours. Upperclassmen must have at least a 3.50 average on the 4.0 0-point scale and freshmen at least a 3.25 average.

Sikeston youth on honor roll

POINT LOOKOUT — The dean's honor roll at The School of the Ozarks for the spring semester contained the name of Danny Slaten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Slaten of Sikeston, who earned a 3.33 grade point average.

The dean's list included the names of 176 students who received a grade point average of 3.25 (B) or better.

The School of the Ozarks is a fully accredited four- year coeducational liberal arts college where every student is on a work scholarship and devotes 20 hours a week to work in a student industry, service or office.

The college is the only one of its kind in the United States where every on- campus student is on a work scholarship. The 68- year- old inter- denominational school is supported by endowments, bequests and gifts.

Kelley named on dean's list

SEARCY, Ark. — Roy B. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kelley of Sikeston, Mo., Route Four was among the students named to the dean's list for the spring semester at Harding College.

To achieve the honor, a student must carry a course load of at least 12 hours, have no grade below "C" and have no incomplete hours. Upperclassmen must have at least a 3.5 average on the 4.0- point scale and freshmen at least a 3.25 average.

Symington returns to office

WASHINGTON — Sen. Stuart Symington has returned to his office at the Senate following a post- operative check at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center. He began spending a short time in the office June 14 for the first time since a hernia operation June 4 and resumed regular Senate duties Monday.

Symington had been at home at his apartment in Washington since he was released from the hospital June 9.

Bernie police chief named

BERNIE — Arthur Lee, a 34- year - old native of Bernie, has been appointed chief of police by the Bernie City Council.

Lee, presently a Stoddard County deputy sheriff, will officially take office July 1. He has been a deputy for 13 months.

Dennis Fowler of Advance will replace Lee in the sheriff's department. He is attending Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, majoring in law enforcement.

The new Bernie chief is a graduate of Bernie schools and has attended the highway patrol police school in Jefferson City. In addition, he has attended a law enforcement program at Southeast Missouri State University sponsored by the Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

The Lee family, including his wife Florence and two children, lives near Bernie. According to Mayor R. B. Woods, Lee will be living within the city when he officially assumes his police duties.

The City Council appointed Lee in a special session Tuesday night. He replaces Vernon Cornelison who resigned in early June after seven years as chief of police.

Cornelison resigned amid confusion surrounding new procedures for handling of police funds. At the time of the resignation, Mayor Woods said, "There have been some problems in relation to handling of police department funds, police evidence and police regulations. The procedures for handling police fine money have also posed problems."

Bernie is in the process of completely revising the procedure of money processing. Woods said a thorough report on police funds would be made available after an audit is completed.

A special election has been set for July 9 in Bernie at which time a new police judge will be elected. This action came about as a result of the resignation of Eldra Carson who handed in his formal resignation last week. Carson, who just two weeks ago told Bernie Mayor R. B. Woods he had decided to stay on his police judge post, had served the city for about 15 years. No reason for his resignation was offered.

The ice cream sundae, one of today's most popular ice cream desserts, was born in Evanston, Illinois because of a strange law. When a law was passed forbidding the sale of ice cream sodas on Sunday, local merchants got around it by serving ice cream with just syrup. The "sodaless soda" came to be known as a "Sunday" but then objections arose naming a dessert after the Lord's Day, so it became known as a sundae, but it, like the soda, was not banned.

Something that homemakers like more than an ice cream sundae, a Miracle Water Refiner, was born not because of any law, but to create clean, refreshing sparkling water throughout your home. The Miracle Water Refiner not only softens, it cleans, removes taste and odor such as chlorine and it filters your water as well. Once you see and enjoy the difference, you will never want to go back to ordinary tap water. Your cooked foods will taste better, your floors and walls will sparkle, your laundry will smell fresher, be softer and cleaner. Call Braswell and find out more about this modern wonder today.

Symptoms

Your car is parked in the driveway without enough gas to take you on vacation. The air conditioning is off because you want to conserve electricity. The kids are underfoot, wondering what to do with themselves. You're hot and wet when you'd really rather be cool and wet.

Rx

Just drop one Fox Pool into your back yard, add a diving board, convenient walk-in stairs, water, and your entire family.

If a hot summer at home is upsetting your family, then start thinking about a Fox Pool. No matter what shape your back yard is in, Fox has the right size and shape to fit. Pick up a copy of the Fox full color back yard planner today. It's guaranteed to provide speedy relief from the summer back yard blahs.

I'm probably going to be spending more time at home this summer. Please send me your full color Fox pool planner.

Council decides to keep electronic bookkeeper

EAST PRAIRIE — The City Council Thursday night, following a two-hour discussion, agreed that the only alternative the city has is to keep the Burrough's L-5000 electronic bookeeping machine and seek a buyer for it in the future.

The machine, approved for purchase in January at a cost of $19,714.12, reportedly has created controversy among residents who allegedly have voiced their objections to the purchase to new council members because they feel the money should have been used for street and sewer improvements. Reportedly, local businessmen have voiced their opinion that the city should have not purchased the machine.

Representatives from Burrough's Corporation met with the council and detailed the various operations for which the machine can be programmed.

It was pointed out that the L-5000 machine met the specifications the city asked for when bids were solicited and after a systems analysis was made of the city's future needs. It was further determined that the machine was the best means to handle them.

When asked if the company has a smaller machine for which the L-5000 model could be exchanged, the council was informed there is a model L-4000 which would only do half of the work which could be handled by the L-5000.

The L-4000 model, physically the same size as the other machine, costs $15,451. The council was told that although the present machine has not been used by the city, it has been in the city hall three months, and as far as Burrough's Corporation is concerned, it would have to be considered second hand. Should it be taken back in exchange, the city would be faced with depreciation estimated at three per cent per month on the total cost.

It was also pointed out that the city has spent $1,195.30 for supplies for the L-5000 which could not be used in the L-4000. Additional supplies would have to be purchased if the exchange is made.

The first year payment of nearly $8,000 has been made and the machine has already been programmed for budgetary and payroll accounting. Tax billing and calculating of water bills, after the installation of water meters, can also be added to the programming and the company will train city personnel to operate the machine.

Cost of programming would have to be added to the total cost of the L-4000 machine.

The motion to keep the machine was made by Councilman Marion "Bud" Morgan and seconded by Councilman Louis "Blue" Turley. Councilman Wayne Presson also voted to retain the machine.

Mayor LaWanda Douglas abstained, although she conceded the city has no choice. Councilmen Jones Hedge, who was absent at the time of the voting, said earlier in the evening he had no strong objections to keeping the machine. He added, that money-wise in three to five years the city would not save money if water billing had to be sent out for calculation.

During the course of the meeting, Mayor Douglas stated she felt city manager Bob Kakac had oversold the machine to the council. Council Presson also stated that he felt Kakac had misrepresented the machine to former councilmen.

Kakac told the council he would stand by his recommendation and assured the council that city personnel could and would use the machine and much of the work now done by hand would be eliminated. Kakac also showed another bid received from another company for a similar machine after Mrs. Douglas said she could not recall seeing any other bids for a machine.

The only other business at Thursday night's meeting was the renewal of liquor licenses by the liquor committee.

Licenses renewed included Brown Liquor and Sporting Goods, package liquor license and Brown's Tavern, five per cent beer license; DonKin -solving Package Liquor, package liquor license; R. L. Hall Tavern, five per cent beer, and Yeager's Liquor Package Store, package liquor license.

PemCo district approved as vocational site

Pemiscot County's Special School District has been approved for designation as an Area Vocational School site, according to Dr. W. Thomas Robison, superintendent of the district.

Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, state commissioner of education in Jefferson City notified Robison of the approval June 20.

The commissioner told Robison "We will want to plan with you as you develop new programs to meet the needs of secondary, post-secondary, adult and special needs groups."

According to Robison Tom Yandell, director of the department of vocational-technical education, plans to implement courses next fall for high school students and adults who are not attending a school These courses will be designed on an adult level.

When possible, special education students will also attend vocational courses.

Local cities join utility commission

JEFFERSON CITY — Matthews, East Prairie, Charleston, Malden and Marston are among seven new members which joined the Commission for Municipal Pooling this spring, according to an announcement made at a meeting held Thursday. The group consists of cities seeking to provide their citizens with municipal services through cooperative action.

The announcement was made by commission chairman Keith D. Beardmore of Chillicothe and membership committee chairman Ray Callanan of Vandalia, who reported that the seven cities had joined since the last meeting of commission on Jan. 25 The other two new members are Cameron and Higginsville.

The group considered methods of financing municipal utility facilities and legislative goals that would permit municipalities to fund joint utility projects to help hold municipal utility rates to the lowest possible figure.

3 injured in 2 accidents

Two area traffic accidents Thursday injured three Southeast Missouri teenagers, the highway patrol reported today.

A young Piedmont couple was injured at 2:20 p.m. on a gravel road six miles north of Piedmont when the motorcycle they were riding ran into the side of a southbound car driven by Billy Ray Sutton, 35, of Piedmont.

A spokesman for the patrol said the northbound motorcycle, driven by Kenneth W. Hicks, 16, of Piedmont, came around a curve on the wrong side of the road and struck the side of the car.

Hicks and a passenger, Linda Faye Meyer, 19, of Piedmont, were taken to Wayne County medical Center in Piedmont for treatment of minor injuries.

John McCarver, 18, of Patton received minor injuries at 12:10 a.m. on Route A two miles east of Marquand when he lost control of his car which ran off the road on a curve and struck a tree.

McCarver was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Riding lawn mower stolen

PARMA — A riding lawn mower owned by Doyle Bagby, Route One, was stolen Thursday night but was recovered a short time later, according to the Stoddard County Sheriff's department.

The lawn mower was found about one-half mile north of the Bagby home shortly after it had been reported stolen.

Former Dexter native killed in auto crash

HILLSBORO — Carl Edward Allstun, 36, formerly of Dexter, died Thursday from injuries sustained in an automobile accident near Hillsboro.

He was born Dec. 18, 1937 at Dexter to Charlie Allstun and the late Tina George Allstun.

In 1958, he married Nora Jane Rickman, who survives.

Other survivors include two sons, Carl and Charles Allstun of the home: his father, Charlie Allstun of Dexter; one sister, Lorene Ward of Dexter; and three brothers, Lloyd, Franklin and Leon Allstun of Dexter.

Friends may call at Mahn Funeral Home in DeSoto, where services are scheduled at 1 p.m. Sunday

Burial will be in Dexter Cemetery.

Looking Back age correction

It was incorrectly reported in the Looking Back column of Thursday's edition of The Daily Standard that J. W. Murphy of Morehouse was 63 years old at the time of his death in June 1944. He was 84, according to a relative.

Charleston boy elected senator at Boys State

WARRENSBURG — Kim Huffstutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Huffstutter of Charleston, has been elected state senator of Benton County at the 35th annual session of the American Legion Boys State of Missouri being held this week at Central Missouri State University.

Huffstutter attends Charleston High school, where he is active in Drama Club, National Honor Society and band.

Andy F. Sears of Blue Springs and Kevin James Murphy of Caruthersville were elected governor and lieutenant governor. Two other Federalists, Britt A. Thedinger of St. Joseph and Charles Gene Ankrom of Bolivar won the races for state auditor and attorney general.

The Nationalists took the other two offices when Thomas Wesley Hoft of Columbia was elected secretary of state and Timothy D. O'Leary of Kansas City won the race for state treasurer.

Jim Walter Uhls of Cape Girardeau, a Nationlist, was elected chief justice of the court. Chester Aldridge of Richmond, Michael Jay Callicott of Hannibal, Philip K. Nacy of Jefferson City and Keith Elliott Prokop of Bridgeton also won seats on the court for the Nationalists. The only two Federalists elected were John Erwin Gerike of Blue Springs and Chris James German of St. Louis.

All were to be installed at ceremonies tonight in which Gov. Christopher Bond was to do the honors.

Boys State is a week-long short course in civic affairs sponsored annually by the American Legion.

The election followed a mass campaign rally of the 960 delegates, somewhat similar to a national nominating convention except that both parties met at the same time.

The outcome depended much on speeches made at the rally by the individual nominees rather than any difference in political philosophy espoused by the opposing parties.

"If a boy made a bum speech he didn't get the votes," said a member of the leadership staff.

While the election was going on, members of city councials, county courts and the general assembly organized earlier in the week held sessions on municipal, county and state problems.

approximately 12 minutes from the time he picked up Stanfield until he arrived at the hospital.

Grubbs was then asked if he questioned Lindsey regarding the incident at any time following the trip to the hospital. He replied that he talked to Lindsey the same day.

When asked if Lindsey was advised of his rights. He replied that he was not told of his rights at that time or any other time to his knowledge.

The fourth witness called was Geraldine Caldwell, a waitress at Murphy's Tavern in Bernie. Mrs. Caldwell testified that Stanfield came into the tavern around 3 p.m. through the back door and sat by himself in the back of the building.

She said Lindsey came into the tavern about 3:30 p.m. with several other men and sat at a table in the front of the building. She said Stanfield then joined Lindsey and the other men at their table. She said Lindsey then ordered a round of drinks after which Stanfield left the tavern, again through the back door.

The next incident she recalled was Lindsey yelling out the door to his son, who was walking down the street in front of the tavern, to go to the liquor store to see if Stanfield had made a purchase and if so to ask what size bill he had used to pay for it. He also told him if Stanfield wasn't at the liquor store to check Weiner's Department Store:

Mrs. Caldwell said Lindsey's son checked back at the tavern a short time later and stated that Stanfield had bought some shoes at Weiner's and had paid with a $20 bill.

She said Lindsey then got up and stated in a loud manner, "I'm gonna go down there and beat his brains out," then left the tavern.

She said he returned a short time later, and the tavern owner asked if he got his money back. Lindsey replied, "Yes, I did: His blood and brains are laying out there in the street."

When asked if Lindsey was intoxicated, she replied that he was. When asked if Stanfield was intoxicated, she said she did not think so because he had drunk only two beers.

No witnesses were called by the defense.

Stanfield died from injuries sustained in the fight the following day at Dexter Memorial Hospital.

In other court action:

Wilford B. Cureton, charged with distruction of state property with a tractor which did not belong to him, was fined $10 and given a 60-day suspended jail sentence.

Trial was set for June 27, for Leo Slaughter, 23, of St. Louis, charged with car theft and burglary May 29 at City Motor Sales in Dexter.

A preliminary hearing for John Horn on a charge of molesting a minor was set for June 27.

Robert Banks entered a plea of guilty to a reduced charge of careless and imprudent driving and was fined $25. The charge was reduced from driving while intoxicated.

Loy Orville Cannon of Essex, charged with common assault, was granted a change of venue to Scott County.

Trial was set on July 3 for Gary B. Williams on a non support charge, and a charge of driving with out-of-state plates while residing in Missouri against Jerry Glenn Graves was continued.

Pleading not guilty to charges of careless and imprudent driving while drag racing were David Richard, Brad Middleton, Jerry Dunning and Kenny Carlton. Trial for each were set for June 27.

Paying fines for traffic violations were:

Joseph Allen Banken of Dexter, inadequate muffler, $10; Michael Lee Goodman of Essex, careless and imprudent driving, $15; Fines McAllister of Oran, failure to stop at railroad crossing while driving a gas-carrying vehicle, $5.

Hubert Neeley, defective tail lights, $10; Joseph H. Clippard of Fenton, no motorcycle license, $10; Bobby D. Franklin of Puxico, careless and imprudent driving with excessive speed, $15; and Winford Cureton of Bloomfield, no operator's license, $10.

President Nixon lost court battles over access to tapes last fall in U.S. District Court and the U.S. Court of Appeals. He then provided the recordings at issue in that case rather than take the controversy to the Supreme Court.

Nixon asked the Supreme Court Thursday to give him access to the evidence which led the Watergate grand jury to name him as an unindicted coconspirator.

COMMON SENSE AFLOAT

Can you count the infractions against boating safety by this carefree group? To start with, there are 12 obvious "no-no's" — not a single occupant is wearing a life preserver! And how about the guy not only standing up but whipping his rod all over the place. Or the operator trying to steer blindfolded, someone riding on the bow and so on and on. The worst, of course, is that the boat is "slightly" overloaded! Year after year, overloading the boat with too many people, gear and or too big an engine is a primary cause for drowning fatalities. Most boats have a metal capacity plate usually mounted near the operator's position. It tells how many people you can carry safely. It also gives the capacity of the boat in pounds, including the total weight of passengers, gear and motor. So, either follow the recommendations on the capacity plate or make sure your life insurance premiums are paid up to date!

Games wanted

R. E. Sharp, commissioner of the Bloomfield Summer Baseball Association, has issued a plea for games for a 13- year - old team.

"I have found that very few Little League graduates are playing throughout Southeast Missouri, and I wanted our boys to be able to compete," Sharp noted.

Sharp's letter said:

"Bloomfield is currently sponsoring Baseball teams for boys in the following age brackets. Minor Leagues (ages 8-9), Little League (ages 9-12), Jr. Babe Ruth (ages 13-15), and Sr. Babe Ruth (ages 16-18). The latter two groups play at home and away. Minor Leagues and Little League play only at home. Then, of course, Little League teams participate in tournaments ... if invited.

The purpose of this communications is as follows: Bloomfield has a number of "13 year old boys", who did not make the Junior Babe Ruth Squad, but they still want to play baseball this summer. The "13 year old boys" have no place to go.They are caught between being too old for Little League and too young, small or immature, to compete against 14 and 15 year old boys ... in most cases.

In recent weeks, I took the opportunity to survey several area towns for "13 year old boys". The typical answer was that we can not play your '13 year old boys' because we have only two or three "13 year old boys" on our Junior Babe Ruth Squad.

Thus, the reason for this letter. The point is ... as of this date .. and according to the information which I was able to gather ... very few "13 year old boys "are playing Baseball this summer. In the past, this is when boys have quit the Baseball Program in Bloomfield. I dare say the same thing has happened in your community. Often times, when they quit ... you don't get them back into your Baseball Program. They get "behind". They lose one year and they lose interest. In my opinion... the big name of the game is not just "Baseball" ... but recreation and something for these boys to do. I personally like to keep my boys busy. I think your time, effort and money spent will be very worthwhile in the future.

Bloomfield will sponsor one "13 year old boys Baseball Team". We will play at home or away. Bloomfield will be interested in participating in a tournament (or tournaments) for this age group.

If you have any interest or comments, please contact: R. E. Sharp, Bloomfield, Missouri 63825, P. O. Box R. Telephone (by day): 314-568-7831; telephone (by night): 314-568-3374"

Dwyer called

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals moved to add more punch to their batting attack today as they called up outfielder- first baseman Jim Dwyer from their American Association farm club in Tulsa.

Dwyer, 24, who batted .193 in 28 games for the Redbirds last season, will take the place of pitcher Pete Reichert, who was placed on waivers Wednesday night, Cardinal officials said.

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP) — Some 300 swimmers from 125 states and the Canal Zone are led by Gary Hall, Olympian and world record holder, in the three-day Fidelity Open swim meet starting today.

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought a $20,000 home in 1968—today it's worth about $27,000. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. See me about a State Farm Homeowners Policy that will cover your home for all it's worth ... and keep it that way with automatic Inflation Coverage.

Moses picks Maryland

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Recruiting the nation's top high school basketball player, Moses Malone, meant there could be only one happy winner and a lot of losers—some of them sore.

Maryland is the winner, and coach Lefty Driesell believes the 6-foot-11 Malone will make the Terps "the UCLA of the East."

For University of New Mexico Coach Norm Ellenberger, the signing Thursday morning with Malone still half asleep sounds like "a case of his people making the decision for him. It wasn't necessarily what he wanted."

Ellenberger was upset because, when he left this Central Virginia city Thursday morning, Malone had told a television reporter hours earlier that New Mexico likely would be his choice.

By the time the New Mexico coach's plane had landed in Albuquerque, the news was out that the shy, reticent Malone had signed with Maryland.

Apparently Malone's mother was the key factor. Mary Malone had admitted she wanted Moses to play close to home. She was elated when he chose Maryland. "He's going to be close to home ... It's only a 2½-hour ride to Maryland, and I can get to see him play," she said.

While Driesell, Maryland and the Malones were basking in the glow of success, a Virginia newspaper report threw a shadow over the affair.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch reported in today's editions that Malone has been driving a 1974 luxury car since Monday and has been hired by a Washington construction company for the summer. The car retails for $6,500 and his contruction job reportedly will pay $7 an hour.

The newspaper said there have been reports the NCAA has been investigating the automobile arrangement. "We couldn't comment on any investigation at this time," said an NCAA official in Shawnee Mission, Kan. "It's our standard policy not to say anything on matters like this."

A spokesman for the Richmond auto dealer said the car was obtained by Malone and his mother through a lease-purchase agreement.

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson, the Oakland A's star outfielder, continues to lead all other American League players in the weekly voting for the All-Star team.

According to figures released today by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Jackson had 719,579 votes. His closest rival over-all was Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew with 574,150. The next closest outfielder was California's Frank Robinson with 302,113. Robinson was fifth a week ago.

In the only other change among the leaders, Chicago's Dick Allen grabbed the edge over Boston's Carl Yastrzemski at first base, 325,763 votes to 229,904.

Cookie Rojas of Kansas City is a distant runnerup to Carew at second base with 172,565.

Baltimore's Brooks Robinson remained the top choice for third base with 299,333 votes, followed by the A's Sal Bando with 217,545.

Bert Campaneris, the A's shortstop, leads with 451,244, followed by Ed Brinkman of Detroit with 199,908.

Boston's Carlton Fisk has 357,040 to lead the catchers. Bill Freehan of Detroit is second with 236,055.

Behind Jackson and Frank Robinson in the outfield is Detroit's Al Kaline with 266,350. His teammate, Willie Horton, Bobby Murcer of New York and Jeff Burroughs of Texas followed.

The balloting by baseball fans throughout the nation will continue through July 7.

Pitchers and reserves for the July 23 game at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh will be selected by the managers.

Cox provides excitement

Eugene Cox connected for an inside the park home run Thursday night to highlight Jr. Babe Ruth baseball play at VFW stadium and spark Nowell Realty to a 14-3 victory over KBEW. Elliott- Newton took advantage of eight Harts errors for a 16-6 six inning win.

Nowell Realty had to go only four and one half innings before claiming the win by the 10-run rule, scoring nine runs in the second, four in the third and one in the fourth.

Elvis stars in baseball

Elvis Mike Cayton is the catcher for the Portageville Senior Babe Ruth Team. He's currently batting .480 after seven ball games and he has driven in 19 runs with five home run blasts. Two of these home run shots were estimated at 450 feet and then some.

Cayton's coach, Kirk Stewart, described him like this. "Fundamentally he's as sound as a catcher should be. He has an excellent arm and does everything right. I would call him a prospect for all the major colleges in the nation. At bat, he's aggressive as most good hitters are. He not only hits for average, but also the long ball. In fact, he's 12 for 25 at the plate with five home runs, three doubles, a triple and three singles. He also has 19 RBI's in seven games and has scored 12 runs himself. And, he's only struck out twice in the seven games. He's just unbelievable, and I find it hard to describe, you've got to see him! He's the best 17 year old catcher I've ever seen."

Cayton is a 17 yea old, who'll be a senior in high school when school resumes. His ability is complimented by his desire to play baseball on the college level and as he says "Pro Ball if I get some breaks."

Mike Cayton, a name you should watch for if you're from Southeast Missouri and want to see a southeast boy "make it". He may just be on television some day. By the way, the Portageville Senior Babe Ruth Teams record is 1-6.

SEMO Indians sign hitter

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Skip Morgan, who played his first two years of collegiate baseball at Florissant Valley Community College in St. Louis, has declared his intention to enroll at Southeast Missouri State University and continue his diamond career.

A catcher, Morgan hit .340 for Florissant Valley this spring and had five home runs. He played his high school baseball at Mehlville in St. Louis.

Indian coach Joe Uhls said he is tickled to recruit Morgan. "We had two senior catchers this year," Uhls said, "so naturally the first thing I went after was a catcher, and I think we've got a good one in Skip."

Southeast Missouri State could only manage a 6-6 record in MIAA play this year, but otherwise it was a good spring. The Indians had an overall mark of 17-13, establishing a new record for wins in a single season by a Uhls- coached team.

Early in the season Uhls chalked up his 150th career victory as a coach, and just this week the top Indians pitcher, Galem McSpadden of Puxico, signed a professional contract with the San Diego Padres.

Southeast signs Ala. prep star

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A Birmingham, Ala., youth who was a member of Alabama's Triple A state championship team last season will enroll at Southeast Missouri State University and play basketball for the Indians, Coach Bob Cradic has announced.

He is 18 - year - old Charlie Lewis, the best shooter on Birmingham's Glenn High School squad. Lewis averaged 20 points per game as a senior, hitting 59 per cent of his field goal attempts and 85 per cent of his free throw tries.

The Glenn team finished its season with a 35-0 record.

Lewis, the son of Ardelle Lewis of 1820½ First Street South, Birmingham, also grabbed 10 rebounds per game and averaged six assists and four steals per contest.

Going at either guard or forward, the 6-3, 177- pound player was chosen an all-state performer.

Cowboys set tryout camp

The Dallas Cowboys have announced they will hold tryout camps next week in Jackson, Mississippi, and Tulsa, Oklahoma, for men interested in a professional football career.

The camps will be held at Memorial Stadium in Jackson at 10 a.m. on Saturday, June 29, and at Skelly Stadium in Tulsa at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 30.

A similar camp at Texas Stadium in Dallas earlier this spring resulted in four players being signed to NFL contracts. They will report to training camp along with the other Cowboys rookies on July 7 in Thousand Oaks, California.

Gil Brandt, Cowboys Vice President for Personnel Development, set the following guidelines for the Jackson and Tulsa camps:

--Those wishing to take part must have no high school or college eligiblity remaining.

-- Each player who works out must assume responsibility for any personal injury incurred during the camps.

-- Each player must provide his own transportation to and from the camps.

-- Each player should bring his own workout equipment (shorts or sweat clothes, and football shoes). The Cowboys will have none available for loan.

-- There will be no contact work.

--There is no need to call or write the Cowboys in advance of the camps.

SHOULD YOUR "SECOND CAR" BE A NEW PICKUP?

MY DODGE BOYS HAVE THE ANSWER!

(AND IT'S PACKED WITH PLUS-VALUE FEATURES.)

DODGE SWEPTLINE PICKUP.

Dodge pickups have always been known for their great features such as double-wall construction, Electronic Ignition, and more. But did you know that the United States Auto Club recently conducted tests that showed what great gas mileage our Dodge pickups can get? It did.

The trucks tested were Dodge, Ford, and Chevy ½-ton jobs. Results were conclusive—our Dodge got better gas mileage than the Chevy and slightly better gas mileage than the Ford in highway driving. Not impressed? Consider this, the Dodge we're talking about was powered with a 318 V8 while the Ford and Chevy had standard six-cylinder engines!

Our 318 V8 delivered six-cylinder economy with V8 performance. No wonder Dodge has the pick of the pickups. Of course, the mileage you'll get depends on many things including how and where you drive and the condition of your truck.

What's the law?

The case of the lying boy friend

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Stanley reeled in Maggie with a good line. Although he was already married, he convinced her to set up housekeeping with him on his promise that he would get a divorce and marry her.

His promise, however, carried a lot of wait. In fact, he succeeded in putting off the issue for several years by telling Maggie one contrived story after another.

The result? Before Maggie could get Stanley to stand up before a minister, he had to be laid out in front of one. He went and died.

Taking a dim view of Stanley's alleged deception, Maggie sued his estate for damages on the grounds of fraud.

"Stanley deserves a big tombstone," she told the judge, "because he was a monumental liar. He never intended to marry me. Obviously, he only intended to have the pleasure of living with me."

"It was her own fault," responded the administrator of Stanley's estate. "She should have known better than to become involved with a married man. And worse, she should have known better than to get involved with one that lied."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Maggie to collect for Stanley's unkept promise?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an agreement by a married man to marry another woman is, in effect, an agreement to obtain a divorce and an agreement to obtain a divorce is against public policy and void. Consequently, concluded the judge, Stanley's romise was illegal and a person cannot base a lawsuit on an illegal promise

SeMo Boy Scouts set safe driving road rally

POPLAR BLUFF — The Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts of America will sponsor a council- wide Explorer Safe Driving Road Rally that will start and finish in Poplar Bluff on June 29.

Explorer adviser Tony Dolle from the Air Post in Poplar Bluff stated that "A rally is a contest of driving skill and of the ability to follow directions." He added, "It is most definitely not a race! Cars will drive below posted speed limits and safety will be emphasized."

Ken Myles of Cape Girardeau, council Exploring chairman, says the rally will be open to any Explorer who lives in the Southeast Council area. Registration forms are available at the council Boy Scout office in Cape Girardeau or through any of the five district scout executives.

The rally will start in the back parking lot at the Valley Plaza in Poplar Bluff with registration beginning at 7 a.m. Components of the day- long event will include a driver's school, a parade through Poplar Bluff, a tire warmup and an odometer check. The driving will take place in and around Poplar Bluff and the Lake Wappapello area.

An awards banquet is set for 6 p.m. that evening, where first, second and third place trophies will be given to three different two- man teams.

Two Explorers will man each car with one driving and the other acting as navigator. The winning team will be eligible to compete in the 1975 regional road rally, and the winners of that event will go to the national finals in Detroit, Mich.

Scout officials ask that Explorers preregister for the rally by June 25. A $3 per car fee should accompany each registration. Late entries may register at the rally with a fee of $3.50.

Bounty of Good Cooks

Editor's Note

When good cooks get together, it is almost certain that sometime during the gathering the conversation will turn to recipes. And the best compliment that a cook can receive is the request for the recipe of a dish that has just been served.

To provide more cooks the opportunity to acquire new recipes for their files, the Daily Standard presents their fourth annual cookbook. For this supplement, we have collected recipes from the favorite files of many Southeast Missouri cooks, so that others may enjoy the good taste of a tried and tested recipe.

We have also featured a few of Southeast Missouri's good cooks. In doing so, we offer you a peak into their lives, their kitchens and their recipe files.

We especially want to thank those who have shared their favorites or originals through this edition. Thanks must also go to the advertisers who made it possible to present this cookbook supplement for the reader's enjoyment and taste buds.

So, get out your recipe files and a pair of scissors or a pen and be prepared to find many new favorites to serve your family and friends.

Art of cooking was challenge for Mrs. Helen Currin

By
SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

CHARLESTON — Mastering the art of cooking was a challenge faced by determination for Mrs. Helen Currin, who laughingly refers to herself as "a bride who couldn't boil water" when she was first married.

She attributes much of her knowledge and success with cooking to her husband of 35 years, Marshall Currin, who came to Charleston in 1924. Shortly after arriving here, he opened the Creole Cafe, which he and Mrs. Currin operated after their marriage until his retirement in January of this year.

Mrs. Currin said the most helpful hint she could give a new cook would be to keep trying and to follow a recipe, especially for baking. "When I first started, I sometimes baked as many as three cakes, all the same kind, in one day before getting one to turn out the way it should. I was always forgetting to put something in, but I was determined to do it right," she said.

Mrs. Currin, Charleston's Woman of the Year in 1970 and a member of the R-I School District Board of Education for six years, is presently employed by the Urban Renewal Agency as a community organizer.

She was instrumental in organizing a nutrition program for Charleston's senior citizens. Each day she helps prepare a hot noon meal, which is served to some 65 to 70 persons in the community center.

Preparing barbecued meats for the cafe became one of her specialties. Mrs. Currins prefers to do her barbecuing outside and is planning to have a barbecue pit built in the back yard of the family's new home on Finney Street. She said the secret of good barbecuing is to cook the meat slow and never use a sauce which contains sugar. The sugar in the sauce tends to cause the meat to crust over too soon and turn dark before the meat has had time to absorb the sauce.

Combine above ingredients. Mrs. Currin says amounts of cayenne, black pepper and salt used depends on individual taste.

Place the mixture in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Continue cooking on slow heat for about 40 minutes. The mixture will thicken, but should it be watery a little cornstarch may be added. It will keep in the refrigerator for several weeks.

To barbecue spare ribs, first wash, then sprinkle with salt and pepper. Heat the ribs thoroughly over a hot, slow fire. Brush with the barbecue sauce and cover with heavy foil to retain the steam for tenderness. Cook the ribs on one side about an hour, baste again with the sauce, turn to other side, and cook about another hour.

Chicken barbecued outdoors can be prepared the same way and cooked approximately the same length of time. Again the secret is to cook slow and cover with heavy foil to prevent dryness and help tenderize the meat. If desired, a sauce with sugar may be used for chicken, but you should wait intil the chicken is almost done before basting.

PEPPER STEAK

1½ to 2 lbs. beef round steak
2 tbsp. soy sauce
2 to 3 small white onions, cut in wedges
1 large green pepper, sliced
2 to 3 chopped garlic bulbs
3 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
1 tsp. garlic powder, if desired
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut beef round steak in thin strips. Salt and pepper to taste. Place meat in heavy skillet with just enough water to cover steak. Add soy sauce to water and cook until tender. Be sure to keep enough water in the skillet to form a gravy.

Add wedged onions, sliced green pepper, chopped garlic bulbs, and tomatoes. At this time the garlic powder may be added if desired. After adding vegetables, stir and cook until vegetables are done.

To thicken, a small amount of cornstarch blended with soy sauce, may be added. This will also give the dish a richer color.

CABBAGE ROLL TAMALA

1 lb. ground beef
½ lb. sausage
1 small onion, chopped
1 garlic bulb, chopped
1 cup cooked rice
1 head cabbage
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste

Mix beef and sausage. Chop onion and garlic bulb and add to meat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and garlic powder to taste. Add cooked rice. Shape mixture into balls or small loaves.

Core a cabbage head and take off outside leaves. Place the leaves in a pot with a little water until they are limber.

Roll cabbage leaves around the meatballs and fasten with toothpick.

Place a colander in a large stew pot and add water to the bottom to form a steamcooker. Place the tamalas in the colander and cook until the cabbage is done.

Pepper steak, a family favorite, is prepared by Mrs. Helen Currin of Charleston. The dish is served family style over rice. (Daily Standard photo)

Garden provides ingredients for favorite recipes

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID -- Vegetable gardens are at the peak of production and from all indications a bountiful harvest will be reaped by those who have tilled and toiled.

It has been reported that the number of gardens planted this year is comparable to the thousands of "victory" gardens during the World War II era.

An extra incentive for the increased gardening interest this year-in addition to the pleasure of planting, growing and harvesting delicious fresh vegetables--has been the demanding effort to cope with today's soaring food prices and predicted shortages.

The Louis F. Jones family who lives and farms on Route One are like most farm families and are traditional garden growers. Each year Mrs. Jones freezes and cans a great amount of vegetables and fruits.

Favorite recipes which she is sharing have been collected through the years from friends and relatives.

Her pickle and relish recipes will extend enjoyment of the summer garden into the fall and winter months. However, no offering can be made of Mrs. Jones' recipes without including her fresh apple cake which remains a favorite.

RIPE TOMATO RELISH

(4-6 pts.)

12 ripe tomatoes
3 large onions, chopped
2 green sweet peppers, chopped
1 hot pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic
3 cups brown sugar
1 tbsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. salt
2 cups vinegar

Cook slowly on low heat until thickened. Seal in sterilized jars.

PICKLED OKRA

(2 pts)

Pick fresh okra, wash and cut stem ends, leaving enough stem to hold seeds in pod.

Pack pods in two pint jars, add one small hot pepper and one garlic clove to each jar.

MIX

2 cups white vinegar
1/2 cup water
3 tbsp. salt
1 1/2 tsp. celery or mustard seed.

Pour mix over okra and seal. Set jars into a pan of warm water. Bring water in pan to boil. Let jars set in water for 10 minutes. Remove from water and cool.

CRISPY CUCUMBER LIME PICKLES

7 pounds of cucumbers, sliced crosswise or lengthwise

Mix 2 cups pickling lime to 2 gallons of water

Soak cucumber slices for 24 hours in lime water, then rinse in three different cool waters. Soak for three hours in ice and water, then remove.

Make a syrup of two quarts vinegar, four and one-four pounds sugar and 1 tbsp. salt. Pour syrup over cucumbers. Let set overnight.

Add pickling spice to suit taste, then bring mixture to a boil and boil for 35 minutes. Can in sterilized jars.

KOSHER DILL PICKLES

7 pounds cucumbers (about 40 that are three or four inches long)
1 pt. vinegar
2 qts. water
1 cup salt

Pack clean, washed cucumbers in jar. To each jar add 1 large head of dill, 1 thick onion slice and 1 clove of garlic. Boil vinegar, water and salt and fill each jar with boiling liquid. Let age for six weeks. Makes six quarts.

CHUNK PICKLES

(about 6 quarts)

2 doz. large cucumbers kept overnight in refrigerator

Cut cucumbers into chunks and cover with 1 cup salt and let stand one-half hour and drain.

MIX
1 large onion, chopped
4 cups sugar
1 tsp. black pepper
1 1/2 tsp. tumeric
1 1/2 tbsp. prepared mustard
1 qt. vinegar

Drop chunks into this mixture and boil five minutes. Seal in sterilized jars.

PEPPER HASH

(about 6 pts.)

12 green sweet peppers
6 red sweet peppers
6 yellow hot banana peppers.

Remove seeds from peppers, grind, using coarse blade of food grinder. Scald in boiling water for five minutes and then dip in cold water for five minutes. Squeeze out excess water and add the following:

6 med. onions, chopped
2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups vinegar or enough to cover
2 tsp. salt
2 tsp. pickling spice
1/2 head cabbage, chopped

Mix and heat. DO NOT BOIL. Seal while hot.

Jennifer Broughton, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Broughton of New Madrid Route One, proves with a big smile how much she likes "Dota's" (Mrs. Dorothy Jones) sweet crunchy lime pickles.

Dudley cook prefers simple dishes

By WANDA ATCHLEY

Let me declare my prejudice at the start. I was lucky enough recently to be served a dish prepared by Mrs. Mary Morgan of Dudley.

I was served this delicious piece of an old fashioned cocoa cake while visiting at the Bloomfield Area Child Care Center, where Mrs. Morgan is employed as cook. She serves breakfast, lunch and an afternoon snack to the 17 area youngsters registered at the center.

Mary and her husband Virgil live at Dudley Route One and are the parents of three married children. Her grandson, aged 11, has also lived in her home since he was a young child.

Mrs. Morgan began her career as cook at the center last October and prior to that time had never cooked professionally. She said she learned to cook as a young girl, mostly from necessity, as she was the oldest of nine children. Mrs. Morgan says she is not a gourmet cook, but cooks plain and simple dishes geared to everyday living.

Elizabeth Welborn, organizational director of the center, says of Mrs. Morgan, "She is the type of dedicated employe who stayed overnight alone at the center, for several nights, during last winter's ice storm, so that it would not be necessary for her to miss a day of work."

The following recipe's are a collection of Mrs. Morgan's favorites. The chicken and dressing is her own original recipe and the spaghetti sauce recipe has been revised to her personal liking.

Pinch of chili powder
1 tsp. rosemary
1 tsp. oregano
Salt and pepper

Season chops with salt and pepper and brown in hot skillet. Remove chops and drain off all but 1 tbsp. fat. Slice two onions and brown in fat with minced garlic. Add hot water, tomato soup, diced green onions, diced celery, chopped green peppers, chopped parsley and rice. Season with salt and pepper, mix well and pour over chops in casserole.

Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) one hour and fifteen minutes or until rice and meat are tender. If rice becomes dry, add a little hot water.

Mrs. Moore 'loves to do buffet foods'

By MARY NOLEN

"It makes a great deal of difference liking to cook when you have a family that enjoys eating," Mrs. Jim Moore, 314 West North St., says.

A multi- talented homemaker, Mrs. Moore is the wife of Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore. They have three children, James E. Moore IV, 9; John David, 7; and Verona, 5.

Mrs. Moore, a former school teacher, is involved in several organizations when not busy in the kitchen. During the winter months when her children are in school, she works about four days a week in her husband's office as a secretary. She works there during the summer months only when she is needed. "I'd rather spend the summer with the children," she said.

A native of Charleston, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Giltz. Mrs. Moore is Scott County co- chairman of Southeast Missouri Democrats for the national Democratic telethon, has been involved in the heart fund program for the past five years, and has worked in the Girl Scout Day Camp and Young Democrats. She is vice president of Women Democratic Club, ticket saleswoman for the community concert and teaches Sunday School and Bible School at the First United Methodist Church.

"Jim and I have always cooked together as a team. Sometimes we just get out the cook books and read them looking for a different dishes to try," Mrs. Moore said.

Of all of the different categories of recipes, Mrs. Moore said her least favorite to make is desserts.

"I love to do buffet types of food ... and I love to experiment with spices and wines," she said.

"When I am asked for a recipe I always give it out ... I don't believe in saying, 'It's a new recipe, and I had rather not give it out.' as some people will say," she remarked.

Some of Mrs. Moore's recipes follow.

SPINACH SALAD

1 package fresh spinach
4 cups chopped scallion
1 medium onion
1 box un- frozen peas
6 to 8 hard boiled eggs
1 lb. fried bacon

1 package ranch dressing

Mix in blender until smooth and pour over salad.

This can be used as a complete meal or a side dish. Serves 2 to 4.

Place a small pan of boiling water in oven when baking bread to keep rolls from drying out. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes.

According to Mrs. Moore the rolls that are not eaten can be used in her next recipes. Both are favorites of her family.

HOT CHICKEN

Core out hard rolls and stuff with following.

2 cups diced chicken, turkey, ham or tuna
1 cup diced American cheese
2 tbsp. sweet pickle relish

Bake at 375 approximately 10 minutes.

The sugar cookie recipe which was given to Mrs. Moore by her great-grandmother originally called for butter the size of 4 hen eggs, double handful sugar, 1 egg, 1 cap of vanilla, 2 double handfuls sugar, and 1 big pinch soda. Mrs. Moore said her mother has preserved the original recipe.

PINEAPPLE SHEET CAKE

Mrs. Jones' lunchroom recipes popular in area

By JEANNE MAYNARD

When food from a school lunchroom tastes so good that mothers ask for recipes, something good is cookin'. Mrs. Elois Jones of Dorena says many of the dishes she and Mrs. Everett Dunn of Dorena prepared as cooks for Dorena Elementary School were favorites of many students and their mothers.

In the nearly 20 years Mrs. Jones cooked for the school she says she saw many changes in the school before it closed during spring of 1973.

When the school opened in 1952, it needed money for the first hot lunches. Mrs. Jones tells how the community helped: "That first year, several of the women of the community gathered at one home. We went from house to house, gathering chickens and vegetables that people could donate. From that came a chicken fry that fed about 200 people."

The chicken fry netted profits that went to the Parent- Teacher Association for the school's food.

Mrs. Jones says she and Mrs. Dunn cooked without many modern conveniences.

"Everything was made from scratch, and before the sink was built dishes were washed in two tubs on stands with another container for rinsing."

Here are some of Mrs. Jones' recipes that have become favorites through the years.

BAKED BEANS

2 14½-oz. cans pork and beans
½ cup vinegar
2 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tbsp. green peppers, chopped
1 tbsp. pimentoes, chopped
2 tbsp. onions, chopped

Combine all ingredients in large baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

CHEESY POTATOES

5 to 6 medium potatoes
Dash of salt
1 cup cubed cheese
2 tbsp. butter or margarine

Peel potatoes and cover with water. Cook over medium heat until nearly done. Melt butter or margarine on potatoes. A little milk may need to be added. Turn to low heat and lightly stir in cheese.

APPLE CRISP

4 to 5 cups fresh apples sliced and cooked
1½ cups brown sugar
1½ cups flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup coconut
½ cup melted butter
2 cups water (if apples seem dry)

Mix dry ingredients. Pour apples into baking dish. Pour melted butter or margarine on apples. Sprinkle dry ingredients on top. Bake at 350 degrees 40 minutes.

YEAST ROLLS

1 qt. sweet milk
1 cup sugar
2 tbsp. salt
2 tbsp. (heaping) butter
6 to 8 cups flour
3 tbsp. baking powder
4 cakes yeast
½ cup water
1 tbsp. sugar

Scald milk and set aside to cool. Mix sugar, salt and butter in another pan and then add to milk when cooled. Mix flour and baking powder, add to mixture.

Dissolve yeast and add to mixture. Let dough rise until double. Then it will be ready to pinch into rolls. Dough may be stored in refrigerator.

Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until golden brown.

The following was developed by Mrs. Nellie Williams, wife of the first superintendent of Dorena Elementary School. She worked with Mrs. Jones for eight years.

SLOPPY JOE HAMBURGERS

1 lb. ground beef
2 tbsp. minced onion
2 tbsp. minced green pepper
Dash of salt
Dash of pepper
½ cup mustard
½ cup ketchup

Mix all ingredients in skillet on top of range. Cook until meat is done and bubbly hot. Spoon onto buns.

1 cup sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. butter
1 cup sugar

MONDAY NIGHT BASEBALL TO COVER PHILLIES AT EXPOS; INDIANS AT RED SOX WILL BE GAME-OF-WEEK TELECAST

The National League East, a wide open and surprising place of business from top to bottom, matches two of the big surprises -- the Philadelphia Phillies and the Montreal Expos -- in Monday Night Baseball on the NBC Television Network June 24 (7:15 p.m. CDT).

The Phillies - Expos tussle will be telecast immediately following "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" which starts at 7 p.m. The backup game pairs the Cincinnati Reds and Houston Astros in Houston.

On Saturday, June 22, Major League Baseball's Game - of - the - Week on NBC-TV will present a contest between the highly competitive Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox, a team on a hot streak, in Boston's Fenway Park. The backup contest brings together the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs in Chicago's Wrigley Field.

At the start of the season, neither team was considered to be much of a threat for championship honors. With the campaign in its third month, the Phillies and Expos are waging a spirited battle for the division lead.

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER

TARZAN SWIMS FOR HIS HEALTH

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)— Johnny Weissmuller, who spent a good portion of his life either in the water or swinging through trees, is back in the water again, this time for health purposes. Weissmuller, who was 70 on June 2, broke his hip last December during a fall at Caesars Place hotel here, where he had been employed as a host-greeter.

After four months in the hospital the former star of 19 "Tarzan" films and holder of five Olympic gold medals for swimming has taken to the family pool for daily workouts to build up his shattered hip.

Weissmuller has retired but is thinking about making some television commercials to keep busy, although swimming and golf already take up a large part of his day.

In addition to the gold medals, Weissmuller set 57 world records as a swimmer, was named to the Helms Hall of Fame three times and has been honored as the greatest swimmer in the first half of this century.

He played Jungle Jim in the television series of the same name in the 1950s and now serves as a director of the National Swimming Hall of Fame at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

'TENAFLY' HAS TRIED IT ALL FROM JANITOR TO WRITER

It seemed inevitable that James McEachin, Harry Tenafly in "Tenafly" the NBC Mystery Movie, would eventually become an actor.

He had tried just about everything else. He has been a clerk, soldier, fireman, policeman, writer, song wirter, recording executive, janitor and at one point a cutter in a brassiere factory.

McEachin served for six years, part of the hitch in Korea wher he suffered serious combat wounds.

After the service he went back to Hackensack where he took tests for both the police and fire departments. He scored the highest of all those tested and became the second black on the Hackensack Fire Department.

Seeking more action, he switched after several months to the Hackensack Police Department, serving for four years. Disillusioned with police work and bothered by his war wounds, he quit and headed for southern California, where he spent a year in a veterans hospital recovering from his ailments.

While in the hospital he took up writing and sold a piece to Hep Magazine for $25. Then he tried song writing and later became an independent record producer.

McEachin enjoyed considerable success as a recording executive and then his new career took a nose dive. It was 1966 and he was wide open to suggestions.

"A friend suggested acting in the movies," says McEachin. "I said, 'might as well,' and that was that."

His film credits include "True Grit," "Hello, Dolly!," "The Undefeated," Play Misty for Me," "Buck and the Preacher" and "Fuzz."

On television he has guest-starred in numerous series, including "The Senator," "The FBI," "Mannix" and "Marcus Welby." He was the streetcar conductor in "That Certain Summer," a movie for television, and then he stared in "World Premiere: "Tenafly."

McEachin lives with his wife and three children in Encino.

DEATH OF KUNG FU STAR BRUCE LEE REMAINS MYSTERY

HONG KONG (AP)—A cult venerates Kung Fu film star Bruce Lee in death.

Fan letters pour in to the studio where he worked. Release of his films in many countries sets off new waves of reaction. Foreigners arrive on pilgrimages seeking an autographed photo of the American-born Lee.

Now, nine months after he died at 33, many still consider his death a mystery.

Found unconscious by a friend, he died while being taken to a hospital. A coroner's inquest ruled he was a victim of "hypersensitivity to certain drugs." But circumstances surrounding the death were riddled with questions

Mention Lee's name in this city where he died and you are likely to be answered in hushedwhispers. Everyone, it seems, has a theory — usually grounded in superstition — about the "true" cause of the star's death.

"In Hong Kong," says one resident, "you have to worry about superstitions all the time. If a house is built with the door facing in an unlucky direction, people won't move in."

A widely circulated story says Lee died because of "bad fung chi" — bad luck — brought on when he moved to a house built on the wrong side of one of Hong Kong's nine mountain, referred to as the "Nine Dragons."

Those who tell the story say Lee was warned his house was "on the wrong side of the Dragon." He took a precaution of installing a giant mirror on the roof to ward off evil spirits. If a spirit came down toward the house it would see itself and be scared away.

Last summer, the story goes, a typhoon hit Hong Kong ripping the mirror off the roof and smashing it. Shortly thereafter Lee died.

Others have theorized that Lee died from the fight scenes for Kung Fu pictures, or that he suffered from a rare disease. There is recurring speculation — apparently unfounded — of foul play.

Lee came here as an unknown actor and rose to superstardom in such films as "The Fists of Fury" and "Enter the Dragon." Born in San Francisco and a onetime philosophy student at the University of Washington at Seattle, Lee came to Hong Kong in 1970 after producer Raymond Chou picked him for "Fists of Fury."

It was his first movie role. He had appeared in "The Green Hornet," "Batman" and "Longstreet" television series and operated a kung fu school in Los Angeles.

Executives at Golden Harvest Studios here still grieve the loss of their biggest star. At the time of his death, Lee commanded $1 million a picture in Hong Kong, where most actors make about $1,000 a film

FLIP WILSON

Star of 'The Flip Wilson Show' Thursdays, NBC Television Network

Beginning his fourth season as the star of "The Flip Wilson Show," Flip is most proud of the fact that nearly everyone he meets treats him like a neighbor who drops in every Thursday night.

He said: "Often, people just walk right up and start talking about something their Uncle George did, just like they chat with me every day. And then when the conversation is over, they say, 'See ya, later' even though they probably never will-- except I hope they see me on Thursday nights.

"I'm glad of that, because I never set out to be a star, I don't want that big distance between me and the people who watch me. I'm just a man doing his job and just like the plumbers, teachers, cooks, clerks, and mothers out there, I'm doing the best I can."

Flip's first step toward his present career began when he was Clerow Wilson, nine years old, in a Jersey City, N. J., public school. He was a last minute- replacement for a girl who was to play Nurse Clara Barton in a school play. The laughter of his classmates impressed him so much that he began to work at making people laugh.

He liked school, especially English, but because of his family's poverty and his subsequent unhappiness in a series of foster homes, he dropped out at 16 and joined the Air Force, where his commanding officer arranged for him to take courses in English and typing. Later he found himself on the Air Force lecture circuit addressing and amusing the troops on such subjects as "The Sex Life of the Coconut Crab." It was at this time that he acquired his nickname. The guys used to say, "He's flipped." So he became "Flip."

After four years in service, Flip took a job as bellhop at the Manor Plaza Hotel in San Francisco and persuaded the manager to let him do a little comedy walk-on as a drunk while a dance act changed costumes.

He soon decided to go on the road. "I looked at myself and tried to analyze what made me funny. In the end I decided that I am a story teller. I get out on stage and I take one line, just one funny line, and from that I build a story and I become different characters."

Flip played clubs mostly between Florida and the Bahamas until 1965 when Redd Foxx (star of NBC-TV's "Sanford and Son")praised him on NBC- TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." "Redd even offered me some of his material and that's something comics just don't do," says Flip. "I knew then that things were going right for me."

He was a guest on the "Tonight Show" dozens of times. Later, he hosted the show and was a guest on other top television shows before eventually headlining his own series.

Nixon lawyers say President not liable to criminal process

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers told the Supreme Court today a U.S. President "is not subject to the criminal process whether that process is invoked directly or indirectly."

But special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski responded that the framers of the Constitution "were very careful to provide for a presidency with defined and limited constitutional powers and not the prerogatives and immunities of a sovereign."

The statements were in briefs filed with the court in connection with arguments scheduled for July 8 on the President's claim of executive privilege to withhold White House tapes and documents which are wanted for the Watergate coverup trial.

In a 149-page legal brief, the White House argued that the high court should overturn a U.S. district court ruling which would require the President to turn over tape recordings of 64 conversations.

The Watergate special prosecutor says this material is essential for the trial in the Watergate cover-up case.

Oral arguments in the evidence dispute are scheduled in the Supreme Court for July 8 in a rare and historic summer session.

White House Watergate lawyer James D. St. Clair said that few cases in the nation's history "have cut so close to the heart of the basic constitutional system in which our liberties are rooted ... at its core, this is a case that turns on the separation of powers."

"All other considerations are secondary, because preserving the integrity of the separation of powers is vital to the preservation of our Constitution as a living body of fundamental law," St. Clair contended.

Jaworski argued that "under our Constitution the people are sovereign and the President, though chief executive and chief of state, remains subject to the law."

"Although there have been a few notorious instances in our history in which presidents have refused to give appropriate force to judicial decrees, or are reported to have made disdainful statements about the decisions, none involved directly disobedience of a court order," Jaworski wrote. "More importantly, it is the judgment of history that those were essentially lawless departures from the constitutional norm."

The Supreme Court will review an order by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica directing Nixon to turn over tapes and documents concerning 64 White House conversations to the judge for his examination.

Sirica will preside over the trial scheduled to begin Sept. 9 of six men, including former close associates of the President, who are charged with attempting to cover up White House involvement in the 1972 burglary of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate building in Washington.

"President Nixon cannot be a proper judge of whether the greater public interest lies in disclosing the subpoenaed evidence for use at trial or in withholding it," said Jaworski.

"He is now the subject of an impeachment inquiry ... and the subpoenaed evidence may have a material bearing on whether he is impeached

Bernie man bound over in felonious assault case

BLOOMFIELD — Don "Mudcat" Lindsey of Bernie was bound over to Circuit Court for trial following a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday before Judge Koss W. Blomeyer.

Lindsey is accused of felonious assault on Leonard Stanfield of Bernie on May 4, which resulted in Stanfield's death.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Morris James, owner of the Weiner's Department Store in Bernie.

James testified that Stanfield came into the store around 3:30 p.m. on May 4 and bought a pair of shoes. He said Stanfield was attempting to pay for the shoes when Lindsey entered the store.

He said Lindsey asked him what type of bill Stanfield used to pay for the shoes. He answered, a $20 bill. Lindsey then asked James to take back the shoes and give him the $20, stating that the money belonged to him.

James said he asked Lindsey what the trouble was, and he answered, "It's something we can work out."

He said the two men then left the store with Lindsey holding on to Stanfield's arm. He said he then turned to assist other customers in the store until he heard a noise outside.

James stated he then ran outside and discovered Stanfield lying in the street, apparently unconscious. He said he then asked Lindsey to assist him in getting Stanfield out of the street. As they prepared to do so, he said a Bernie police car drove up, and police took over from there.

When asked if Stanfield was intoxicated, he replied that he had been drinking but felt that he was not qualified to say if he was intoxicated.

Rickey Lee, 16, of Bernie was the second witness and testified that he witnessed the fight from a parked car in a parking lot directly across the street from the site of the fight. He said Lindsey hit Stanfield one time with his right hand, causing Stanfield to fall and strike his upper body on the curb and hit his head on the street.

Darrell Grubbs, Bernie police officer, then testified he was driving past the scene when he saw Stanfield on the street. He said his first impression was that Stanfield was intoxicated. He said he stopped his car and Lindsey asked him if he wanted this man. He replied that he did and proceeded to load Stanfield into the back seat of the police car. He said Lindsey then told him he had hit Stanfield and he was injured. He told Grubbs if he would take Stanfield to a doctor he would pay the fee.

Grubbs said he then took Stanfield to a local doctor who examined him and ordered him sent to Dexter Memorial Hospital. Grubbs testified that it was

Fire destroys farm house near Sikeston

A small frame farm house four miles south of Sikeston was destroyed by fire about 8 p.m. Thursday.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Darnall.

Firemen from Sikeston and Matthews fought the blaze, but Sikeston Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the house was already beyond saving by the time the first fire truck arrived.

The fire started from an electrical short circuit on the back porch and spread into the house.

The Darnalls lost all of their belongings except a sewing machine.

Anyone who would like to donate clothing to the Darnalls is asked to contact the Sikeston police department, the city manager's office or, after 2 p.m., Francis Liggons, at 471-1540.

Darnall wears 31-32 pants, a medium shirt and size 9½ shoes. Mrs. Darnall wears an odd size and makes her own clothes.

Sikeston firemen were called away from the house at 8:54 p.m. by an apparent false alarm at Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic on Plaza Drive.

Linnemeyer said someone may have seen smoke from a burning trash barrel and thought it was coming from the diagnostic center. He said no fire was found at the center.

At 4:05 p.m. Thursday, firemen were called to the 600 block of William Street when a transformer caught fire in an alley. The damage was confined to the transformer.

Roadblock set by Democrats

Roadblocks will be set up in Sikeston from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday to collect money for the national Democratic fund raising telethon, according to Dick Flotron of Festus, Southeast Missouri coordinator for the June 29-30 telethon.

Flotron said the roadblocks will be located along Main Street, Malone Avenue and South Kingshighway.

Porter gives $1,524 check to County Court

BENTON — Scott County Treasurer Hess Porter and County Collector Tom Marshall attended Thursday's Scott County Court meeting to discuss shortages in their offices disclosed in a Scott County audit report issued this week by the office of State Treasurer John Ashcroft for the four-year period ending Dec. 31, 1973.

Porter presented a $1,524 check to the court for the full amount of the reported shortage.

The audit report stated that the treasurer had a net cash shortage of $1,524 in his bank accounts. According to the report, the treasurer did not deposit all monies received and certain monies received were not deposited in the proper bank accounts.

Marshall said the excess commissions the report said was retained by the collector's office of $2,698 came about as a result of an attorney general's opinion on collector's commissions on delinquent tax.

Marshall said this opinion is being challenged in court by the collector's association. According to Marshall, he hopes to recover the commissions if the court reverses the attorney general's opinion.

Marshall said collectors in other counties have put the excess commission in an escrow account pending the decision of the court. However, Marshall said he chose to repay his to the political subdivisions.

Presiding Judge Les D.Lankford announced that he had received a letter from Bert Shulimson, director of the Missouri Division of Welfare, concerning an increase in the state's appropriation for homeless, dependent and neglected children funds. Beginning in 1975, Lankford said the foster care boarding rates will be increased.

Effective with care provided on and after July 1, an increase in foster care payments will be as dollows:

In the age group of 0-5, the present payment is $68 per month, which will be increased to $100 per month. In the 6-12 age group now receiving $83 per month, the new payment will be $125. The 13-17 age group will be raised form $96 to $140.

The court approved the transfer of $4,413 in county funds, as follows:

County revenue fund to school fund, $3,790; health center fund to school fund, $507; fees due other funds to school fund, $116; treasurer to school fund, $637; treasurer to special road and bridge fund, $782; criminal cost fund, $66; and Johnson grass fund, $39.

Storage space available; most farmers are selling

By JEANNE MAYNARD

The number of storage bins collected by farmers in Scott County over the past five years could hold as much as 2.8 million bushels of wheat, according to a survey made by Kenneth Vowels, executive director of the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office at Benton. If growers used that space, Vowels said they could definitely affect the wheat market this year.

However, Bill Volner, a clerk at Scott County Milling Co. in Sikeston, says "the big majority of farmers are selling."

According to Volner, the current price of $3.67 a bushel while farmers are averaging 30 to 45 bushels an acre is not bad, even though this is a $2.33 drop from January's high of $6 a bushel and yields are down slightly from last year due to unfavorable weather and plant diseases.

Richard McIntosh, area farm management specialist at the University of Missouri Extension Center at Benton, said the spring freeze set wheat growth back two weeks. Due to the growth delay, aphids — a plant lice — spread a virus through much of the local wheat. It infected leaves, causing them to turn yellow and red, then die.

McIntosh said septoria leaf blight killed other leaves and affected plant stems later in the growing season.

Just prior to the spring harvest, local farmers may have noticed a dirty look in their wheat fields. McIntosh said the dark brown color was caused by septoria glume blotch which infested the heads of wheat and shriveled the grain.

"The combination of freeze damage and the diseases decreased wheat yields from 30 to 50 per cent," McIntosh said.

Seed treatments and leaf inspection can help prevent these yield-cutting diseases, according to Dr. Charles Baldwin, plant pathologist at the University of Missouri Delta Center in Portageville.

Dr. Baldwin said farmers who find aphids in their fields may curtail their effect by spraying the wheat crop during the fall when aphid population builds.

Leaf blight and glume blotch are carried into wheat fields from crop residue, Dr. Baldwin said. He says seed treatments may help control the disease although this has not been recommended in the past.

The reason, he said, was "it was not economically wise to treat seeds at costs of $3.25 to $3.50 an acre when wheat brought only $1.35 a bushel."

As wheat prices rise, plant specialists may change their ideas about fungicide treatments. Certified seed producers should particularly consider treatments, according to Dr. Baldwin.

With modern technology, the lifting of wheat acreage allotments by the government and ample storage space, Southeast Missourians will surely be seeing more amber waves of grain in the future.

Inspecting grain

David Waters, 224 Collins St., an employe on the Roy Recker farm, inspects grain before it goes into the bin. The grain will be sold this fall as certified seed.

City clerk seeking voters who moved

In compliance with Missouri's new voter registration law, City Clerk John Vaughn has placed a legal advertisement in today's edition of The Daily Standard in an attempt to locate registered voters who have moved without leaving a forwarding address

The city clerk's office is being helped by the local post office in making a canvass of the addresses of the city's registered voters.

Vaughn said that when a forwarding address was available from the post office, he mailed a letter to the voter informing him their registration will be canceled if they have moved outside the city.

When it is determined through the canvass that the voter has moved to another location in the city, the city clerk's office will move the voter's registration automatically and inform the voter of the change in voting precinct. This will be done by mailing the information to the new address furnished by the post office.

Voters who still live at the same address as when they registered and voters who have kept the clerk informed when their address changed will not be affected by the canvass.

The advertisement, which appears on pages 6 and 7, lists the names of voters for whom the post office has no forwarding address.

The persons listed must contact the city clerk's office before June 28 if they still live in the city and wish to remain a registered voter.

Vaughn said women who have changed their names because of marriage are required to reregister and may do so at the City Administrative Building.

He said he hopes to have the canvass completed in the city within the next two weeks.

Rodeo queen entries sought

Entries for Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Queen are now being accepted by the club, according to queen committee chairman John David.

Any girl between 18 and 21 years old is eligible to enter the contest. Following the entry deadline on July 6, the Jaycee Wives will interview the contestents for personality evaluation.

After the personality interviews, five finalists will be selected. From this group, the queen and two alternates will be selected.

The queen's duties will include riding a horse in the grand entry parade during each rodeo performance, personal appearances throughout the Sikeston trade area, riding in the rodeo parade and generally promoting the interests of the rodeo.

David said entries will be accepted from interested girls, members of civic groups or individuals who know a girl who would be qualified.

Names of contestents should be mailed to Jaycee Rodeo Queen, Box 907, Sikeston, or by phoning David at 471-1520. Girls will be given entry forms to complete and return to the Jaycees.

Names will not be released

The names of accident patients admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital after treatment in the emergency room will no longer be released with the daily list of accident patients treated in the emergency room. Only the names of patients released after emergency treatment will be released, according to Pat Jones, assistant hospital administrator.

CONGRESS ON BUDGET CONTROL

The House and Senate are now working on a bill to give Congress more power over the Federal budget.

Proponents of the measures claim the White House now controls the budget and such control rightfully belongs in Congress.

The bill would set up budget committees in the House and the Senate which would consider the annual budget as a whole. An overall spending program would be drawn up and the total would be divided among 14 categories such as defense, agriculture, and welfare. Each of the budget committees would report a concurrent resolution April 15 containing the targets for the next fiscal year. They would have to be passed by May 15 and would be used as guidelines for the appropriations bills.

On September 15, another resolution would be acted upon to adjust the initial overall figures to any changes in the economy. If the appropriations passed exceeded the ceilings set for the 14 categories, another resolution would be proposed for action by September 25 to make cutbacks.

The measure under consideration also provides curbs on the presidential power to impound funds authorized by Congress. To carry out this program the legislation provides a budget office for Congress.

The question arises as to whether this gigantic turnabout in the handling of the budget by Congress will reduce the public debt, stop "pork barrel" appropriation bills or save the taxpayer a single penny.

We do not believe it will.

The White House usually has a lot to say about the budget, so has Congress. It is part of the balance of power provided in our Constitution.

We can't see where adding two new committees in Congress and setting up a second Budget Bureau is going to help matters at all.

We suggest, rather, that Congress stop playing politics with the taxpayer's money and cooperate with the Executive Branch of the government to bring the cost of the Federal government to a sensible figure.

GOLD IN YOUR
CRANKCASE

Every little bit helps in the fight against inflation, which is why more and more Americans are changing their own automobile engine oil. Some 35 to 40 per cent of all auto oil is now sold over the counter.

But every little bit hurts, too, in the fight against pollution and waste of natural resources. An estimated 400 to 450 million gallons of crankcase oil is simply being dumped every year.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, would require that all oil sold over the counter be packaged in reasealable, returnable containers carrying a 10-cent deposit. Dealers would also have to maintain used- oil collection points.

The idea is only to protect the environment but to invigorate the oil- refining industry, which in the 1960s had about 150 companies reclaiming nearly 300 million gallons a year. Today, less than 40 companies are processing about 100 million gallons of used oil a year.

Not only does oil never wear out, thus constituting a recyclable resource, but according to engineers at Calspan Corp., the sludge left over after re-refining contains as much lead as low- grade ores now being mined commercially. (By a process not completely undersood, lubricating oil extracts some of the lead from additives in gasoline.)

By using a method it has developed, the company says that six to nine million pounds of lead could be recovered annually from re-refined crankcase oil, with a market value of up to $1.7 million.

If all the oil that is currently being discarded were re-refined, an additional 27 million pounds of lead worth more than $4 million could be recovered.

RAMPANT
'MANSLAUGHTER'

The Communications Workers union is planning to run a full-page ad in a number of magazines calling the American system "the fairest ever devised by man."

Everywhere but in Ms. magazine, the voice of the modern feminist movement, reports the Wall Street Journal.

In Ms., the ad will read, "the fairest ever devised." Period.

Isn't it getting just a little bit silly, this business of attempting to root out all vestiges of alleged sexism in the language by, for instance, changing perfectly good words like "chairman" to atrocity like "chairperson" — and now, by expunging the term "man," which nobody ever thought meant anything but all human beings?

Or should we say, "hupersons"?

CAN'T RULE
BALLOT

Further examination of the proposed new campaign reform law that the Missourians for Honest Elections seek to place before the voters has revealed a provision that would make it impossible for lawyers and doctors to run for political office in Missouri.

The provision in question is one that would require candidates for political office to list "any direct fees, retainers and gratuities in excess of $500 received during the past year."

This section, if enacted into law, would put lawyers in the position of violating the disciplinary rules of the Supreme Court if they ran for office and revealed the names of all persons who had paid them "any direct fees, retainers and gratuities in excess of $500" during the past year.

Under the disciplinary rules this would constitute a breach of the confidential relationship between client and attorney that is recognized by law. An attorney who did this could be subject to disciplinary action by the Supreme Court and could receive any penalty up to and including disbarment.

This is a seriously crippling defect because a great many attorneys now serve in the Legislature. Lawyers, because of their background, are probably the best represented profession in political contests for legislative and judicial offices.

Doctors would have the same basic problem as lawyers in running for office because they, too, are not permitted to violate their confidential relationship with patients.

In addition to this basic objection, the provision also would impose a heavy financial penalty on lawyers and other professionals who ran for public office. If they revealed the names of all persons who paid them more than $500 in fees, retainers and gratuities in the previous year, they would stand to lose these clients.

As one attorney said, "who would go back to an attorney with another case after a lawyer published the client's name and the amount of the fee he paid?" The client would know that his name and the fee he paid probably would be made public again. His natural inclination would be to go to another attorney who would assure him that his right to confidentiality would be protected.

Campaign contributions should be disclosed completely. Professional income should remain private. Office holders who attempt to sell favors can be held accountable under conflict of interest laws.

Rather than put attorneys, doctors and other professionals in a position where they would choose not to run rather than be in jeopardy, the sponsors should remove this provision from their proposal.

SHE'S FOR THE BIRDS!

A rather fussy young woman had spent had spent nearly two hours inspecting the stock of linoleums in a certain shop. Roll after roll was broughtout by the perspiring salesman, but still she seemed dissatisfied. The salesman judged from the woman's dress that she was a person of wealth and, therefore, likely to give a fine order.

When finally he had shown her the last roll he paused in despair. "I'm extremely sorry, madam, but if you could wait I could get some more pieces from the factory. Can you call again?"

Whereupon the young woman gathered her belongings together and rose from the chair.

"Yes, do," she said, with a gracious smile, "but ask them to send something with a very small design. Something that would be suitable for putting in the bottom of a canary's cage!"

AROUND THE WORLD ON 10 GALLONS

The automobile manufacturers are switching production from large cars to small ones in response to the energy crisis and in tune with the new mood of Americans to use fewer resources more wisely.

Things are not that simple, however, for a related industry, the manufacturers of recreational vehicles — the campers and trailers and self-propelled motor homes which proliferated in astonishing numbers during the past decade.

The "RV" industry was, at recent reckoning, a $5- billion business for some 650 companies around the nation. Many marginal manufacturers have fallen by the wayside in a shake-out occasioned by the gasoline shortage.

But if necessity is the mother of invention, adversity is close kin to innovation. The industry is currently waging a campaign to convince Americans that its products are not the gas- guzzling hogs they are reputed to be and that it is not unpatriotic to own one (or contemplate owning one).

The theme of the campaign, which originated in California, where there are more manufacturers and owners of recreational vehicles than anywhere else, is "The 10-Gallon RV Weekend."

Statistics show that 92 per cent of the trips taken in recreational vehicles average from 50 to 100 miles. The industry has come up with a list of more than 1000 vacation areas and points of interest within 10-gallon reach of Los Angeles alone, based on an average gasoline consumption of about 10 miles a gallon. Similar lists are being prepared for other population centers in other parts of the country.

The industry claims that recreational vehicles account for only about 2/10ths on one per cent of total gasoline consumption in America, and points out that people on the highway or parked in a camping area are not using energy for home heating or cooling and lighting that they would be using if they stayed at home.

The "10-gallon weekend" or something similar to it, could well become the only kind of vacation many Americans, not just recreational vehicle owners, will be taking in the future if the gasoline shortage continues.

If so, the slogan, "See America First," may have to be modified with the proviso: "In the vicinity of your own backyard, that is."

GREAT POLLUTION
MENACE

The old saying that people are funny was never more true than today. In the name of conservation, environment and ecology, they propose all kinds of restrictions on today's mass production and distribution of food, clothing and energy that would require a return to individual methods of subsistence practiced by our forefathers in nature's wilderness areas. But there wouldn't be enough wild resources to supply our population. They ran out for the Indians and the white man 100 years ago.

How many families today could give up their electric or gas stoves or gasoline and furnace oil and go back to cutting their own wood, making candles and keeping a horse for transportation? We all wish to preserve our mountains, rivers and wildlife but that will have to be done in conjunction with plans and answers on how to provide the necessities of life as we devise methods to eliminate pollution caused by compounding population. It doesn't take a very smart person to see that population is the great pollution menace.

According to a news report the federal government is taking note of this fact. The Administration is organizing an office of population education to inform children in school and adults about national population growth and its adverse effects. A population affairs official in the Health, Education and Welfare Department says, "The unit will influence the spending of millions of federal dollars that now provide family planning information and environmental education." A little advice is okay, but most people aren't ready to put up with a federal agent poking his nose too far into such matters either.

FREE BERLIN'S WITNESS
LIVES ON

The official policy in West Germany now, as in the United States, is one of "detente" with communist powers. Officially, no one wants to recall the evils of communism or the fundamental contrast between their slave world and the free society of the West. At least in Berlin, still divided by the infamous Wall, the scene of so much heroism by men and women struggling to reach freedom, these truths have not been forgotten.

In West Berlin, just a few yards away from the Wall, is a museum called the House at Checkpoint Charlie. Since opening in 1961, it has been visited by more than four million travelers from all over the world. It displays photographs, diagrams and escape tools which dramatize the risks taken and the triumphs achieved by those determined to escape from communist tyranny.

Though largely self-supporting, the museum had always received a small annual appropriation from the West German government in Bonn. But since 1972, this appropriation has no longer been made. At the end of last year, this memorial to freedom was closed.

Now, however, it has reopened, thanks to the generosity of private donors from all over Germany and, most significant of all, from the captives of East Berlin. Unable themselves to escape, at least as yet, risking severe penalties if they were caught, many East Berlin citizens sent donations through the mail to reopen the place where their plight was most effectively dramatized. JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
A Tale of Two Old Pols

WASHINGTON — Chicago's embattled Mayor Richard Daley, his bossdom shaken, his power slipping, his health failing, summoned enough political strength last week for a "Last Hurrah."

From his cigar- polluted lair in city hall, he reached all the way to Washington and killed the land- use bill which would have brought order to the chaotic, wasteful development of the nation's dwindling land resources.

Daley sabotaged the bill for reasons that, quite naturally, riled the last of the big- city bosses.The bill left him no power to hand out lucrative land development contracts to his favorite contractors. Instead, most land decisions would have devolved upon the governor.

In Illinois, the governor happens to be an ambitious, anti- machine Democrat, Daniel Walker, who has dared to defy Daley.

Any legislation that would allow Walker to call the shots on land development was more than Daley could abide. So the old political war lord cracked the whip on Chicago's Democratic congressmen, all liberals, who normally would have voted with their fellow liberals for national standards to assure orderly land development.

Instead, they took their orders from Daley whose political machine turns out the voters for them on election day. The four Chicago votes against the land-use bill provided the margin which defeated the measure, 211-204.

We have spoken to the congressmen from Chicago who solemnly deny that Daley influenced their votes. As Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., explained it, the Chicago delegation felt their city was "so far ahead" of the rest of the nation in land- use planning that the bill would have had a harmful effect.

But sources close to the delegation say that Daley sent them their voting instructions. One messenger, apparently, was his own land development expert, Lou Hill, who pointedly reminded some members of the delegation of the contractors' political clout.

The Chicago mayor joined forces with President Nixon to defeat land- use standards. Both men are fighting for political survival, with aides under indictment and prosecutores pressing them at every turn.

The President withdrew his earlier support for the land- use bill under pressure from conservatives whose votes he is counting upon to save himself from impeachment. The conservatives fear the bill might trespass upon the rights of private property owners.

ERVIN'S GHOST WRITER: Senator Ervin, D-N.C., the hero of Watergate, has permitted a business lobbyist to help draft his views against the proposed Consumer Protection Agency.

Richard Leighton, a lobbyist for the Grocery Manufacturers of America, wrote part of the minority report on the legislation. In Ervin's name, Leighton warned that the bill would "create a Caesar within the federal bureaucracy."

The lobbyist embarrassingly misspelled Ervin's name which was listed as "Erwin" in the signature at the bottom of the minority report.

The proposed consumer agency would represent consumers inside the federal policy councils -- at rate hearings, for example, before the Federal Power Commission or drug hearings before the FoodandDrug Administration.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., has already passed the House, but faces a filibuster in the Senate. Two of the Senate's most long- winded orators, the avuncular Ervin and Sen. James Allen, D- Ala., are expected to try to talk the bill to death.

The bill came out of the Senate Government Operations Committee, whose chief counsel, Bob Smith, admitted that lobbyist Leighton wrote part of the minority report. Speaking for Ervin, Smith claimed that the senator opposed the legislation not because he is anti- consumer but because he is against government intervention.

Smith suggested that we ask consumer crusader Ralph Nader whether he wrote part of the majority report in favor of the Consumer Protection Agency. Speaking for Nader, Joan Claybrook said she has reviewed the majority report before it went to press but that the Nader people wrote no part of it.

NUCLEAR THREAT: A grim, secret intelligence analysis warns that India's nuclear explosion and the American- Egyptian nuclear agreement will lead to uncontrolled nuclear arms development.

The report claims that several small nations have already taken the first, secret steps toward developing nuclear arms. The analysis predicts that Egypt, Iran, Israel, Japan, Rumania, Sweden and West Germany will wind up eventually with their own nuclerar arsenals.

Only a severe United Nations crackdown, the report suggests, might halt the proliferation of nuclear weapons. The time to act was after India exploded its atomic bomb. Instead the United States followed up by offering nuclear aid to Egypt.

Although the aid is supposed to be restricted to peaceful purposes, plutonium for bombs can be obtained by reprocessing used uranium from peaceful nuclear reactors.

The spread of nuclear power increases the possibility that an irresponsible leader may get his hands on nuclear weapons. Libya's strongman, Muammar el-Qadaffi, for example, has supplied Soviet-made, shoulder- fired missiles to terrorists. A future Qadaffi might be able to furnish terrorists with nuclear bombs.

Dangerous Dominos, High Federal Men Fear Strike Wave Will Black Out U.S.

WASHINGTON — It's doubtful, with all the leakage bogging down communications in this one- story town, that anyone told energy czar John Sawhill of the recent American visit of the government-toppling British mine union chief, Joe Gormley.

But "Joe" was here and did get off quite a bit of English working- class advice during a speech to American coal diggers. Said he::

"In Britain, there is a saying there are three things you don't trifle with: the treasury, the Pope and the miners."

He was cheered as he stood with American mine union leaders. The sound has re-echoed into the government's innermost circles.

Reliable information from the coal fields, reflecting the American diggers' new adulation for their British comrades, discloses there will be a series of coal strikes shortly after the miners return from their two- week summer vacation. So Sawhill has set up a coal industry advisory committee to develop contingency plans for what may be one of the most dangerous black fuel shortages since World War II.

So intricately interwoven is American industry that clogged bottlenecks in just a handful of mine areas and key plants in various sectors could throw a million people out of work this winter.

Few realize how critical to the nation and the working people themselves this dependence of whole industries on just a few pits or plants is.

It has been virtually overlooked, for example, that on June 18 there were nine big Ford auto company factories ordered shut in areas ranging from Ontario, Canada, to Atlanta to Kansas City and Los Angeles.

And all because of one strike directed by one angry man over a few grievances in one plant in Chicago Heights, Ill.

This is a most strategic feeder plant. It provides parts for assembly lines everywhere. In all, Ford has five such feeders. General Motors has four. Some of these feed other auto companies. There are, of course, some at Chrysler and American Motors.

So one must take an inside look at what happened at Ford's in Chicago Heights. The plant is the last of 97 installations with which the local union had to settle local issues with the company as a result of last year's bargaining. The other 96 have signed up.

But at Chicago Heights, the local is led by a chap who touched off a wildcat strike last winter despite a national agreement between the auto manufacturers and the United Auto Workers (UAW) international headquarters. The company went to court. The UAW ordered the men back to work.

The firm disciplined the leader. He was fired. He went to arbitration. He was reinstated without back pay. He was reelected local leader. He has little use for either Ford or the UAW chiefs. So the local bargaining has been tough. And parts did not feed out. Mine plants were closed. Thousands of workers in the U.S. and Canada were laid off.

Thus a long, serious strike at any two or three of the strategic plants could slow down, even shut down, the entire auto industry heaving some 750,000 workers onto the bricks.

There's a domino pattern here. And there needn't be any political motivation. Nothing subsurface. Just some angry men. That's what's worrying John Sawhill's energy office. Fuel will be scarce this summer and winter. Utilities are short of coal. Steel mills are tight. Rail transportation is bogging down. And coal diggers' productivity isn't really up according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics -- the same BLS with much the same staffers as have been in it for many years. Some of them have been in since the late Roosevelt and Truman days.

So they're not anti- worker. Yet they report that coal digger productivity has gone up the least of all industries in which there has been an increase in the pace of production. The miners' 1973 increase is 0.3 per cent. So there isn't about to be any sudden flow of bituminous fuel.

There's strike fever in the air. It wafts over from Europe and Asia. It's coming through clearly to the nation's white- and blue- collar workers. They've seen a British coal diggers strike create a crisis during which the conservative government fell. They read of the Ulster Workers Council toppling the government in Belfast with a general strike.

They've read of labor demonstrations straining the governments in Denmark, Italy, Portugal and India.

We're in an era of swift communications. And international fraternization. And fantastic inflation across the world -- far higher than in America, incidentally.

So it's time to cool it -- the strike fever, I mean. It's time for early and swift settlements before this nation rocks and rolls right into a depression. It's time for statesmanship, not shibboleths. That may be all right, Jack, for England. But here it would be wiser to call some labor- management- government summit conferences.

Not all sides may have read V. I. Lenin, since it's more fashionable now to study Mao's little Red Book. But Lenin did say: "Political institutions are a superstructure resting on an economic foundation."

3 youths bound over for burglary, larceny

CHARLESTON — Three Charleston youths, Willie Dale McMillen, Ronnie McMillen and Lloyd Ray "Dean" Northern, were bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court before Judge T. J. Brown Jr. on burglary and larceny charges.

Charges against the three stem from an April 20 break-in at a barn approximately four and a half miles west of Charleston and the theft of a five-gallon can of farm chemical valued at $101 and belonging to W. S. Babb.

Testifying during the length hearing were Babb, Connie Wright and Judy Donaldson of Charleston, Milus G. Wallace of East Prairie Route Two and Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

According to Babb, the chemical was placed in the barn the afternoon of April 20 and he discovered that a heavy duty hasp-type lock had been pried off the barn door about 7 a.m. the following day. The chemical was the only item missing from the barn.

According to testimony from Miss Wright and Miss Donaldson, three boys got into Miss Wright's car about 7 p.m. April 20 near the Wright home. After going to the carnival in Sikeston, they were returning to Charleston on Highway 60 about 10 p.m. when the boys told them they wanted out of the car near the "Y" junction between Bertrand and Diehlstadt.

The girls quoted the boys as saying they "had something to see about" or "they might get something." The girls said they were told to go down the road a short distance, then return to pick them up. Miss Donaldson said she told Miss Wright to take her home after she found out what was going on.

According to Miss Wright, she returned for the boys about 30 minutes later, and at that time they had a can with them which they took out of the car at the home of Willie Pasley in Charleston.

Wallace testified the three boys brought the chemical to his farm and told him they had found it in a shack on a ditch bank west of Charleston. Wallace could not remember the date, but he said he told them even if they found it, the chemical did not belong to them. He said the youths came with him to bring the chemical to the office of Sheriff Simmons later the same day.

Ronnie McMillen remains free on $1,000 bond. Bonds of Willie Dale McMillen and Northern were revoked and they were returned to custody June 3 after additional charges of stealing were filed against them in connection with the theft of copper wiring from utility poles northeast of Bertrand. They remain in custody under bonds of $5,000 each.

A second preliminary hearing for Willie Dale McMillen and Northern on the stealing charges was continued to June 27 by Judge Brown after Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman was unavailable to testify. Testimony from Jerry Allen of Sikeston, an employe of the Scott- New Madrid - Mississippi Electric Co-operative, was taken and entered into the record.

According to Allen, he examined the utility poles northeast of Bertrand at the request of his supervisor. He said ground wires had been taken from about 10 poles in that vicinity. After examining the wire to be presented as evidence by the prosecuting attorney, Allen said it was the type of wire his company used on their poles for lightning protection.

A preliminary hearing for David Wayne Summers of Wyatt was taken off Thursday's docket after Summers' attorney filed an affidavit and application for disqualification of Judge Brown to hear the case, which charges Summers with possession and being under the control of a certain controlled substance.

Summers, who is free on $2,500 bond, was arrested May 10 with 450 tablets containing phendimetrazine in his possession.

George Rodney Drury of Charleston entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of possession and under control of a certain controll substance, a quantity of marijuana less than 35 grams, and trial was set for July 3.

Drury was arrested in Charleston by police on June 14 and is free on $1,000 bond.

Sylvester Dublin of East Prairie was assessed a $50 fine plus costs for driving without an operator's license. If Dublin fails to pay his fine, he will have to serve 10 days in the county jail.

Charges of underage possession of five per cent beer brought fines of $66 each to Joseph Franklin Chandler and John Wayne Tatum of Charleston. A $36 fine was levied against J. E. Matthews of East Prairie on a charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place.

Neil V. Acheson of Cape Girardeau paid a $31 fine on a speeding charge and Joseph Edgar Vaughn of Poplar Bluff entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of having defective brakes and paid a $26 fine.

A warrant was issued for Clifford Love Graham of Wyatt, who failed to appear on charges of speeding and driving without a license.

Charges of driving while intoxicated and driving while operator's license is revoked against Collis Ray Haddock of Bertrand were continued to June 27. Also continued to June 27 were charges of driving while intoxicated and driving without an operator's license against Marshall Powell of Wilson City.

The following cases were continued to July 3: James Randolph Baker of Poplar Bluff, careless and imprudent driving; David Leroy Morse of Alexandria, La., no special fuel permit in truck and no 96 NR permit; and speeding charges agains Fred Kirk Blaise of Vincennes, Ind., Randall Eugene Morse of Mesquite, Tex., James Phillip Bell Jr. of Adamsville, Ala., Perry Wallace Fowler of Uniontown, Ky., and Dale Eugene Allen of Sesser, Ill.

A charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering against Arnold Lee Mims of Charleston was continued to July 25.

Other cases in Magistrate Court this week included: John Junior Young, wrong side of road, $26; Russell James Chanley, public intoxication and improper parking location, $41; and Willie B. Collins, careless and imprudent driving, $41;

Accident victims win damage suit

NEW MADRID — A judgment totaling $33,750 was awarded in a damage suit Thursday to Benson Ashcraft of Sikeston and Larry Wendell Garrison, Debra Jean Garrison, Terry Lynn Garrison and Tammy Renee Garrison by Circuit Judge William L. Ragland.

The suit, which was filed against Billy Mayberry and Robert, Charles and William LaValle, doing business as LaValle Farms, stems from an accident on Aug. 3, 1973 in which Mrs. Emma Jean Ashcraft was killed.

A car driven by her husband, Benson Ashcraft, collided with a farm tractor pulling a cultivator on Highway 61 in New Madrid County, which was operated by Mayberry, an employe of LaValle Farms.

The Garrisons are minor children of Mrs. Ashcraft by a previous marriage.

Ashcraft and the children will share equally $31,250, and he was awarded $2,500 for his personal injuries and property damage.

In a suit to declare the last will and testament of Sallie Wainman of Sikeston void, Judge Ragland ruled that the plaintiffs Jesse Grant, Jeffie Phillips, Ione Bell, Virginia Smith Graves, Juanita Cook and John F. Smith had no interest in the estate nor in the assets of the estate of Sallie Wainman.

Defendents named in the suits were Robert A. Dempster, executor of the estate of Sallie Wainman deceased; Jasper Grant, Randy Wayne Grant, Robert A. Dempster, trustee of the estate; and Jim Burris.

Plaintiffs charged the purported will was executed by Mrs. Wainman through coercion and undue influence while she was incapable of understanding her acts.

The case was transferred to New Madrid County on a change of venue from Scott County.

Ann Landers

Ethnic groups should not be generalized

Dear Ann Landers: I lead a busy, exciting, never- a- dull-moment kind of life, but I'm stopping everything to take a few minutes to reaffirm yourstatement that one should never generalize about ethnic groups. I refer to the letter (full of malarkey) about the Irish being the most sexless of all males.

Everyone has heard about "those sexy Swedes." Their porn, wild cinema, live- in relationships, highest rate of illegitimate babies, etc.

Well, I was married to a Swede for 20 years and he was as cold as a hunk of ice in the Arctic. I tried everything from black lace nighties to professional counseling. Nothing worked so I gave up and divorced him.

The following year I married an Irishman. He chases me morning, noon and night, and I love every minute of it.

Sexual appetite has absolutely nothing whatever to do with ethnic background and I wish you'd say it again. Just sign me -- Love My Hot Shamrock

Dear Love: O. K. I will say it again. Sexaul appetite has absolutely nothing to do with ethnic background. Remember that line, "Latins are lousy lovers"? That's not true either, according to my mail from Caracas.

Dear Ann Landers: While going through my Al-Anon book tonight, I ran across something I believe is worth sharing. In fact, I am going to have it printed and framed for my wall so I can see it every morning. Here it is:

Today is mine.

It is unique.

Nobody in the world has one exactly like it.

It holds the sum of all my past experiences and all my future potential.

I can fill it with joyous moments or ruin it with fruitless worry.

If painful recollections of the past come into my mind, or frightening thoughts of the future, I can put them away.

They cannot spoil today for me.

-- Positive Thinker

Dear Thinker: What an uplifting bit of philosophy! We can all use it. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your recent account of "A Happy Kid." He was lucky to have a dad like that.

I'd like to tell you about the thousands of kids who have no dads. They are the most underprivileged youngsters in the world. Who will help them find their places as adult men?

There IS help for them. It's an organization called "Big Brother." This group is composed of volunteers, men who offer friendship and guidance to one fatherless boy. No fee. No pay. Just friendship.

A Big Brother talks things over, answers questions. He takes "his little pal" with him for the day or the evening. Maybe on a hiking trip, to the circus, a baseball game or to a museum.

Please tell the world about "Big Brother." It is listed in the phone book. In Chicago the number to call is 427-0637. And please tell them to hurry. Some little kid is waiting. -- A B.B.

Dear B.B.: I know of the wonderful work of Big Brothers and I am happy to pass theword.

Eileen Scheu named city Breath of Life chairman

Mrs. Eileen Scheu of Sikeston, has been named chairman of the Breath of Life Campaign to fight children's lung- damaging diseases, according to Jack Buck of St. Louis, Chairman of the Gateway Chapter, Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Mrs. Scheu will lead local volunteers in raising funds to support research and care programs for children affected by lung- damaging diseases like cystic fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, and bronchiectasis.

The campaign begins with a door- to - door driver scheduled for September.

Approximately one of every 1,500 babies is born with cystic fibrosis, which is still incurable. C/F is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene for C/F. It is believed that one in 20 persons, or a total of 10 million Americans, is a symptomless carrier of this gene. Current research funded by the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation is seeking a practical test to identify these carriers, as well as a cure for C/F and better methods of treatment for all lung- damaging diseases.

Because of improved treatment developed through research, many C/F patients are now living into their teens and young adulthood. This same treatment is also benefitting and often curing children suffering from other lung- damaging diseases.

"Most people don't realize that there are millions of children in the U. S. affected by lung- damaging disease," said Mrs. Scheu. "For some of these children breathing is a struggle, rather than the natural function we, who are lucky, take for granted."

The Breath of Life Campaign supports not only research, but diagnosis and treatment of children with lung- damaging diseases in C/F Centers across the country. There are more than 110 of these Centers, which also provide for educational programs and research.

New book is about trials of woman in new country

PORTAGEVILLE — New books at New Madrid County Library in Portageville include "Luise", by Dawn Stewart Field.

This is a big, fascinating story that combines Gothic romance and historical fiction at its best. It opens as the high - spirited self-sufficient and beautiful heroine, the Baroness Luise Von Doring, arrives in America in search of a new life. Behind her are the ravages of the Napoleonic Wars and the death of her finance. Ahead of her is the dizzying whirl of the new Republican society.

Warmly welcomed into the bosom of the Morris family in Alexandria, Va., Luise quickly finds herself confused and delighted by the affections of two handsome rivals: the striving, patriotic young merchant Peter Tarlton and the aristocratic, impetuous Jeremy Morris.

The rivalry takes on an ominous tone when the two men begin to accuse each other of treachery. And worse ... Louise's world becomes a nightmare of threatening notes, midnight assignations and even attempted murder. Not only can she not trust the living, but her vivid imagination causes her to fear all kinds of Gothic horrors: vampires, headless horsemen and cloaked figures with no faces. Behind all this is the suspicion that someone is deliberately trying to drive her insane.

But "Luise" is more than a novel about the trials of a young woman alone in a strange country. Set against the tableau of the War of 1812, "Luise" paints a colorful portrait of an important historical period.

Missouri churches to make own choice on Seminex grads

ST. LOUIS (AP)--The Missouri District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod voted Wednesday to allow district congregations to make their own decisions whether to choose "Seminary in Exile" graduates as pastors.

The decision, made at the district's annual statewide convention, came despite a claim by the Rev. Dr. Herman C. Scherer, the district president, that he would not authorize ordinations of the graduates.

National synod officials have threatened expulsion of congregations ordaining the dissident graduates, who walked out of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis last winter in protest of the suspension of the school's president, the Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen.

But some observers saw the vote as a slight blessing for congregations which have called or want to call Seminex graduates.

"It leaves it up to the congregations' consciences. You can't legislate conscience," said the Rev. Daniel Jungkuntz.

Anderson College, Anderson, Ind.—Dr. Jon Kardatzke, Wichita, Kan.

Gulf Coast Bible College, Houston, Tex.—Rev. Gerald Egelston, Tulsa, Okla.; Barry Richardson, Portageville, Mo.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

140. Jonathan Defends David

David left Samuel at Naioth and came to ask Saul's son Jonathan why Saul wished to slay him. Although Jonathan was David's truest friend, he could not believe that his father wished to kill David. To determine the king's thoughts of David, they devised the following plan: David was to hide in the fields during the festival of the new moon, and Jonathan was to tell Saul that David was attending a family celebration in Bethlehem.

Moreover, Jonathan agreed to return to the field and inform David of Saul's design. Jonathan promised to bring a youth to fetch three arrows he would shoot near David. If Saul did not intend to slay David, Jonathan would tell the youth "the arrows are on this side," but if Saul intended to slay David, he would shout that the "arrows are beyond thee."

On the second day of the feast, Jonathan told his father that David had journeyed to Bethlehem. Saul raged so violently that Jonathan left the celebration. On the next morning he went to the field where David hid, and shot three arrows over the boy he brought, saying, "Is not the arrow beyond thee?" (I Samuel 20:37)

AVOIDING THE WORLD'S WAY

This week's Uniform
INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

FOR JUNE 23, 1974

Scripture: 2 Thessalonians 2:1,2;3:6-16

"Do not be weary in well-doing" is today's memory selection. It summarizes the message quite well. The youth topic, "Don't Just Sit There," also tells much about Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians.

Like any leader who leaves his associate for a period of time, Paul found it necessary to write the early Christians. He needed to revive their spirit and their hopes for the future.

This letter sought to clarify some misunderstanding about the coming of Christ. It also attempted to comfort those Christians who were being persecuted. Fearful for their future, these people needed reassuring words.

At the same time Paul turned his attention also to the ungodly. The Thessalonians were being exposed to false teachers who claimed the ability to speak with divine inspiration.

Even a forged letter, presumably from Paul, was circulated, adding another element to our comparison of the past with the present.

Paul explained that "the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ" referred to the second coming studied last week. On the other hand, "the day of the Lord" meant the time God passes His judgment on the earth.

Paul warned his people not to sit around doing nothing but wait for the second coming. He demanded hard work by all, even suggesting that those who refused to work should be denied food.

Work, as Paul explained, was a means by which God has provided for our well-being in physical material, and spiritual ways. Many centuries ago it was written that "Where our work is, there let our joy be."

John Calvin wrote in 1536 that, "We should accustom ourselves to think of our position and work as sacred and well-pleasing to God, not on account of the position and work, but on account of the word and faith from which the obedience and work flow."

Paul emphasized the divineness of work. He was fearful of those idle busybodies who spent their time on the wrong things. Many churches, especially in smaller communities, have been wrecked by those busybodies who look upon themselves as Christians. Paul would not have welcomed them into his congregation.

Everyone should work. Paul could have depended on his people for support yet he continued to work throughout his life. He did not view work as a penalty of man's sin.

Earning one's living is a Christian virtue. At the same time, Paul stressed the need for all persons to take their Christian beliefs along with them to work. Idle persons tended to stray from the Christian family. In another way, "Our work must be a sacrifice to the Divine."

Some say there is little religion involved in our work today. Some fear the fanatics, as some religious leaders appear to business leaders, are responsible for violence and rioting.

Paul's letter requires us to practice our doctrine in all phases of our lives. No Christian can become lazy; all Christians must work to make their beliefs help others to follow God.

A job can become a bore for anyone. In our modern technology many jobs are routine and monotonous. We need reassurance from time to time about the role our jobs play in the Christian world.

Paul found it necessary to give his people regular pep talks. He urged them to become a part of their community. He would not approve of monks who isolate themselves in mountain retreats to meditate.

A real Christian approaches his work with a sense of devotion. He realizes that here, as well as in church, he has the opportunity to practice his religious beliefs.

Paul called for peace "at all times" and "in all ways." Paul, in his letters to the Thessalonians, combined the practical with the religious approach.

Malden minister to work in India

MALDEN — Chuck Huber, minister of the Malden Church of Christ, left Wednesday for a summer-long missionary trip to India, where he will survey the work of the Churches of Christ in Bombay, Delhi, Bangalore and Madras and serve as guest instructor in the Madras School of Preaching.

Working through interpreters and with his teammate, George Hall of Rockdale, Tex., evangelistic training schools will be conducted each evening in the cities and villages to complete a typical 18- hour workday.

The economic and political climate in India is quite harsh and very unstable. A country half the size of the United States with a population in excess of 510 million, India's problems have been building for years.

The country has officially entered the worst famine in its recorded history and food is extremely scarce. What food is available is sold at a premium and to the highest bidder. It is estimated that some 3½ million people will die of starvation before the year's end.

Inflation is soaring at a rampant rate of 32 per cent annually. Wages have not increased in over a decade, and the average family income is but $28 per month. These and other factors keep the government in a very vulnerable position. It is presently tottering on the verge of collapse from revolt among the Indian populus.

These conditions make the future for foreign missions very uncertain. Thus, this summer concerted efforts are being mounted to reach as many with the gospel of Christ as possible before expulsion occurs.

Missionaries of the Churches of Christ have been laboring extensively in India for the past twelve years. Their efforts have produced about 140,000 converts for the New Testament church. Today, more than 1,000 congregations flourish in 15 of the 20 states of that Hindu country. A school was begun in 1968 to train Indian converts in God's word to prepare them to carry the gospel of Christ to their own people. Since its inception, about 225 men have completed the intensive two-year training program. These graduates now serve as local and itinerant evangelists for their people, preaching in their native Tamil and Telegu languages.

Huber's trip fits well into the new emphasis the Malden church has placed on missions in the past two years.

In the past two years, the local church has experienced substantial growth. The attendance now averages over 230 each Sunday morning. and the budget will soon be increased to over $53,000 annually. The recent growth, resulting primarily from efforts in personal and bus evangelism, has prompted construction of a 10,000 square- foot educational facility. This facility is scheduled for occupation by Sept. 1. The church also has a program providing for those in need through the Christian Service Center.

Vernon Reaves and C. W. Watson, elders of the Malden church, have endorsed and encouraged Huber in his trip preparation. The Malden church and other area churches are making the trip possible through financial support. While Huber is gone, men of the congregation, along with some visiting speakers, will fill the pulpit.

Huber has considerable experience in mission work. He has worked with mission churches in England, Canada, South Dakota, Wyoming and Hawaii. Prior to moving to Malden, he worked with a congregation in Honolulu comprised largely of Filipinos, Japanese and Chinese.

Mr. Huber is a graduate of the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock, Tex., Oklahoma Christian College at Oklahoma City, in East Texas State University in Commerce, Tex., and is scheduled to graduate in May 1975 from Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. Huber's family will remain in Malden throughout the summer.

Upon his return, Mr. Huber will speak to numerous organizations and clubs on his findings and experiences. Any local or area civic, educational or other organization that would like to have Huber address their group and give a slide presentation may make such arrangements by phoning either his home (276-4177) or the church office (276-2488).

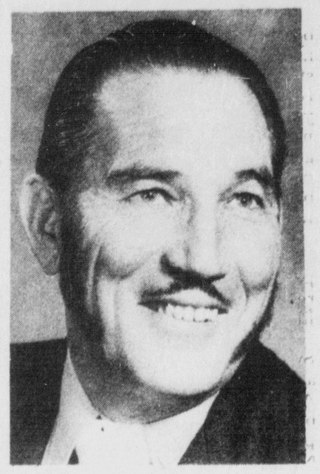
Missionary to be at First Assembly



Rev. Gunder Olsen

The Rev. Gunder A. Olsen, an Assemblies of God missionary, evangelist and church builder will be guest speaker Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor, has announced.

During their past four terms of missionary service, the Rev. Mr. Olsen and his wife Doris have pioneered and helped build 13 Assemblies of God churches in the Philippine Islands. The church they founded in Iloilo City was attended by 800 to 1,000 people each Sunday while they were there. That church mothered two more in that city.

The Olsens also supervised the construction of a church in Iligan City and Mindanao. The Rev. Mr. Olsen has reached primitive tribes where he is the only white man they had ever seen.

When they return to the Philippines, the Olsens will continue to hold evangelistic crusades and conduct seminars on personal witnessing in Bible schools.

The Rev. Mr. Olsen served as superintendent of the Western Visayan District Council of the Philippine Assemblies of God and was chairman of the executive board of Immanuel Bible Institute in Cebu City. In addition to working the Philippines, he has also ministered in countries throughout the Far East.

The Assemblies of God supports 47 missionaries who work with 621 Philippine ministers. More than 70,000 members and adherents attend the 1,228 Assemblies of God churches on these islands in Southeast Asia.

The Rev. Mr. Olsen will relate some of his missionary experiences in the Philippines during this special missions service.

State Board of Education aware of broadening scope

JEFFERSON CITY — Aware that education is becoming increasingly broader in scope, the State Board of Education continues to review its major instructional programs now being planned or offered Missourians at all age levels.

Programs reviewed at the state board's June meeting included: adult education, instructional television, a state plan for vocational education and beginning proposals for drug, economic and environmental education in the public schools.

Adult education (for Missourians 16 years and older) probably is one of the lesser known but fastest growing services offered by the State Department of Education.

These programs include:

Adult basic education, designed to teach adults to read and write or to substantially raise their educational level; high school equivalency, to help those unable to complete high school in the regular manner; manpower development and training, to help the unemployed and underemployed.

Adult distributive education, to train those wanting employment in the field of marketing and distribution of goods; veterans education, with the responsibility of approving and supervising the 477 schools and 2,172 business firms used for veterans' training; and general adult classes, usually offered at evening hours in the public schools.

During the last fiscal year, 127,370 Missourians received these services in program supervised by the Department of Education. It is estimated that 135,000 persons will be served during the present fiscal year.

These figures do not include approximately 37,000 adults now receiving training in adult vocational- technical courses.

A breakdown of last year's enrollment shows: Adult basic, 11,724; high school equivalency, 7,597 (calendar year); manpower development, 2,885; adult distributive, 6,330; veterans, 33,104; and general adult programs, 65,730.

Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory noted that all the programs except adult basic, which has fixed funding, are reporting continued growth during the current year.

"It is clearly evident," Mallory said, "that education no longer can be confined to prescribed formulas, grades and age groups. Rapidly, it is becoming a lifelong pattern of accomplishment and fulfillment, appreciated as part of eaily living.

"Adult Missourians have never faltered in their convictien about the value of educaion to their children. Now, they've discovered it can continue to serve them as well, both profitably and humanistically, and this is as it should be.

"Education no longer is a force- feeding process. Instead, it's becoming a desired, satisfying experience, and all of us -- every Missourian -- will be the better for it."

Other action by the board of education at its June meeting included:

Received the U. S. Supreme Court decision in the Missouri case, Barrera vs. Wheeler, in which the plaintiffs sought to require the board of education to approve progfams which send public school personnel, paid with federal Title I funds, into private schools during the regular school day.

The Supreme Court ruled that Title I requires "comparable" services but does not require the sending of public school teachers into private schools. The state board directed that its attorney in the case seek a conference with the judge of the U. S. District Court in Kansas City to discuss the administration of the Supreme Court decision.

Appointed Delmar A. Cobble of Jackson, a former teacher and school administrator, now retired, as a member to board of trustees, Public School Retirement System.

Approved guidelines for auditing student credit hours in Missouri's public junior colleges.

Designated the Pemiscot County Special School District at Braggadocio as an area vocational school.

Approved the accreditation of the Missouri public junior colleges on the basis of reports of visits made by the State Department of Education staff and reports submitted by the colleges and by visitation teams.

For certification purposes, approved acceptance of a maximum of eight semester hours of non- professional education course credit from any regionally- accredited junior community college in accordance with certain conditions.

Changed teacher certification standards to require one year instead of two years' experience for teachers of trainable mentally retarded.

Appointed Sister Mary Ann Eckhoff, assistant superintendent of schools for the archdiocese of St. Louis, as a member of the Missouri Instructional Television Council.

The next meeting of the State Board of Education is scheduled for July 22- 23 at Springfield.

The dean's list included the names of 176 students who received a grade point average of 3.25 (B) or better.

The School of the Ozarks is a fully accredited four- year coeducational liberal arts college where every student is on a work scholarship and devotes 20 hours a week to work in a student industry, service or office.

The college is the only one of its kind in the United States where every on- campus student is on a work scholarship. The 68- year- old inter- denominational school is supported by endowments, bequests and gifts.

Symington returns to office

WASHINGTON — Sen. Stuart Symington has returned to his office at the Senate following a post- operative check at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center. He began spending a short time in the office June 14 for the first time since a hernia operation June 4 and resumed regular Senate duties Monday.

Symington had been at home at his apartment in Washington since he was released from the hospital June 9.

Bernie police chief named

BERNIE — Arthur Lee, a 34- year - old native of Bernie, has been appointed chief of police by the Bernie City Council.

Lee, presently a Stoddard County deputy sheriff, will officially take office July 1. He has been a deputy for 13 months.

Dennis Fowler of Advance will replace Lee in the sheriff's department. He is attending Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, majoring in law enforcement.

The new Bernie chief is a graduate of Bernie schools and has attended the highway patrol police school in Jefferson City. In addition, he has attended a law enforcement program at Southeast Missouri State University sponsored by the Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

The Lee family, including his wife Florence and two children, lives near Bernie. According to Mayor R. B. Woods, Lee will be living within the city when he officially assumes his police duties.

The City Council appointed Lee in a special session Tuesday night. He replaces Vernon Cornelison who resigned in early June after seven years as chief of police.

Cornelison resigned amid confusion surrounding new procedures for handling of police funds. At the time of the resignation, Mayor Woods said, "There have been some problems in relation to handling of police department funds, police evidence and police regulations. The procedures for handling police fine money have also posed problems."

Bernie is in the process of completely revising the procedure of money processing. Woods said a thorough report on police funds would be made available after an audit is completed.

A special election has been set for July 9 in Bernie at which time a new police judge will be elected. This action came about as a result of the resignation of Eldra Carson who handed in his formal resignation last week. Carson, who just two weeks ago told Bernie Mayor R. B. Woods he had decided to stay on his police judge post, had served the city for about 15 years. No reason for his resignation was offered.

The ice cream sundae, one of today's most popular ice cream desserts, was born in Evanston, Illinois because of a strange law. When a law was passed forbidding the sale of ice cream sodas on Sunday, local merchants got around it by serving ice cream with just syrup. The "sodaless soda" came to be known as a "Sunday" but then objections arose naming a dessert after the Lord's Day, so it became known as a sundae, but it, like the soda, was not banned.

Something that homemakers like more than an ice cream sundae, a Miracle Water Refiner, was born not because of any law, but to create clean, refreshing sparkling water throughout your home. The Miracle Water Refiner not only softens, it cleans, removes taste and odor such as chlorine and it filters your water as well. Once you see and enjoy the difference, you will never want to go back to ordinary tap water. Your cooked foods will taste better, your floors and walls will sparkle, your laundry will smell fresher, be softer and cleaner. Call Braswell and find out more about this modern wonder today.

Council decides to keep electronic bookkeeper

EAST PRAIRIE — The City Council Thursday night, following a two-hour discussion, agreed that the only alternative the city has is to keep the Burrough's L-5000 electronic bookeeping machine and seek a buyer for it in the future.

The machine, approved for purchase in January at a cost of $19,714.12, reportedly has created controversy among residents who allegedly have voiced their objections to the purchase to new council members because they feel the money should have been used for street and sewer improvements. Reportedly, local businessmen have voiced their opinion that the city should have not purchased the machine.

Representatives from Burrough's Corporation met with the council and detailed the various operations for which the machine can be programmed.

It was pointed out that the L-5000 machine met the specifications the city asked for when bids were solicited and after a systems analysis was made of the city's future needs. It was further determined that the machine was the best means to handle them.

When asked if the company has a smaller machine for which the L-5000 model could be exchanged, the council was informed there is a model L-4000 which would only do half of the work which could be handled by the L-5000.

The L-4000 model, physically the same size as the other machine, costs $15,451. The council was told that although the present machine has not been used by the city, it has been in the city hall three months, and as far as Burrough's Corporation is concerned, it would have to be considered second hand. Should it be taken back in exchange, the city would be faced with depreciation estimated at three per cent per month on the total cost.

It was also pointed out that the city has spent $1,195.30 for supplies for the L-5000 which could not be used in the L-4000. Additional supplies would have to be purchased if the exchange is made.

The first year payment of nearly $8,000 has been made and the machine has already been programmed for budgetary and payroll accounting. Tax billing and calculating of water bills, after the installation of water meters, can also be added to the programming and the company will train city personnel to operate the machine.

Cost of programming would have to be added to the total cost of the L-4000 machine.

The motion to keep the machine was made by Councilman Marion "Bud" Morgan and seconded by Councilman Louis "Blue" Turley. Councilman Wayne Presson also voted to retain the machine.

Mayor LaWanda Douglas abstained, although she conceded the city has no choice. Councilmen Jones Hedge, who was absent at the time of the voting, said earlier in the evening he had no strong objections to keeping the machine. He added, that money-wise in three to five years the city would not save money if water billing had to be sent out for calculation.

During the course of the meeting, Mayor Douglas stated she felt city manager Bob Kakac had oversold the machine to the council. Council Presson also stated that he felt Kakac had misrepresented the machine to former councilmen.

Kakac told the council he would stand by his recommendation and assured the council that city personnel could and would use the machine and much of the work now done by hand would be eliminated. Kakac also showed another bid received from another company for a similar machine after Mrs. Douglas said she could not recall seeing any other bids for a machine.

The only other business at Thursday night's meeting was the renewal of liquor licenses by the liquor committee.

Charleston boy elected senator at Boys State

WARRENSBURG — Kim Huffstutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Huffstutter of Charleston, has been elected state senator of Benton County at the 35th annual session of the American Legion Boys State of Missouri being held this week at Central Missouri State University.

Huffstutter attends Charleston High school, where he is active in Drama Club, National Honor Society and band.

Andy F. Sears of Blue Springs and Kevin James Murphy of Caruthersville were elected governor and lieutenant governor. Two other Federalists, Britt A. Thedinger of St. Joseph and Charles Gene Ankrom of Bolivar won the races for state auditor and attorney general.

The Nationalists took the other two offices when Thomas Wesley Hoft of Columbia was elected secretary of state and Timothy D. O'Leary of Kansas City won the race for state treasurer.

Jim Walter Uhls of Cape Girardeau, a Nationlist, was elected chief justice of the court. Chester Aldridge of Richmond, Michael Jay Callicott of Hannibal, Philip K. Nacy of Jefferson City and Keith Elliott Prokop of Bridgeton also won seats on the court for the Nationalists. The only two Federalists elected were John Erwin Gerike of Blue Springs and Chris James German of St. Louis.

All were to be installed at ceremonies tonight in which Gov. Christopher Bond was to do the honors.

Boys State is a week-long short course in civic affairs sponsored annually by the American Legion.

The election followed a mass campaign rally of the 960 delegates, somewhat similar to a national nominating convention except that both parties met at the same time.

The outcome depended much on speeches made at the rally by the individual nominees rather than any difference in political philosophy espoused by the opposing parties.

"If a boy made a bum speech he didn't get the votes," said a member of the leadership staff.

While the election was going on, members of city councials, county courts and the general assembly organized earlier in the week held sessions on municipal, county and state problems.

approximately 12 minutes from the time he picked up Stanfield until he arrived at the hospital.

Grubbs was then asked if he questioned Lindsey regarding the incident at any time following the trip to the hospital. He replied that he talked to Lindsey the same day.

When asked if Lindsey was advised of his rights. He replied that he was not told of his rights at that time or any other time to his knowledge.

The fourth witness called was Geraldine Caldwell, a waitress at Murphy's Tavern in Bernie. Mrs. Caldwell testified that Stanfield came into the tavern around 3 p.m. through the back door and sat by himself in the back of the building.

She said Lindsey came into the tavern about 3:30 p.m. with several other men and sat at a table in the front of the building. She said Stanfield then joined Lindsey and the other men at their table. She said Lindsey then ordered a round of drinks after which Stanfield left the tavern, again through the back door.

The next incident she recalled was Lindsey yelling out the door to his son, who was walking down the street in front of the tavern, to go to the liquor store to see if Stanfield had made a purchase and if so to ask what size bill he had used to pay for it. He also told him if Stanfield wasn't at the liquor store to check Weiner's Department Store:

Mrs. Caldwell said Lindsey's son checked back at the tavern a short time later and stated that Stanfield had bought some shoes at Weiner's and had paid with a $20 bill.

She said Lindsey then got up and stated in a loud manner, "I'm gonna go down there and beat his brains out," then left the tavern.

She said he returned a short time later, and the tavern owner asked if he got his money back. Lindsey replied, "Yes, I did. His blood and brains are laying out there in the street."

When asked if Lindsey was intoxicated, she replied that he was. When asked if Stanfield was intoxicated, she said she did not think so because he had drunk only two beers.

No witnesses were called by the defense.

Stanfield died from injuries sustained in the fight the following day at Dexter Memorial Hospital.

In other court action:

Wilford B. Cureton, charged with distruction of state property with a tractor which did not belong to him, was fined $10 and given a 60-day suspended jail sentence.

Trial was set for June 27, for Leo Slaughter, 23, of St. Louis, charged with car theft and burglary May 29 at City Motor Sales in Dexter.

A preliminary hearing for John Horn on a charge of molesting a minor was set for June 27.

Robert Banks entered a plea of guilty to a reduced charge of careless and imprudent driving and was fined $25. The charge was reduced from driving while intoxicated.

Loy Orville Cannon of Essex, charged with common assault, was granted a change of venue to Scott County.

Trial was set on July 3 for Gary B. Williams on a non support charge, and a charge of driving with out-of-state plates while residing in Missouri against Jerry Glenn Graves was continued.

Pleading not guilty to charges of careless and imprudent driving while drag racing were David Richard, Brad Middleton, Jerry Dunning and Kenny Carlton. Trial for each were set for June 27.

Paying fines for traffic violations were:

Joseph Allen Banken of Dexter, inadequate muffler, $10; Michael Lee Goodman of Essex, careless and imprudent driving, $15; Fines McAllister of Oran, failure to stop at railroad crossing while driving a gas-carrying vehicle, $5.

Hubert Neeley, defective tail lights, $10; Joseph H. Clippard of Fenton, no motorcycle license, $10; Bobby D. Franklin of Puxico, careless and imprudent driving with excessive speed, $15; and Winford Cureton of Bloomfield, no operator's license, $10.

COMMON SENSE AFLOAT

Can you count the infractions against boating safety by this carefree group? To start with, there are 12 obvious "no-no's" — not a single occupant is wearing a life preserver! And how about the guy not only standing up but whipping his rod all over the place. Or the operator trying to steer blindfolded, someone riding on the bow and so on and on. The worst, of course, is that the boat is "slightly" overloaded! Year after year, overloading the boat with too many people, gear and or too big an engine is a primary cause for drowning fatalities. Most boats have a metal capacity plate usually mounted near the operator's position. It tells how many people you can carry safely. It also gives the capacity of the boat in pounds, including the total weight of passengers, gear and motor. So, either follow the recommendations on the capacity plate or make sure your life insurance premiums are paid up to date!

Games wanted

R. E. Sharp, commissioner of the Bloomfield Summer Baseball Association, has issued a plea for games for a 13- year - old team.

"I have found that very few Little League graduates are playing throughout Southeast Missouri, and I wanted our boys to be able to compete," Sharp noted.

Sharp's letter said:

"Bloomfield is currently sponsoring Baseball teams for boys in the following age brackets. Minor Leagues (ages 8-9), Little League (ages 9-12), Jr. Babe Ruth (ages 13-15), and Sr. Babe Ruth (ages 16-18). The latter two groups play at home and away. Minor Leagues and Little League play only at home. Then, of course, Little League teams participate in tournaments ... if invited.

The purpose of this communications is as follows: Bloomfield has a number of "13 year old boys", who did not make the Junior Babe Ruth Squad, but they still want to play baseball this summer. The "13 year old boys" have no place to go.They are caught between being too old for Little League and too young, small or immature, to compete against 14 and 15 year old boys ... in most cases.

In recent weeks, I took the opportunity to survey several area towns for "13 year old boys". The typical answer was that we can not play your '13 year old boys' because we have only two or three "13 year old boys" on our Junior Babe Ruth Squad.

Thus, the reason for this letter. The point is ... as of this date .. and according to the information which I was able to gather ... very few "13 year old boys "are playing Baseball this summer. In the past, this is when boys have quit the Baseball Program in Bloomfield. I dare say the same thing has happened in your community. Often times, when they quit ... you don't get them back into your Baseball Program. They get "behind". They lose one year and they lose interest. In my opinion... the big name of the game is not just "Baseball" ... but recreation and something for these boys to do. I personally like to keep my boys busy. I think your time, effort and money spent will be very worthwhile in the future.

Bloomfield will sponsor one "13 year old boys Baseball Team". We will play at home or away. Bloomfield will be interested in participating in a tournament (or tournaments) for this age group.

If you have any interest or comments, please contact: R. E. Sharp, Bloomfield, Missouri 63825, P. O. Box R. Telephone (by day): 314-568-7831; telephone (by night): 314-568-3374"

Moses picks Maryland

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Recruiting the nation's top high school basketball player, Moses Malone, meant there could be only one happy winner and a lot of losers—some of them sore.

Maryland is the winner, and coach Lefty Driesell believes the 6-foot-11 Malone will make the Terps "the UCLA of the East."

For University of New Mexico Coach Norm Ellenberger, the signing Thursday morning with Malone still half asleep sounds like "a case of his people making the decision for him. It wasn't necessarily what he wanted."

Ellenberger was upset because, when he left this Central Virginia city Thursday morning, Malone had told a television reporter hours earlier that New Mexico likely would be his choice.

By the time the New Mexico coach's plane had landed in Albuquerque, the news was out that the shy, reticent Malone had signed with Maryland.

Apparently Malone's mother was the key factor. Mary Malone had admitted she wanted Moses to play close to home. She was elated when he chose Maryland. "He's going to be close to home ... It's only a 2½-hour ride to Maryland, and I can get to see him play," she said.

While Driesell, Maryland and the Malones were basking in the glow of success, a Virginia newspaper report threw a shadow over the affair.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch reported in today's editions that Malone has been driving a 1974 luxury car since Monday and has been hired by a Washington construction company for the summer. The car retails for $6,500 and his contruction job reportedly will pay $7 an hour.

The newspaper said there have been reports the NCAA has been investigating the automobile arrangement. "We couldn't comment on any investigation at this time," said an NCAA official in Shawnee Mission, Kan. "It's our standard policy not to say anything on matters like this."

A spokesman for the Richmond auto dealer said the car was obtained by Malone and his mother through a lease-purchase agreement.

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson, the Oakland A's star outfielder, continues to lead all other American League players in the weekly voting for the All-Star team.

According to figures released today by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Jackson had 719,579 votes. His closest rival over-all was Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew with 574,150. The next closest outfielder was California's Frank Robinson with 302,113. Robinson was fifth a week ago.

In the only other change among the leaders, Chicago's Dick Allen grabbed the edge over Boston's Carl Yastrzemski at first base, 325,763 votes to 229,904.

Cookie Rojas of Kansas City is a distant runnerup to Carew at second base with 172,565.

Baltimore's Brooks Robinson remained the top choice for third base with 299,333 votes, followed by the A's Sal Bando with 217,545.

Bert Campaneris, the A's shortstop, leads with 451,244, followed by Ed Brinkman of Detroit with 199,908.

Boston's Carlton Fisk has 357,040 to lead the catchers. Bill Freehan of Detroit is second with 236,055.

Behind Jackson and Frank Robinson in the outfield is Detroit's Al Kaline with 266,350. His teammate, Willie Horton, Bobby Murcer of New York and Jeff Burroughs of Texas followed.

The balloting by baseball fans throughout the nation will continue through July 7.

Pitchers and reserves for the July 23 game at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh will be selected by the managers.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A Birmingham, Ala., youth who was a member of Alabama's Triple A state championship team last season will enroll at Southeast Missouri State University and play basketball for the Indians, Coach Bob Cradic has announced.

He is 18 - year - old Charlie Lewis, the best shooter on Birmingham's Glenn High School squad. Lewis averaged 20 points per game as a senior, hitting 59 per cent of his field goal attempts and 85 per cent of his free throw tries.

The Glenn team finished its season with a 35-0 record.

Lewis, the son of Ardelle Lewis of 1820½ First Street South, Birmingham, also grabbed 10 rebounds per game and averaged six assists and four steals per contest.

Going at either guard or forward, the 6-3, 177- pound player was chosen an all-state performer.

SHOULD YOUR "SECOND CAR" BE A NEW PICKUP?

MY DODGE BOYS HAVE THE ANSWER!
(AND IT'S PACKED WITH PLUS-VALUE FEATURES.)

DODGE SWEPTLINE PICKUP.

Dodge pickups have always been known for their great features such as double-wall construction, Electronic Ignition, and more. But did you know that the United States Auto Club recently conducted tests that showed what great gas mileage our Dodge pickups can get? It did.

The trucks tested were Dodge, Ford, and Chevy ½-ton jobs. Results were conclusive—our Dodge got better gas mileage than the Chevy and slightly better gas mileage than the Ford in highway driving. Not impressed? Consider this, the Dodge we're talking about was powered with a 318 V8 while the Ford and Chevy had standard six-cylinder engines!

Our 318 V8 delivered six-cylinder economy with V8 performance. No wonder Dodge has the pick of the pickups. Of course, the mileage you'll get depends on many things including how and where you drive and the condition of your truck.

Cowboys set tryout camp

The Dallas Cowboys have announced they will hold tryout camps next week in Jackson, Mississippi, and Tulsa, Oklahoma, for men interested in a professional football career.

The camps will be held at Memorial Stadium in Jackson at 10 a.m. on Saturday, June 29, and at Skelly Stadium in Tulsa at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 30.

A similar camp at Texas Stadium in Dallas earlier this spring resulted in four players being signed to NFL contracts. They will report to training camp along with the other Cowboys rookies on July 7 in Thousand Oaks, California.

Gil Brandt, Cowboys Vice President for Personnel Development, set the following guidelines for the Jackson and Tulsa camps:

--Those wishing to take part must have no high school or college eligiblity remaining.

-- Each player who works out must assume responsibility for any personal injury incurred during the camps.

-- Each player must provide his own transportation to and from the camps.

-- Each player should bring his own workout equipment (shorts or sweat clothes, and football shoes). The Cowboys will have none available for loan.

-- There will be no contact work.

--There is no need to call or write the Cowboys in advance of the camps.

Cox provides excitement

Eugene Cox connected for an inside the park home run Thursday night to highlight Jr. Babe Ruth baseball play at VFW stadium and spark Nowell Realty to a 14-3 victory over KBEW. Elliott- Newton took advantage of eight Harts errors for a 16-6 six inning win.

Nowell Realty had to go only four and one half innings before claiming the win by the 10-run rule, scoring nine runs in the second, four in the third and one in the fourth.

Preston Cook and Dewayne Barnett connected for doubles during the short encounter that saw Tim Lawrence picked up the victory. Tony Smith led Nowell's eight hit attack with two safties.

Elliott-Newton errupted for nine runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to break open a rather close encounter and end the game on the 10-run rule.

Larry Jackson picked up the victory, fanning 10 and walking two while Ken Standridge suffered the defeat.

Mark Silverthron and Hal Butler led E & N's 10 hit barrage with three hits apiece.

Ken Standridge doubled and tripled to head up Harts offensive department while Mark Silverthorn tripled and Rob Stearnes and Hal Butler doubled for the games other extra base hits.

Elvis stars in baseball

Elvis Mike Cayton is the catcher for the Portageville Senior Babe Ruth Team. He's currently batting .480 after seven ball games and he has driven in 19 runs with five home run blasts. Two of these home run shots were estimated at 450 feet and then some.

Cayton's coach, Kirk Stewart, described him like this. "Fundamentally he's as sound as a catcher should be. He has an excellent arm and does everything right. I would call him a prospect for all the major colleges in the nation. At bat, he's aggressive as most good hitters are. He not only hits for average, but also the long ball. In fact, he's 12 for 25 at the plate with five home runs, three doubles, a triple and three singles. He also has 19 RBI's in seven games and has scored 12 runs himself. And, he's only struck out twice in the seven games. He's just unbelievable, and I find it hard to describe, you've got to see him! He's the best 17 year old catcher I've ever seen."

Cayton is a 17 yea old, who'll be a senior in high school when school resumes. His ability is complimented by his desire to play baseball on the college level and as he says "Pro Ball if I get some breaks."

Mike Cayton, a name you should watch for if you're from Southeast Missouri and want to see a southeast boy "make it". He may just be on television some day. By the way, the Portageville Senior Babe Ruth Teams record is 1-6.

SEMO Indians sign hitter

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Skip Morgan, who played his first two years of collegiate baseball at Florissant Valley Community College in St. Louis, has declared his intention to enroll at Southeast Missouri State University and continue his diamond career.

A catcher, Morgan hit .340 for Florissant Valley this spring and had five home runs. He played his high school baseball at Mehlville in St. Louis.

Indian coach Joe Uhls said he is tickled to recruit Morgan. "We had two senior catchers this year," Uhls said, "so naturally the first thing I went after was a catcher, and I think we've got a good one in Skip."

Southeast Missouri State could only manage a 6-6 record in MIAA play this year, but otherwise it was a good spring. The Indians had an overall mark of 17-13, establishing a new record for wins in a single season by a Uhls- coached team.

Early in the season Uhls chalked up his 150th career victory as a coach, and just this week the top Indians pitcher, Galem McSpadden of Puxico, signed a professional contract with the San Diego Padres.

The case of the lying boy friend

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Stanley reeled in Maggie with a good line. Although he was already married, he convinced her to set up housekeeping with him on his promise that he would get a divorce and marry her.

His promise, however, carried a lot of wait. In fact, he succeeded in putting off the issue for several years by telling Maggie one contrived story after another.

The result? Before Maggie could get Stanley to stand up before a minister, he had to be laid out in front of one. He went and died.

Taking a dim view of Stanley's alleged deception, Maggie sued his estate for damages on the grounds of fraud.

"Stanley deserves a big tombstone," she told the judge, "because he was a monumental liar. He never intended to marry me. Obviously, he only intended to have the pleasure of living with me."

"It was her own fault," responded the administrator of Stanley's estate. "She should have known better than to become involved with a married man. And worse, she should have known better than to get involved with one that lied."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Maggie to collect for Stanley's unkept promise?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an agreement by a married man to marry another woman is, in effect, an agreement to obtain a divorce and an agreement to obtain a divorce is against public policy and void. Consequently, concluded the judge, Stanley's romise was illegal and a person cannot base a lawsuit on an illegal promise

SeMo Boy Scouts set safe driving road rally

POPLAR BLUFF — The Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts of America will sponsor a council- wide Explorer Safe Driving Road Rally that will start and finish in Poplar Bluff on June 29.

Explorer adviser Tony Dolle from the Air Post in Poplar Bluff stated that "A rally is a contest of driving skill and of the ability to follow directions." He added, "It is most definitely not a race! Cars will drive below posted speed limits and safety will be emphasized."

Ken Myles of Cape Girardeau, council Exploring chairman, says the rally will be open to any Explorer who lives in the Southeast Council area. Registration forms are available at the council Boy Scout office in Cape Girardeau or through any of the five district scout executives.

The rally will start in the back parking lot at the Valley Plaza in Poplar Bluff with registration beginning at 7 a.m. Components of the day- long event will include a driver's school, a parade through Poplar Bluff, a tire warmup and an odometer check. The driving will take place in and around Poplar Bluff and the Lake Wappapello area.

An awards banquet is set for 6 p.m. that evening, where first, second and third place trophies will be given to three different two- man teams.

Two Explorers will man each car with one driving and the other acting as navigator. The winning team will be eligible to compete in the 1975 regional road rally, and the winners of that event will go to the national finals in Detroit, Mich.

Scout officials ask that Explorers preregister for the rally by June 25. A $3 per car fee should accompany each registration. Late entries may register at the rally with a fee of $3.50.

Bounty of Good Cooks

Editor's Note

When good cooks get together, it is almost certain that sometime during the gathering the conversation will turn to recipes. And the best compliment that a cook can receive is the request for the recipe of a dish that has just been served.

To provide more cooks the opportunity to acquire new recipes for their files, the Daily Standard presents their fourth annual cookbook. For this supplement, we have collected recipes from the favorite files of many Southeast Missouri cooks, so that others may enjoy the good taste of a tried and tested recipe.

We have also featured a few of Southeast Missouri's good cooks. In doing so, we offer you a peak into their lives, their kitchens and their recipe files.

We especially want to thank those who have shared their favorites or originals through this edition. Thanks must also go to the advertisers who made it possible to present this cookbook supplement for the reader's enjoyment and taste buds.

So, get out your recipe files and a pair of scissors or a pen and be prepared to find many new favorites to serve your family and friends.

Art of cooking was challenge for Mrs. Helen Currin

By
SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

CHARLESTON — Mastering the art of cooking was a challenge faced by determination for Mrs. Helen Currin, who laughingly refers to herself as "a bride who couldn't boil water" when she was first married.

She attributes much of her knowledge and success with cooking to her husband of 35 years, Marshall Currin, who came to Charleston in 1924. Shortly after arriving here, he opened the Creole Cafe, which he and Mrs. Currin operated after their marriage until his retirement in January of this year.

Mrs. Currin said the most helpful hint she could give a new cook would be to keep trying and to follow a recipe, especially for baking. "When I first started, I sometimes baked as many as three cakes, all the same kind, in one day before getting one to turn out the way it should. I was always forgetting to put something in, but I was determined to do it right," she said.

Mrs. Currin, Charleston's Woman of the Year in 1970 and a member of the R-I School District Board of Education for six years, is presently employed by the Urban Renewal Agency as a community organizer.

She was instrumental in organizing a nutrition program for Charleston's senior citizens. Each day she helps prepare a hot noon meal, which is served to some 65 to 70 persons in the community center.

Preparing barbecued meats for the cafe became one of her specialties. Mrs. Currins prefers to do her barbecuing outside and is planning to have a barbecue pit built in the back yard of the family's new home on Finney Street. She said the secret of good barbecuing is to cook the meat slow and never use a sauce which contains sugar. The sugar in the sauce tends to cause the meat to crust over too soon and turn dark before the meat has had time to absorb the sauce.

Combine above ingredients. Mrs. Currin says amounts of cayenne, black pepper and salt used depends on individual taste.

Place the mixture in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Continue cooking on slow heat for about 40 minutes. The mixture will thicken, but should it be watery a little cornstarch may be added. It will keep in the refrigerator for several weeks.

To barbecue spare ribs, first wash, then sprinkle with salt and pepper. Heat the ribs thoroughly over a hot, slow fire. Brush with the barbecue sauce and cover with heavy foil to retain the steam for tenderness. Cook the ribs on one side about an hour, baste again with the sauce, turn to other side, and cook about another hour.

Chicken barbecued outdoors can be prepared the same way and cooked approximately the same length of time. Again the secret is to cook slow and cover with heavy foil to prevent dryness and help tenderize the meat. If desired, a sauce with sugar may be used for chicken, but you should wait intil the chicken is almost done before basting.

PEPPER STEAK

1½ to 2 lbs. beef round steak
2 tbsp. soy sauce
2 to 3 small white onions, cut in wedges
1 large green pepper, sliced
2 to 3 chopped garlic bulbs
3 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
1 tsp. garlic powder, if desired
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut beef round steak in thin strips. Salt and pepper to taste. Place meat in heavy skillet with just enough water to cover steak. Add soy sauce to water and cook until tender. Be sure to keep enough water in the skillet to form a gravy.

Add wedged onions, sliced green pepper, chopped garlic bulbs, and tomatoes. At this time the garlic powder may be added if desired. After adding vegetables, stir and cook until vegetables are done.

To thicken, a small amount of cornstarch blended with soy sauce, may be added. This will also give the dish a richer color.

CABBAGE ROLL TAMALA

1 lb. ground beef
½ lb. sausage
1 small onion, chopped
1 garlic bulb, chopped
1 cup cooked rice
1 head cabbage
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste

Mix beef and sausage. Chop onion and garlic bulb and add to meat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and garlic powder to taste. Add cooked rice. Shape mixture into balls or small loaves.

Core a cabbage head and take off outside leaves Place the leaves in a pot with a little water until they are limber.

Roll cabbage leaves around the meatballs and fasten with toothpick.

Place a colander in a large stew pot and add water to the bottom to form a steamcooker. Place the tamalas in the colander and cook until the cabbage is done.

Pepper steak, a family favorite, is prepared by Mrs. Helen Currin of Charleston. The dish is served family style over rice. (Daily Standard photo)

Garden provides ingredients for favorite recipes

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID -- Vegetable gardens are at the peak of production and from all indications a bountiful harvest will be reaped by those who have tilled and toiled.

It has been reported that the number of gardens planted this year is comparable to the thousands of "victory" gardens during the World War II era.

An extra incentive for the increased gardening interest this year-in addition to the pleasure of planting, growing and harvesting delicious fresh vegetables--has been the demanding effort to cope with today's soaring food prices and predicted shortages.

The Louis F. Jones family who lives and farms on Route One are like most farm families and are traditional garden growers. Each year Mrs. Jones freezes and cans a great amount of vegetables and fruits.

Favorite recipes which she is sharing have been collected through the years from friends and relatives.

Her pickle and relish recipes will extend enjoyment of the summer garden into the fall and winter months. However, no offering can be made of Mrs. Jones' recipes without including her fresh apple cake which remains a favorite.

RIPE TOMATO RELISH

(4-6 pts.)

12 ripe tomatoes
3 large onions, chopped
2 green sweet peppers, chopped
1 hot pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic
3 cups brown sugar
1 tbsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. salt
2 cups vinegar

Cook slowly on low heat until thickened. Seal in sterilized jars.

PICKLED OKRA

(2 pts)

Pick fresh okra, wash and cut stem ends, leaving enough stem to hold seeds in pod.

Pack pods in two pint jars, add one small hot pepper and one garlic clove to each jar.

MIX

2 cups white vinegar
1/2 cup water
3 tbsp. salt
1 1/2 tsp. celery or mustard seed.

Pour mix over okra and seal. Set jars into a pan of warm water. Bring water in pan to boil. Let jars set in water for 10 minutes. Remove from water and cool.

CRISPY CUCUMBER LIME PICKLES

7 pounds of cucumbers, sliced crosswise or lengthwise

Mix 2 cups pickling lime to 2 gallons of water

Soak cucumber slices for 24 hours in lime water, then rinse in three different cool waters. Soak for three hours in ice and water, then remove.

Make a syrup of two quarts vinegar, four and one-four pounds sugar and 1 tbsp. salt. Pour syrup over cucumbers. Let set overnight.

Add pickling spice to suit taste, then bring mixture to a boil and boil for 35 minutes. Can in sterilized jars.

KOSHER DILL PICKLES

7 pounds cucumbers (about 40 that are three or four inches long)
1 pt. vinegar
2 qts. water
1 cup salt

Pack clean, washed cucumbers in jar. To each jar add 1 large head of dill, 1 thick onion slice and 1 clove of garlic. Boil vinegar, water and salt and fill each jar with boiling liquid. Let age for six weeks. Makes six quarts.

CHUNK PICKLES

(about 6 quarts)

2 doz. large cucumbers kept overnight in refrigerator

Cut cucumbers into chunks and cover with 1 cup salt and let stand one-half hour and drain.

MIX
1 large onion, chopped
4 cups sugar
1 tsp. black pepper
1 1/2 tsp. tumeric
1 1/2 tbsp. prepared mustard
1 qt. vinegar

Drop chunks into this mixture and boil five minutes. Seal in sterilized jars.

PEPPER HASH

(about 6 pts.)

12 green sweet peppers
6 red sweet peppers
6 yellow hot banana peppers.

Remove seeds from peppers, grind, using coarse blade of food grinder. Scald in boiling water for five minutes and then dip in cold water for five minutes. Squeeze out excess water and add the following:

6 med. onions, chopped
2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups vinegar or enough to cover
2 tsp. salt
2 tsp. pickling spice
1/2 head cabbage, chopped

Mix and heat. DO NOT BOIL. Seal while hot.

Jennifer Broughton, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Broughton of New Madrid Route One, proves with a big smile how much she likes "Dota's" (Mrs. Dorothy Jones) sweet crunchy lime pickles.

Dudley cook prefers simple dishes

By WANDA ATCHLEY

Let me declare my prejudice at the start. I was lucky enough recently to be served a dish prepared by Mrs. Mary Morgan of Dudley.

I was served this delicious piece of an old fashioned cocoa cake while visiting at the Bloomfield Area Child Care Center, where Mrs. Morgan is employed as cook. She serves breakfast, lunch and an afternoon snack to the 17 area youngsters registered at the center.

Mary and her husband Virgil live at Dudley Route One and are the parents of three married children. Her grandson, aged 11, has also lived in her home since he was a young child.

Mrs. Morgan began her career as cook at the center last October and prior to that time had never cooked professionally. She said she learned to cook as a young girl, mostly from necessity, as she was the oldest of nine children. Mrs. Morgan says she is not a gourmet cook, but cooks plain and simple dishes geared to everyday living.

Elizabeth Welborn, organizational director of the center, says of Mrs. Morgan, "She is the type of dedicated employe who stayed overnight alone at the center, for several nights, during last winter's ice storm, so that it would not be necessary for her to miss a day of work."

The following recipe's are a collection of Mrs. Morgan's favorites. The chicken and dressing is her own original recipe and the spaghetti sauce recipe has been revised to her personal liking.

Mrs. Moore 'loves to do buffet foods'

By MARY NOLEN

"It makes a great deal of difference liking to cook when you have a family that enjoys eating," Mrs. Jim Moore, 314 West North St., says.

A multi- talented homemaker, Mrs. Moore is the wife of Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore. They have three children, James E. Moore IV, 9; John David, 7; and Verona, 5.

Mrs. Moore, a former school teacher, is involved in several organizations when not busy in the kitchen. During the winter months when her children are in school, she works about four days a week in her husband's office as a secretary. She works there during the summer months only when she is needed. "I'd rather spend the summer with the children," she said.

A native of Charleston, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Giltz. Mrs. Moore is Scott County co- chairman of Southeast Missouri Democrats for the national Democratic telethon, has been involved in the heartfund program for the past five years, and has worked in the Girl Scout Day Camp and Young Democrats. She is vice president of Women Democratic Club, ticket saleswoman for the community concert and teaches Sunday School and Bible School at the First United Methodist Church.

"Jim and I have always cooked together as a team. Sometimes we just get out the cook books and read them looking for a different dishes to try," Mrs. Moore said.

Of all of the different categories of recipes, Mrs. Moore said her least favorite to make is desserts.

"I love to do buffet types of food ... and I love to experiment with spices and wines," she said.

"When I am asked for a recipe I always give it out ... I don't believe in saying, 'It's a new recipe, and I had rather not give it out.' as some people will say," she remarked.

Some of Mrs. Moore's recipes follow.

4 cups chopped scallion
1 medium onion

6 to 8 hard boiled eggs
1 lb. fried bacon

This can be used as a complete meal or a side dish. Serves 2 to 4.

HOT CHICKEN

Core out hard rolls and stuff with following.

2 cups diced chicken, turkey, ham or tuna
1 cup diced American cheese

The sugar cookie recipe which was given to Mrs. Moore by her great-grandmother originally called for butter the size of 4 hen eggs, double handful sugar, 1 egg, 1 cap of vanilla, 2 double handfuls sugar, and 1 big pinch soda. Mrs. Moore said her mother has preserved the original recipe.

Surprise family, friends with extra goodies

By JEANNE MAYNARD

When food from a school lunchroom tastes so good that mothers ask for recipes, something good is cookin'. Mrs. Elois Jones of Dorena says many of the dishes she and Mrs. Everett Dunn of Dorena prepared as cooks for Dorena Elementary School were favorites of many students and their mothers.

In the nearly 20 years Mrs. Jones cooked for the school she says she saw many changes in the school before it closed during spring of 1973.

When the school opened in 1952, it needed money for the first hot lunches. Mrs. Jones tells how the community helped: "That first year, several of the women of the community gathered at one home. We went from house to house, gathering chickens and vegetables that people could donate. From that came a chicken fry that fed about 200 people."

The chicken fry netted profits that went to the Parent- Teacher Association for the school's food.

Mrs. Jones says she and Mrs. Dunn cooked without many modern conveniences.

"Everything was made from scratch, and before the sink was built dishes were washed in two tubs on stands with another container for rinsing."

Here are some of Mrs. Jones' recipes that have become favorites through the years.

BAKED BEANS

2 14½-oz. cans pork and beans
½ cup vinegar
2 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tbsp. green peppers, chopped
1 tbsp. pimentoes, chopped
2 tbsp. onions, chopped

Combine all ingredients in large baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

CHEESY POTATOES

5 to 6 medium potatoes
Dash of salt
1 cup cubed cheese
2 tbsp. butter or margarine

Peel potatoes and cover with water. Cook over medium heat until nearly done. Melt butter or margarine on potatoes. A little milk may need to be added. Turn to low heat and lightly stir in cheese.

APPLE CRISP

4 to 5 cups fresh apples sliced and cooked
1½ cups brown sugar
1½ cups flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup coconut
½ cup melted butter
2 cups water (if apples seem dry)

Mix dry ingredients. Pour apples into baking dish. Pour melted butter or margarine on apples. Sprinkle dry ingredients on top. Bake at 350 degrees 40 minutes.

YEAST ROLLS

1 qt. sweet milk
1 cup sugar
2 tbsp. salt
2 tbsp. (heaping) butter
6 to 8 cups flour
3 tbsp. baking powder
4 cakes yeast
½ cup water
1 tbsp. sugar

Scald milk and set aside to cool. Mix sugar, salt and butter in another pan and then add to milk when cooled. Mix flour and baking powder, add to mixture.

Dissolve yeast and add to mixture. Let dough rise until double. Then it will be ready to pinch into rolls. Dough may be stored in refrigerator.

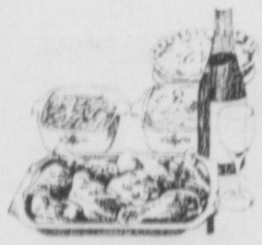
Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until golden brown.

The following was developed by Mrs. Nellie Williams, wife of the first superintendent of Dorena Elementary School. She worked with Mrs. Jones for eight years.

SLOPPY JOE HAMBURGERS

1 lb. ground beef
2 tbsp. minced onion
2 tbsp. minced green pepper
Dash of salt
Dash of pepper
½ cup mustard
½ cup ketchup

Mix all ingredients in skillet on top of range. Cook until meat is done and bubbly hot. Spoon onto buns.



DATE NUT BARS

1 cup sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 tbsp. hot water
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 lb. chopped dates

Sift flour, then measure. Add baking powder to flour, then sift again.

Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually. Add eggs, then hot water and flour, beating until smooth. Add nuts and dates.

Turn into two greased pans (eight by eight by two inches) spreading dough out very thin. Bake in 325 degree oven for 30 minutes. Cool.

MONDAY NIGHT BASEBALL TO COVER PHILLIES AT EXPOS; INDIANS AT RED SOX WILL BE GAME-OF-WEEK TELECAST

The National League East, a wide open and surprising place of business from top to bottom, matches two of the big surprises -- the Philadelphia Phillies and the Montreal Expos -- in Monday Night Baseball on the NBC Television Network June 24 (7:15 p.m. CDT).

The Phillies - Expos tussle will be telecast immediately following "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" which starts at 7 p.m. The backup game pairs the Cincinnati Reds and Houston Astros in Houston.

On Saturday, June 22, Major League Baseball's Game - of - the - Week on NBC-TV will present a contest between the highly competitive Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox, a team on a hot streak, in Boston's Fenway Park. The backup contest brings together the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs in Chicago's Wrigley Field.

The Monday Night scuffle between the Phillies and Expos underlines the unpredictability of baseball. At the start of the season, neither team was considered to be much of a threat for championship honors. With the campaign in its third month, the Phillies and Expos are waging a spirited battle for the division lead.

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER

TARZAN SWIMS FOR HIS HEALTH

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)— Johnny Weissmuller, who spent a good portion of his life either in the water or swinging through trees, is back in the water again, this time for health purposes. Weissmuller, who was 70 on June 2, broke his hip last December during a fall at Caesars Place hotel here, where he had been employed as a host-greeter.

After four months in the hospital the former star of 19 "Tarzan" films and holder of five Olympic gold medals for swimming has taken to the family pool for daily workouts to build up his shattered hip.

Weissmuller has retired but is thinking about making some television commercials to keep busy, although swimming and golf already take up a large part of his day.

In addition to the gold medals, Weissmuller set 57 world records as a swimmer, was named to the Helms Hall of Fame three times and has been honored as the greatest swimmer in the first half of this century.

He played Jungle Jim in the television series of the same name in the 1950s and now serves as a director of the National Swimming Hall of Fame at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

'TENAFLY' HAS TRIED IT ALL FROM JANITOR TO WRITER

It seemed inevitable that James McEachin, Harry Tenafly in "Tenafly" the NBC Mystery Movie, would eventually become an actor.

He had tried just about everything else. He has been a clerk, soldier, fireman, policeman, writer, song wirter, recording executive, janitor and at one point a cutter in a brassiere factory.

McEachin served for six years, part of the hitch in Korea wher he suffered serious combat wounds.

After the service he went back to Hackensack where he took tests for both the police and fire departments. He scored the highest of all those tested and became the second black on the Hackensack Fire Department.

Seeking more action, he switched after several months to the Hackensack Police Department, serving for four years. Disillusioned with police work and bothered by his war wounds, he quit and headed for southern California, where he spent a year in a veterans hospital recovering from his ailments.

While in the hospital he took up writing and sold a piece to Hep Magazine for $25. Then he tried song writing and later became an independent record producer.

McEachin enjoyed considerable success as a recording executive and then his new career took a nose dive. It was 1966 and he was wide open to suggestions.

"A friend suggested acting in the movies," says McEachin. "I said, 'might as well,' and that was that."

His film credits include "True Grit," "Hello, Dolly!," "The Undefeated," Play Misty for Me," "Buck and the Preacher" and "Fuzz."

On television he has guest-starred in numerous series, including "The Senator," "The FBI," "Mannix" and "Marcus Welby." He was the streetcar conductor in "That Certain Summer," a movie for television, and then he stared in "World Premiere: "Tenafly."

McEachin lives with his wife and three children in Encino.

DEATH OF KUNG FU STAR BRUCE LEE REMAINS MYSTERY

HONG KONG (AP)—A cult venerates Kung Fu film star Bruce Lee in death.

Fan letters pour in to the studio where he worked. Release of his films in many countries sets off new waves of reaction. Foreigners arrive on pilgrimages seeking an autographed photo of the American-born Lee.

Now, nine months after he died at 33, many still consider his death a mystery.

Found unconscious by a friend, he died while being taken to a hospital. A coroner's inquest ruled he was a victim of "hypersensitivity to certain drugs." But circumstances surrounding the death were riddled with questions

Mention Lee's name in this city where he died and you are likely to be answered in hushedwhispers. Everyone, it seems, has a theory — usually grounded in superstition — about the "true" cause of the star's death.

"In Hong Kong," says one resident, "you have to worry about superstitions all the time. If a house is built with the door facing in an unlucky direction, people won't move in."

A widely circulated story says Lee died because of "bad fung chi" — bad luck — brought on when he moved to a house built on the wrong side of one of Hong Kong's nine mountain, referred to as the "Nine Dragons."

Those who tell the story say Lee was warned his house was "on the wrong side of the Dragon." He took a precaution of installing a giant mirror on the roof to ward off evil spirits. If a spirit came down toward the house it would see itself and be scared away.

Last summer, the story goes, a typhoon hit Hong Kong ripping the mirror off the roof and smashing it. Shortly thereafter Lee died.

Others have theorized that Lee died from the fight scenes for Kung Fu pictures, or that he suffered from a rare disease. There is recurring speculation — apparently unfounded — of foul play.

Lee came here as an unknown actor and rose to superstardom in such films as "The Fists of Fury" and "Enter the Dragon." Born in San Francisco and a onetime philosophy student at the University of Washington at Seattle, Lee came to Hong Kong in 1970 after producer Raymond Chou picked him for "Fists of Fury."

It was his first movie role. He had appeared in "The Green Hornet," "Batman" and "Longstreet" television series and operated a kung fu school in Los Angeles.

Executives at Golden Harvest Studios here still grieve the loss of their biggest star. At the time of his death, Lee commanded $1 million a picture in Hong Kong, where most actors make about $1,000 a film

FLIP WILSON

Star of 'The Flip Wilson Show' Thursdays, NBC Television Network

Beginning his fourth season as the star of "The Flip Wilson Show," Flip is most proud of the fact that nearly everyone he meets treats him like a neighbor who drops in every Thursday night.

He said: "Often, people just walk right up and start talking about something their Uncle George did, just like they chat with me every day. And then when the conversation is over, they say, 'See ya, later' even though they probably never will-- except I hope they see me on Thursday nights.

"I'm glad of that, because I never set out to be a star, I don't want that big distance between me and the people who watch me. I'm just a man doing his job and just like the plumbers, teachers, cooks, clerks, and mothers out there, I'm doing the best I can."

Flip's first step toward his present career began when he was Clerow Wilson, nine years old, in a Jersey City, N. J., public school. He was a last minute- replacement for a girl who was to play Nurse Clara Barton in a school play. The laughter of his classmates impressed him so much that he began to work at making people laugh.

He liked school, especially English, but because of his family's poverty and his subsequent unhappiness in a series of foster homes, he dropped out at 16 and joined the Air Force, where his commanding officer arranged for him to take courses in English and typing. Later he found himself on the Air Force lecture circuit addressing and amusing the troops on such subjects as "The Sex Life of the Coconut Crab." It was at this time that he acquired his nickname. The guys used to say, "He's flipped." So he became "Flip."

After four years in service, Flip took a job as bellhop at the Manor Plaza Hotel in San Francisco and persuaded the manager to let him do a little comedy walk- on as a drunk while a dance act changed costumes.

He soon decided to go on the road. "I looked at myself and tried to analyze what made me funny. In the end I decided that I am a story teller. I get out on stage and I take one line, just one funny line, and from that I build a story and I become different characters."

Flip played clubs mostly between Florida and the Bahamas until 1965 when Redd Foxx (star of NBC-TV's "Sanford and Son")praised him on NBC- TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." "Redd even offered me some of his material and that's something comics just don't do," says Flip. "I knew then that things were going right for me."

He was a guest on the "Tonight Show" dozens of times. Later, he hosted the show and was a guest on other top television shows before eventually headlining his own series.
